MILLIONS IN OIL.

Big Fortunes Made in Twelve Months.

Texas was recently described as "the young man's Empire," because of the enormous fortunes which young men made out of the oil wells in that interesting country in an incredibly short time.

Indeed some of the experiences of Texas adventurers read like the fascinating romance which encircled the life of the immortal Mr. Gilead P. Beck.

Men under thirty years of age invaded the great Beaumont oil region, and in twelve months were millionaires. The boom started at the beginning of last year, when the greatest vein of oil the world has ever known was struck. People went crazy with delight, but the clear-headed few remained cool while they raked in the thousands of dollars which the oil brought them.

One man who had leased a patch of land for £2 sold it a few weeks later for £200,000. Two negroes who lived in tumble-down cabins and worked for 6s. a day got £2,000 for their homes. A small dry goods store was bought for £2,000 and land which a few years before was bought for 8s. to 12s. an acre sold for £20,000 an acre. A man had his overcoat stolen; it contained a note for £200. When urged to inform the police he said the coat and the money could go to Jericho. If he went bothering about it he would lose £2,000 on one of his oil deals in the meantime.

Scores of young men with little money but with business talents and abundant energy flocked to Texas, and in seventeen months had huge sums standing to their credit in the banks. Three of the best known of these men—Heywood, Scott, and Prather by name—are not yet thirty, and a fourth named Sharp is just past thirty. They own some of the most prolific oil wells in the country, have big interests in railway and steamship companies, and have built some of the best hotels. And yet the land out of which the oil gushes in this particular district is less than 400 acres in extent.

But although many made enormous fortunes the great majority of the people who flocked to Beaumont were ruthlessly robbed of all they had. Dozens of swindlers were launched by unscrupulous men, who saw in the excitement an opportunity to sell shares in companies that never owned an acre of land and never will produce a gallon of oil. Some men who had little more than the clothes they were organized companies with immense capital—on paper. Anything in the way of a land title or a lease or an option was enough of a foundation upon which to build an airy structure which would attract the dollars of the gullible. These rascals, after wrecking the lives of many victims by robbing them of all the money they possessed, cleared out of the country just in time to escape from the clutches of the police.

There is plenty of scope for young men in Texas, which is one of the most resourceful of the American States and capable of enormous development, and a man with a steady head on his shoulders need not be the least afraid of failure.

DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS CURE CONSTIPATION. Mouth Hygiene.

In an editorial article in the Medical Brief on Mouth Hygiene we find the following:

In the morning, on waking, the mouth of even the healthiest person is anything but wholesome. Warmth and moisture favor the decay of food particles, the formation of corrosive and other deleterious products, which attack the teeth and injure the mucous membrane of the mouth. The slowing of the circulation during the night deposits a coating, and allows the secretions to become stale and thick. To swallow this septic matter deteriorates the gastric juice, and will, at length, overcome normal resistance to a greater or less extent.

The writer has succeeded in overcoming a morning nausea and want of appetite with many people, simply by insisting upon hygiene of the mouth as a part of the morning toilet.

It is not enough to brush the teeth and tongue, though this is important. The patient should use an antiseptic mouth wash. Unquestionably the best thing for this purpose is listerine. It is pleasant, aromatic, stimulating and effective. It is prescribed by doctors and dentists all over the world to keep the cavities of the head in a hygiene condition.

The solution employed should be reasonably strong, say a tablespoonful of listerine to a glass of water. The mouth should be thoroughly rinsed before and after cleaning the teeth and tongue, and some of the solution gargled as far down the throat as possible. If any is swallowed no harm is done.

The sense of comfort and cleanliness which follows this procedure is indescribable. It should be repeated mornings and at bedtime. If it is followed in the morning by eating a bunch of grapes, an orange or apple before the regular breakfast is taken the whole digestive economy is invigorated and gets down to work in a most satisfactory manner.

What Can a Woman Do For a Man?

In Times of Suffering and Critical Illness She Can Honestly Recommend

Paine's Celery Compound

AS A SAVER OF LIFE AND A BANISHER OF DISEASE.

Woman's power for good in the home can never be truly estimated. In times of suffering and danger, her judgment and experience are invaluable; her smiles, words of cheer and comfort help to dispel gloom and sadness. The faithful, discerning wife has a full knowledge of the value of Paine's Celery Compound as a banisher of disease; she has had a personal experience with it; she has noted its wonderful effects and cures; she has faith in its virtues, and recommends it with full confidence. Mr. J. H. Brown, Port Perry, Ont., says:

"I was troubled with kidney complaint; the doctors called it an enlargement of the neck of the bladder. Be that as it may, I suffered the most intense pain. I applied to my physician for relief but with little encouragement: he thought the only way for me to obtain relief was to submit to an operation. I went home very much discouraged, and was prevailed on by my wife to try Paine's Celery Compound. I did, but with very little faith in it, purchase one bottle, but the results were marvellous, as I received immediate relief after taking it. The pain is all gone, and my skin, instead of being dry and harsh as it used to be, is as soft as velvet; in fact, I feel like a new man, and never felt better in my life than I do at present."

Lord Salisbury and Public Houses.

A characteristic incident of Lord Salisbury's attitude towards temperance is related by a correspondent. One of the clergy in the neighborhood of Hatfield, who was an enthusiastic advocate of local veto, one day tried to awake his noble neighbor to the grave importance of the liquor question. Lord Salisbury listened with his usual courtesy, but the clergyman felt that he had made no impression.

"Your lordship," he urged, "would at least admit that an undue multiplication of public-houses in a place is an inducement to excessive drinking."

"Really," said Lord Salisbury, "I am extremely sorry to appear so unsympathetic, but I cannot admit even that. In this house—Hatfield—there are forty bedrooms, but I never feel more inclined to go to sleep here than anywhere else."

The clergyman is understood to have considered this argument specious but convincing.—London Daily News.

A friend of ours, who is an enthusiastic stamp collector, was showing his treasures to the clergyman who had just dropped in. "This he said with conscious pride, 'is one of the finest collections in the world!'" The reverend gentleman eyed the volumes containing the specimens, and then he tenderly took them in his arms. What's the matter?" said the stamp collector nervously. "Oh, I beg pardon," was the reply; "but I thought I should just like to see how it felt to take up a decent collection."

Subjects of Thought.

While we gladly accord honor to the courage of active heroism, let us not forget also to reverence the courage of patient endurance, the courage of absolute sincerity, the courage of devotion to principle. He who possesses these is indeed a brave man, though no one may recognize it and he himself be unconscious of it.

The hope that inspires effort is always a blessing. Not only does it strengthen the human faculties and improve the character; it also makes rapid advancement in its own line, even when failing to reach its far-off goal.

The heart is always hungry. No man lives happily alone. The wisest and the best is wiser and better for the friends he has.

Generosity, to deserve the name, comprises the desire and the effort to benefit others, without reference to self.

It is poor policy to take advantage of other people because you have never had any advantage of your own.

What men want is not talent, it is purpose; in other words, not the power to achieve, but the will to labor.

It is a maxim that those to whom everybody allows the second place have an undoubted right to the first.

The world's greatest men and best reformers were light weight when weighed in the scales of bigotry.

Love's a virtue for heroes; and immortal as every great soul is that struggles, endures and fulfills.

Reading should teach us how to seek for truth, meditation how to find it.

The Color-Line in Women's Clubs.

Will it benefit a hundred colored women to have the right to belong to the white Federation of Clubs? If they admitted a thousand, how could that help the colored race? They will not be admitted in the South where the vast majority of negroes live. The proposition to admit them will not increase the slowly growing kindness of disposition toward them by Southern whites; in fact, it will do its little best to smother such a feeling. Certainly the question will not tend to increase the harmony of the Federation itself. There may be great and lasting benefits which will accrue to the negro race, but they are problematic, if not hazy; and why sensible and kind-hearted should risk losing so much to win so little can only be explained to our full satisfaction by the historic gentlemen who bit off his nose in a sincere and earnest, but misguided, effort to spite his face.—(Octave Thanet.)

TRACY IS DEAD.

The Notorious Outlaw Rounded Up His Life in His Own Wild Way.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 6.—Harry Tracy, the notorious outlaw, lies dead in Davenport. Sheriff's posse and others are disputing the ownership of his body.

For two days Tracy had terrorized the occupants of the Eddy ranch in the Lake Creek country. Then five determined citizens of Creston went after him. The posse found cover behind a large rock and for a while it looked like a siege. Then Tracy broke for a large boulder on the edge of a small wheat field, and this dash was his undoing, for just as he came to the rock he fell forward, a rifle bullet having broken one leg. He plunged into the wheat and his bloody trail there shows the savage determination of the man, for after receiving the wound he crawled 75 yards on his hands and knees in order to reach a spot where he could pour a merciless fire upon them. But once only was he able to fire from his vantage point. Then, weakened by loss of blood, he tried to staunch his wound, failed, and with his revolver sent a bullet through his brain.

None of the posse was wounded, though all of them had narrow escapes. When they were firing from the cover of their rock they had to lift their heads above the cover, and every time this was done Tracy's rifle rang out and a bullet chipped the rock.

Chocolate Cream.—Chocolate cream sauce is a thick, very rich sauce that is served hot with ice cream. Put into a saucepan four ounces of chocolate, a cup of brown sugar, half a cup of milk; stir until the chocolate is melted, and boil until it becomes a little thick when dropped into hot water. Turn into a sauceboat and serve at once.

Whole Wheat Gems with Dates.—Separate two eggs; add to the yolks half a pint of milk; add one cupful of cold boiled rice; beat thoroughly; add half a teaspoonful of salt; half a cupful of chopped dates and a cupful and a half of whole wheat flour; beat for about two minutes. Add a rounding teaspoonful of baking powder and mix and fold in the well-beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in greased gem-pans in a quick oven for thirty minutes.

Albumenized milk is a most nourishing drink for an invalid, and in hot weather, taken at intervals of three hours, between breakfast and a six o'clock dinner, would be all the nourishment required by a person in health. Drop the white of one egg in a glass, add two thirds of a cupful of milk, cover, and shake until thoroughly mixed, into another glass and serve.
