

DENNISON WINS HIS CASE.

The C. P. R. Held Liable for His Prosecution on a Charge of Theft.

The trial of the case of James Dennison vs. the C. P. R. Company, which was begun in the circuit court before Judge Landry and a jury Wednesday morning ended at 8 o'clock last night in a verdict for the plaintiff for $200.00. The evidence-taking was concluded just before 1 o'clock and the whole afternoon was occupied with the addresses of counsel and the Judge's charge, the jury retiring shortly after 6 o'clock.

The action was for malicious prosecution of Dennison on a charge of theft of a revolver from one John Lawrence at Debec Junction in August last. Dennison was arrested on a warrant issued by Police Magistrate Marsh on an information laid by Lawrence. One W. R. Scott, a C. P. R. special constable, accompanied Lawrence when he went to lay the information and took a very active part in the case. He arrested Dennison at Hainsville, brought him to Fredericton, where he was met by two other C. P. R. detectives, L. G. Crevier and D. O'Regan, who gave directions to the magistrate concerning the case. The Police Magistrate remanded Dennison to jail to await a preliminary examination here next morning. The same night a telegram was received by Lawrence from Debec Junction saying not to arrest Dennison. Later on O'Regan reported to Police Magistrate Marsh that Lawrence was at Woodstock and the latter handed him an order to take Dennison to Woodstock for preliminary examination next morning. O'Regan did this and Police Magistrate Dibblee, of that town, heard the case and dismissed it. Crevier, O'Regan and Scott were all present and it was claimed employed Mr. A. B. Connell to appear as prosecuting counsel. On these facts plaintiff contended that the prosecution was the prosecution of the C. P. R. and the jury so found, after the Judge had refused a motion for a non-suit.

His Honor left several questions to the jury to answer with reference to the capacity in which Scott, O'Regan and Crevier were acting in the case, and to the matter of their being reasonable and probable cause for the prosecution. They found that the constables were acting as C. P. R. officers; that the prosecution at Woodstock was carried on at the instigation of Crevier and O'Regan; that Police Magistrate Marsh received instructions from them to send Dennison in custody to Woodstock; and that there was no reasonable and probable cause for Dennison's prosecution.

After receiving the jury's findings His Honor explained that the question as to whether there was reasonable and probable cause for the prosecution, although he had left it to the jury, was really for him to decide as a matter of law, and that having heard the jury's unanimous finding, he would himself find that there was no reasonable and probable cause and direct a verdict to be entered for $200.00, the amount to which the jury assessed the damages.

O. S. Crockett tried the case for the plaintiff and Col. H. H. McLean, K. C., of St. John, for the defendants.—F'cton Gleaner.

Influence of Names.

"We're going to name our newly arrived boy Reginald," remarked Phillips at the club the other evening.

"Do you want him to be that kind of person?" asked Jones, in a tone that he hoped would create discussion.

"What are you springing on us now?" asked several of the group, a little wearily.

"It is a great truth, my boy," continued Jones, aiming his remarks at Phillips, who looked a trifle worried about Jones' question. "The relation of name to character is an unexplored but most fertile region. Look up your fiction, and you will find that every great novelist has unconsciously obeyed the law. A man and his name gradually grow toward each other. He may fight his name for a long time, but by some long road at last he must bend to the significance of what he is called. I consider that parents have a sacred duty upon them in choosing out of all the names of history that name which they elect their child shall be. The name which he receives at baptism is the character part, up to which he must always live."

"Really, I don't follow you," interposed Clemmons of Harvard, with his drawl.

"Think back over your reading," went on Jones. When Sheridan names a character Lady Sneerwell, it is obvious that his conception is of a character proud and cynical. Such a method of dubbing limits the character drawing to a few bold strokes. A frank avowal of love from her lips, a free handed generosity, would not be tolerated. She must remain cold and hard till the play ends. Bunyan was fond of a name that labelled. Surely you remember Mr. Backbite and Boastful? In the literature of the last century such cheap and easy naming is rare and confined to the minor characters. Thackeray uses it for the peerage alone—Lady Bareacre. It survives in our comic weeklies,

BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Keep Little Ones Well During the Hot Weather Months.

If you want to keep your little ones hearty, rosy and full of life during the hot weather give them Baby's Own Tablets the moment they show signs of being out of order in any way.

This medicine cures all forms of stomach and bowel troubles, which carry off so many little ones during the summer months, and is the best thing in the world for sleeplessness, nervousness, irritation when teething, etc. It is just the medicine for hot weather troubles; first, because it always does good; and, second, because it can never do any harm—guaranteed free from opiates. Mrs. W. E. Bassam, Kingston, Ont., says:—"I began using Baby's Own Tablets when my little girl was about three months old. At that time she had indigestion badly; she was vomiting and had diarrhoea constantly and although she had an apparently ravenous appetite, her food did her no good and she was very thin. Nothing helped her until we began giving her Baby's Own Tablets, but after giving her these the vomiting and diarrhoea ceased and she began to improve almost at once. I have since used the Tablets for other troubles and have found them all that can be desired—they are the best medicine I have ever used for a child."

These Tablets are readily taken by all children, and can be given to the smallest, weakest infant by crushing them to a powder. Sold at drug stores or you can get them post paid at 25 cents a box by writing direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N. Y.

with their 'Wandering Willy' and 'Alkali Ike.'

"But there is a rarer and finer use of names that is at the command of the big fellows in romance. The skilful novelist baptizes his creation with a certain name because he realizes its connotation. Annie is known of old for a good housewife and a true sister. She is pretty and social, but is not a society woman. Annie of 'Lorna Doone' is rightly called. Adam implies faithfulness, a quality of high conscientiousness, and Adam of 'As You Like It' and Adam Bede share the trait.

"Tom is mischievous and fast, strongly social, with most of the vices. Even his friends are forced to admit he drinks, but his severest critics will concede him generous. Such as Tom Jones—splendid and strong, shaggy rough. Tom Brown is not cast in a like epic mould, but yet is justified of his name. Tom Sawyer is a Tom in the making. Joseph, of Genesis, has a deservedly high reputation for chastity, and this implication of the name has been remembered. Joseph Andrews is an apt name for Fielding's hero. Jack is a gay blade. Dorothy is sprightly, but warm hearted. Dick is merry and out at heels.

"Authorities have split on Rebecca. Scott makes her a faithful soul with a hopeless love. Thackeray gives us an adventuress, heartless, brilliant, and detestable. A character of history often makes the atmosphere of a name. Bonnie Prince Charlie is perhaps responsible for a succession of prodigals who are permitted to bear no other name.

"You see that the novelists, who have looked truth in the face, have always done their naming in the line with law. Is it any wonder, when once you realize the influence of a name on a person, that savages, ignorant persons, and children have felt that one who knew their name had power over them?"

Religion and chivalry have been in the right of it, when they make the act of naming the most sacred ceremony in a man's life. Rightly they felt that baptism and knighting determine the direction of character development and soul growth.—Ex.

Had Nervous Prostration

Mrs. S. W. West, Drayton, Ont., states: "I got terribly run down, and finally became a victim of nervous prostration. I had no appetite, seemed to lose interest and ambition and could scarcely drag myself about. Hearing of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I used three boxes with great benefit, gaining eleven pounds. It made me strong and well and I had such an appetite that I wanted to be eating half the time."
