"The Last Word of Islam to Europe."

In La Revue (Paris) M. Finot gives through the mouth of Sheik Abdul Hagk, of Bagdad, "the last word of Islam to Europe," from which we take the following:

"For us in the world there are only believers and unbelievers; love, charity, fraternity towards believers; contempt, disgust, hatred and war against unbelievers. Amongst unbelievers the most hateful and criminal are those who, while recognizing God, attribute to Him earthly relationships, give Him a son, a mother. Learn then, European observers, that a Christian of no matter what position, from the simple fact that he is a Christian, is in our eyes a blind man fallen from all human dignity. Other infidels have rarely been aggressive toward us. But Christians have in all times shown themselves our enemies. . . . The only excuse you offer is that you reproach us with being rebellious against your civilization. Yes, rebellious, and rebellious till death! But it is you, and you alone, who are the cause of this. Great God! are we blind enough not to see the prodigies of your progress? But know, Christian conquerors, that no calculation, no treasure, no miracle can ever reconcile us to your impious rule. Know that the mere sight of your flag here is torture to Islam's soul; your greatest benefits are so many spots sullied by our conscience, and our most ardent aspiration and hope is to reach the happy day when we can efface the last vestiges of your accursed empire. Before the Christian peril we have effaced the quarrels of our sects. Islamic unity is rising from one end of the world to the other. The cause of Islam's sterility is entirely in the fatal abyss created by your churches between us and western civilization."

In strong contrast to the spirit of the declaration just quoted is the attitude of the Young Turks party, which has just held a congress in Paris. The party has been split into two factions, which are extremely hostile to one another. The adherents of the one faction are Turkish Nationalists who maintain that the salvation of Turkey must be accomplished by the Turks themselves. They are strongly opposed to any kind of foreign intervention. The majority of the Young Turks, however, are convinced that Turkey no longer possesses the strength within herself of carrying out effectively the reforms necessary for her preservation from ruin. This group favors European intervention in Turkey, and the establishment of a rational system of government and administration under the supervision of the powers.

For a Certainty I am Cured
Mr. James Trenuman, butcher, 536 Adelaide Street, London, Ont., writes that for two years he was laid up with kidney disease and urinary troubles. He became dropsical and his legs would swell so that he could scarcely go round. He never used any medicine that did him so much good as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and knows for a certainty that this treatment cured him. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box.

Tit For Tat.
Man is so prone to err that he should reflect a little before drawing attention to the mistakes of others. A professor who prided himself on his correct English heard his wife remark:

"I intended to tell Jane to bring a fresh bucket of water."
"You doubtless mean a bucket of fresh water," corrected the Professor. "I wish you would pay some little attention to your rhetoric."

A few moments later he said:
"My dear, that picture would show to better advantage if you were to hang it over the clock."

"Ah," she replied, "you doubtless mean if I were to hang it above the clock. If I were to hang it over the clock, we could not tell the time. I wish you would be more careful with your rhetoric, my dear."

And the learned Professor became all at once very interested in his book.—(Chicago Journal.

Turning Down the Doctors.
The marvelous cures of Catarrh are being much talked about. Thousands are daily recognizing the exceptional merit of this simple inhaler treatment, and instead of running to the doctor with their winter ills they protect themselves by Catarrh; it kills colds in the head in ten minutes, quickly relieves Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Lung Troubles, and cures even though all other remedies have failed. Catarrh is very pleasant, safe and convenient to use. Its best recommendation is its enormous sale; try it to-day. Price $1.00, small size 25c, at Druggists.

George Douglas, the author of "The House With the Green Shutters," says that once he met Froude in the house of an Oxford don. "It's astonishing," the historian remarked to Douglas, "it's astonishing! You're the living image of my dear friend, the late John Conington." Douglas said he was glad to hear he was so like the great authority on Virgil. For a moment Froude's thoughts seem to be busy with the sacred past. "Conington," he then added, dreamily, "was the ugliest man I ever clapped an eye on."

What are Piles

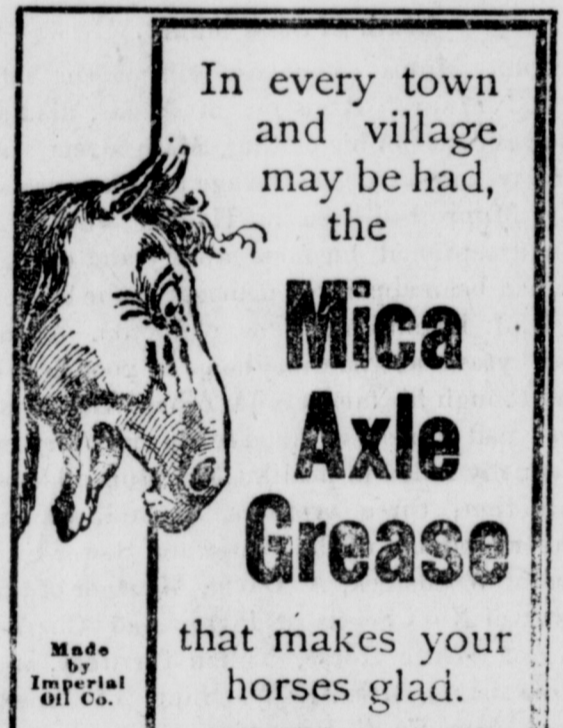

Piles, or hemorrhoids, as they are sometimes called, are small tumors, which form in and about the orifice of the rectum. They are caused by an enlarged and inflamed condition of the veins, which are very numerous in this part of the body. As a rule every form of piles becomes at times acutely inflamed, and extremely painful. The itching and burning usually increases at night, and the misery which many people endure is beyond description. There is no guesswork about Dr. Chase's Ointment, as a cure for piles. It has been tried in the crucible of time, and gradually won its way into favor with the medical profession, as well as with the public in general. It has a wonderful soothing and healing effect, and wherever applied to burning, itching, inflamed skin it affords almost instant relief, cooling the fires of disease and healing the raw ulcerous skin. Ask your friends and neighbors about Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is recognized by a surprisingly large number of people as the only actual cure for piles. It will not fail you. Sixty cents a box at all dealers, or by mail post-paid on receipt of price, by Edmundson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

PARNELL'S DETERMINATION.

Under Every Circumstance He Would be Master or Nothing.

The death is announced from Dublin of Mr. Philip Callan, a once well-known member of the House of Commons. His career, says Mr. T. P. O'Conner in M. A. P., was typical of a period of parliamentary life which has passed away forever. He entered the House of Commons at a time when there was no such thing as an Irish party, and when most Irish members found Westminster a smooth and ready avenue to self-advancement. Poor Callan was full of hope and ambition, was certain that he would obtain a colonial governorship, and had even chosen the particular colony where he intended to represent the Queen, and to draw a big salary. Then came a turr of the tide; Home Rule rushed to the front, and the days of Irish Nationalist members seeking government appointments were over.

When the election of 1885 came, he tried to get into parliament again, but he had incurred the enmity of the then omnipotent Parnell, and, though several of Parnell's colleagues were ready to forgive any backslidings in Callan's previous career, Parnell was inexorable. I remember the terrible day when Parnell announced this decision; it was one of the days which first made me realize what cold, inflexibility of purpose that ordinarily easy going man could show when the necessity arose. The scene took place in a room in Morrison's Hotel, Dublin. Parnell waited till every member had spoken, and everyone had spoken in favor of Callan. And then Parnell, with his cold, penetrating voice—which always had an undercurrent of savage hoarseness when he was deeply moved—declared that he would oppose all his colleagues, and would contest Callan's election.

It was a scene to make one's blood run cold, for everybody had a dim foreboding that Parnell's decision might mean anything. Callan was known as a stubborn and merciless fighter, and it was anticipated that, with his back to the wall, he would not hesitate to lift the veil on the private life of Parnell and reveal to the world the dreadful secret, on the concealment of which we all then felt the safety of Ireland's cause depended. Parnell knew all this as well—perhaps better—than anybody else, but he went straight on. Not satisfied with leaving the fight to his lieutenants, he went himself to Louth; he heard with his own ears the shouted and cruel allusions to his private life; but still he went on, taking no notice. It was a tragic fight for both men in different ways, and it helped to bring the ruin of both, for the secret of Parnell, once whispered, was taken up by every breeze, and finally led to his destruction; while Callan passed forever out of public life, and for the rest of his days was a haunting spectre—a sad memorial of blighted hopes. He had many faults, but he was a brave man, a splendid fighter, and in other circumstances might have done his country service.

A Victim.
"Where are you going this summer?"
"I'm going to a stretch of barren sand, where I can be surrounded by the luxuries of the seashore."
"By yourself?"
"No. Whole family. Wife and children, servants, nurses, etc."
"Cottage?"
"Yes. Has eight rooms for sixteen people. Each room will hold comfortably about one-half of a human being."
"Cottage alone?"
"Oh, no. We shall be next to a lot of others. Each with an assortment of children."
"Nice people?"
"Well, they're people I wouldn't think of associating with on ordinary occasions, but of course—"
"Oh, certainly. Where do you get your vegetables?"
"From the city."
"And your water?"
"From the nearest well."
"Typhoid?"
"Probably."
"Flies?"
"Heaps."
"What are you going for?"
"Two reasons. Because I can't afford to and my wife wants to."—Life.

A beginner in newspaper work in a Southern town who occasionally "sent stuff" to one of the New York dailies picked up last summer what seemed to him a "big story." Hurrying to the telegraph office he "queried" the telegraph editor: "Column story on so and so. Shall I send?" The reply was brief and prompt, but to the enthusiast unsatisfactory. "Send 600 words," was all it said. "Can't be told in less than 1,200," he wired back. Before long the reply came: "Story of creation of world told in 600. Try it."

RICH BLOOD

Strong Nerves

When the blood gets thin and watery, as it usually does at this time of year, the nerves are first to suffer; they are starved and exhausted. Headache, dizzy spells, indigestion, weak action of the heart, languid, depressing feelings, weakness and functional derangements of the bodily organs are the result.

You can feel Dr. Chase's Nerve Food doing you good day by day, as it strikes at the root of trouble and creates new, rich blood. You can prove that it builds up new tissues and adds flesh if you weigh yourself each week while using it.
Mr. J. McFaul, carpenter, 315 Manning Avenue, Toronto, states:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for acute indigestion, nervousness and inability to sleep, and now, after a thorough test, I am pleased to say that my nervous system has been built up, and I rest and sleep well. I can speak very highly of this preparation, knowing it to possess curative properties which I have failed to find in other remedies." 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmundson, Bates & Co., Toronto.
