

NEURALGIC PAINS

ARE A CRY OF THE NERVES FOR BETTER BLOOD.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Make Rich, Red Blood and Drive These Pains From the System—
Read the Proof.

A high medical authority has defined neuralgia as 'a cry of the nerves for better blood,' and to effectually drive it from the system the blood must be made rich, red and pure. For this purpose there is no other medicine so prompt and sure in result as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills make new, rich, red blood with every dose, and impart new life and new vigor to the party using them. Dr. John McDermott, Bond Head, Ont., offers strong proof of the certain results obtained from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind. He says: "A few years ago while working as a carpenter in Buffalo I got wet. I did not think it worth while changing my clothes at the time, but I soon began to suffer for my neglect. I woke next morning with cramps and pains throughout my body. I was unable to go to work and called in a doctor, who left me some medicine. I used it faithfully for some time, but it did not help me. In fact I was growing steadily worse and had become so reduced in flesh that I weighed only 138 pounds. As I was not able to work I returned to my home at Bond Head. Here I placed myself under the care of a local doctor who said the trouble was neuralgia, which had taken a thorough hold upon my entire system. Misfortune seemed to follow me for the doctor's treatment did not help me, and I think my neighbors at least did not believe I was going to get better. I had often heard and read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and in this emergency I determined to try them. I had not used more than three boxes before I felt that the pills were helping me. From that on I gained day by day, and after I had used some ten or eleven boxes, I had fully recovered my old-time strength, and have since been able to work at my trade as a carpenter without any trouble. I have no pains or aches, and I now weigh 156 pounds. I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills an invaluable medicine and shall always have a good word to say for them."

When the nerves are unstrung, when the blood is poor or watery, or when the system is out of order, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the medicine to take. They cure all troubles arising from these causes, and make weak, despondent men and women bright, active and strong. Protect yourself against imitations by seeing that the full name, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, is on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all medicine dealers or mailed post paid at 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Black Walnut.

Terre Haute Gazette: The best black walnut in the United States is found in Indiana. Forty years ago there could be found in this State a crop of black walnut unequalled in quantity and quality. To-day it is not to be found in such immense trees. Neither is the number of trees by any means so numerous. Years ago the largest and best trees were used for fence rails and such common purposes. At that time it had no particular commercial value. Before walnut came into general use, the most of domestic furniture was of cherry. Walnut has now entirely superseded this, and all other woods. Fence rails can be found today through Indiana that were split more than a half century ago, and they are as sound now as then, save the wear and tear. Of all hard woods the walnut is most durable, save red cedar, and, possibly in the ground, black locust would equal it. Our walnut is comparatively gone. In isolated parts of the country, where this timber grows, there is yet some of inferior quality, but to a limited extent. But the general black walnut growing in the deep forest, in the rich lowlands, in its primitive nature, is a thing of the past. The general supply must now be gathered from the four quarters of the earth to supply a demand that requires a century for its culmination, and its culmination witnesses the astounding spectacle of the entire extinction of the valuable material. Kentucky has quite a good stock of black walnut, and much that is very inferior on account of its grey color and tough, hard texture. Missouri also has some of rather an inferior quality. Western Ohio and West Virginia is poor in quality. The whole stock of the States is not equal to a full demand for ten years to come. Furniture manufacturers do not now use it as lavishly as they did five years ago. Other woods are substituted when possible, and 1,000 feet of walnut are made to go as far again as it did a few years ago. Chicago uses annually in her different branches of manufacture, such as house, school, and office furniture, also in finishing material, doors, moldings, counters, etc., 14,500,000 feet. Probably about half of this is bought at the mills, and does not go into the account of the dealers at all.

The Whirligig of Time.

"De Wet at the Naval Review" was another headline, in which a prophetic contemporary indulged too rashly before the event. Imagine for a moment the feeling of an Englishman who, having gone to sleep in August, 1901, should wake up to find this announcement placarded on the walls a year later. The wily general, who had been in—and out of—so many traps, who had been hemmed in, and rounded up, and closed in upon so many times, and had, moreover, gone out of his mind on reliable authority, is announced as attending the naval review. The sleeper awakened would certainly have imagined himself still dreaming. He would have been quite sure he was dreaming when he read that Mr. Chamberlain, who had been proclaimed that the Boer leaders continuing the struggle would be banished, was now, "shaking them heartily by the hand." And he would have been more puzzled still to find the men, whose methods of warfare he had been taught to call "ruffianism" and "brigandage," welcomed by everyone without exception as military leaders of distinction and gallantry. Times have changed with a vengeance, and any one who repeated to-day things that were freely said about the Boers a twelve-month since would be a rav-ing lunatic.—[London Daily News.

A Hero.

The list of uncrowned heroes has been swelled by the addition of the name of Patrick Whalen, flagman, who lost his life at his post of duty at Woodbury, N. J., a few days ago, and who was at the time accorded the honor of a three to six-line dispatch in a few newspapers whose columns did not happen to be overcrowded just then. He was known as "Patsy" by his intimates, and this included about all of the residents of Woodbury. He had been for forty years in the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. On the day of his death he saw a little boy on the track just as an express train came thundering along. Patsy ran out, snatched up the child and tossed it out of harm's way, but the flagman himself was not so fortunate. The engine struck him, and presently they carried him into his little flag-house, where he died. Paying a tribute to a great Emperor, some one once said: "And when he died, the children wept in the streets." The local chronicler of the death of Patrick Whalen records a circumstance somewhat similar, when he says: "His death has cast a gloom over this entire community." The life which the flagman saved on the day of his death was not the first instance of his kind. He saved hundreds of lives by his watchful care of his station. He lived a heroic life, and died a hero's death. Peace to his ashes!

Feeding Dairy Cows.

When dairy cows are fed large quantities of ground feed for the purpose of making large yields of milk they need a certain amount of roughage in the shape of hay or corn fodder to extend the stomach, as most feeders believe. This may not be the true reason why cows when fed meal need hay or fodder; some think it is only for the purpose of separating the meal to let the gastric juice get at it.

We know that when cows are fed, either by design or accident, too much cornmeal it is very apt to form a solid ball in the stomach, causing indigestion, and sometimes stricture of the bowels. Now, hay is quite expensive as a rough feed for a large herd of cows, and some years like last year it is not to be had at all; corn fodder is all right early in the winter, while it is hardly worth hauling in from the field late in the winter, it becomes so bleached and weather-beaten; ensilage is so succulent it does not take the place of roughage, but, on the contrary, is a dangerous feed if no hay or fodder is fed with it; at least that is the prevailing opinion on the subject.

The chemists always were at sea on the subject of feeding ground corn and cob, for the reason that an analysis of corn cobs shows about as much nutriment as so much wood shavings, and yet all feeders agree that there is no better mixture as a feed for milch than corn and cob ground together.—Home and Farm.

SEPARATION.

The true measure of a man's worth is not always the number of his friends, but sometimes the number of his foes. Every man who lives in advance of his age is sure to be misunderstood and opposed, and often persecuted and sacrificed. The Lord Himself has said, "Marvel not if the world hate you, if ye were of the world the world would love its own." Like Him, then, we must expect often to be unpopular, often to stand alone, even to be maligned, perhaps to be utterly and falsely assailed and driven without the camp of the religious world. Two things, however, let us not forget; first, let us not be afraid to be unpopular, and, secondly, never to be embittered by it, but stand in the confidence of right and God's approval.—Sel.

This is the Page Standard II Bar Fence, made of "Page" wire which is twice as strong as common wire. The continuous coil, note wavy appearance, allows for expansion and contraction which is important owing to Canadian climate. Our upright wires are in one piece and have strength of about 800 pounds. If made of pieces spliced at each horizontal, they would have a strength of only about 300 pounds. We also make gates, ornamental fences, poultry netting, nails and staples. The Page Wire Fence Co., Limited, Walkerville, Ont.
