The Meductic Meat Co.

A large crew of men are at work on the premises of the Meductic Meat Co. cleaning up the place, putting buildings in repair and getting them ready for the machinery.

The slaughter and curing building is 62 ft. x 40, two stories high. The mill where barrel heads and staves will be turned out is 120 ft. x 60 ft. with an engine and boiler house attached. Beig Bros., of St. John, are here removing the old engine and boilers which they will take to St. John. Mr. Hay will replace them with a pair of tubular boilers and a 50 horse power engine.

The coopering establishment is a building 25 ft. x 60 ft. And the cooper store room is 20 ft. x 50 ft.

There is also on the premises a well fitted stable with stalls for fifty horses.

Beside these buildings which Mr. Hay finds already on the mill property which he has bought he will have to build a smoke house at once and in the spring he will erect a brick building for cold storage which will be run with ammonia and not with ice.

It is expected that manufacturing will begin about the first of October.

Why Not Now?

Many dairymen think they will not buy a cream separator now, because, they say, the season is too far advanced, and they will put off the purchase till next spring.

This is a serious error. In the early part of the season the old process of skimming gives better results than at any other part of the year.

As the season gets hotter and the cow advances in the milking period, skimming by the old method becomes very unsatisfactory. As the season advances the fat globules in the milk become smaller and being less buoyant do not rise so readily. This state of things continues to get worse and toward the close of the season the actual loss of cream in skimming by the old process is at least 25%.

For this reason a very substantial profit awaits the dairyman who buys a cream separator now.

I shall be very glad to discuss the separator question with any dairyman. There is now at the Carleton Creamery for inspection a sample separator of the machine I am handling.

This machine, the Sharples, is well known wherever dairying is a success, and I heartily recommend it to dairymen in this district, knowing, as I do, its superiority over others. Terms to suit customers.

Yours truly,

N. S. Dow.

Manager Carleton Creamery.

Little Mike.

The Woodstock firemen of No. 1 Hose Co., have purchased at a large price the bay gelding, Little Mike, 5 years old, no record, trial 2.25, sired by Corncracker 2.18. Dam by Gloster, second dam by Phil Sheridan. They leave issued books containing 5 tickets which sell for $1.00 per book. The drawing to take place on Sept. 1st, 1903. This horse can be seen about every evening on our streets driven by Mr. William Bolger.

The town hall is being remodeled and a recreation room for the firemen is to be installed. Money is required to furnish this room and it is for the purpose of obtaining the necessary funds that this lottery is being held. Such a lottery is not a new scheme. Firemen and other associations in other towns have taken the same method of raising money for laudable purposes. Baby Boy, a horse well known in Woodstock, was drawn in a lottery and cost the winner 35cts. If the citizens were asked to give money to fix up the recreation room they would no doubt do so freely, but the firemen want to give every man a good thing for his money and so are offering every purchaser of a ticket a chance to win this handsome horse, "Little Mike."

In an Irish town the lads of a school acquired the habit of smoking, and resorted to the most ingenious methods to conceal it from the master. In this they were successful until one evening, when the master caught them puffing most vigorously. "How now?" shouted he to one of the culprits. "How dare you be smoking?" "Sir," said the boy, "I am subject to headaches, and a pipe takes off the pain." "And you? And you?" enquired the pedagogue, questioning every boy in his turn. One had a "raging tooth;" another "ooch;" the third a "cough;" in short, they all had something for which the weed was an unfailing remedy. "Now, sir," bellowed the master to the last boy, "pray, what disorder do you smoke for?" "Alas! all excuses were exhausted; but the interrogated urchin, putting down his pipe and looking up into his master's face, said in a whining, hypocritical tone: "I smoke for corns, sir!"

Fowler-Hartt.

A pretty wedding occurred at the residence of Henry Hartt, Proprietor of Borden House, Fall River, Mass., on Tuesday, July 21st instant, when his eldest daughter, Mary Veronica, was united in marriage to Mr. Fenwick Fowler formerly of Lakeville, N. B. Precisely at 2.30 the bride leaning on the arm of her father and followed by her bridesmaid entered the spacious parlours of the hotel which were beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers, where they joined the rest of the bridal party under a beautiful arch. The bride was attended by Miss Margaret Heatley, while the groom was supported by a former Lakeville boy, Mr. Fred Annett, of Jersey City. The impressive ceremony was performed by Rev. Thomas Tyrre, pastor of the first Methodist church of Fall River, in the presence of seventy five guests. After a unique wedding supper the bridal party boarded the train amid showers of rice and confetti. They arrived at Lakeville on Wednesday and on Thursday evening a reception was given them at the residence of Mr. J. R. Fowler at which over sixty guests assembled to welcome the newly wedded pair. The bride was the recipient of many valuable presents among others a handsome silver water pitcher presented by the young people of Lakeville. Mr. and Mrs. Fowler will visit friends and relatives in Carleton County for a few weeks. They will ultimately return to Fall River where they will reside.

For a Worthy Object.

On Friday evening of this week in Graham's Opera House the Woodstock Dramatic Company will put on the great Comedy Drama, Waifs of New York, with W. Lawrence Gallagher, a Woodstock boy now in the theatrical profession in the United States, in the great character of Johnnie Riley. The production will be a benefit for St. Gertrude's Catholic church of Woodstock.

Waifs of New York is a most excellent play and the success of the local company in the past warrants one in expecting great things from them on Friday evening. Mr. Gallagher's large experience in the profession make any reference to his work unnecessary. The play will be put on this evening at Centreville.

Death of Mr. A. B. Cole.

Mr. Albert B. Cole died very suddenly at his residence on Broadway on Thursday evening, July 23rd, of a paralytic shock. Mr. Cole was a painter, and had been at the head of the painting department at the Woodstock Carriage Factory for about fifteen years. Though he had been in poor health and unable to work since Christmas by reason of a weak heart his death came as a terrible shock to his family. He leaves a widow, two sons, Harry and Archie, two daughters, Mrs. A. E. Denton and Miss Annie Cole. Mr. Cole was born at Kingston, Kings County, 59 years ago and came to Woodstock about 40 years ago where he has resided since. He was much respected by all who knew him.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

A Frederickton Banker Who Was Mistaken for President Roosevelt.

Mr. R. P. Foster, the genial and good looking manager of the Royal Bank of Canada in this city, bears a somewhat striking resemblance to President Roosevelt, and the likeness proved somewhat embarrassing to the modest banker one day last week. He happened to be standing near the B. and B. Club landing when two American ladies, who had been enjoying a canoeing trip under the guidance of Joe Paul, reached the spot, and one of the fair ones, rushing up to Mr. Foster, exclaimed, "Excuse me, sir, but are you not our president, Mr. Roosevelt?" The banker perceptibly colored at the compliment implied in the inquiry, but was able to explain that it was a case of mistaken identity. Apologies followed, and Mr. Foster confided the incident to some friends, with little expectation that it would get into print.—Fredrickton Herald.

Disastrous Fire.

On Monday afternoon about four o'clock a fire burst out in the ell of the residence of Roderick Neal, at Greenville in Richmond. The fire caught from a defective flue. A fierce wind was blowing in the direction of his barns and in a few minutes all his buildings were ablaze. The stock and farm machinery in the barns were saved, and all the furniture down stairs in the front of the house. All the furniture and other things in the upper story and down stairs in the ell were destroyed. In an hour from the time the fire caught the buildings were all burned to the ground. Mr. Neal had $1000 insurance, which will not begin to cover his loss.

Death of Mrs. Mary J. Sharp.

On July 15th. Mrs. Mary J. Sharp one of the oldest inhabitants of Grafton passed away at the age of 76 years. Her husband Eli Sharp, has been dead 36 years. Mrs. Sharp lived on the old homestead with her son Fred. Another son Hudson lives adjoining. There is one other son residing at Grafton; and one in Pennsylvania. Two daughters reside in Boston. Mrs. Sharp was a member of the Baptist church of which her husband was an honoured Deacon. Though subject for years to epilepsy she seemed to be better lately. She died suddenly from the disease. She was an exemplary christian woman. The funeral service was conducted at the homestead by her pastor Rev. Z. L. Fash. There was a large attendance. Mrs. Sharp had a large circle of friends and relatives, who will miss her genial presence very much.

Home-Making vs. Housekeeping.

Perhaps the most unfortunate result of our belated housekeeping methods is the fact that they are preventing women from preparing themselves for certain new duties which social changes are making an important part of home-making today. These changes, by increasing the dependence of the individual and of the family upon society, are making knowledge of social conditions an indispensable qualification for good home-making. If women are to secure this knowledge, they must have more time for studying and more time for active participation in work outside of the home than it is possible for them to secure under present conditions.

Take for example, the work of directing the education of a child—one of the most important of the home-maker's duties. This was once a comparatively simple matter, when possible careers were few and the means of preparation for life work even fewer. Now that possible fields for activity are multiplying, and educational institutions increasing in number and variety, the woman who would satisfactorily superintend the education of her child must herself have a broader knowledge of society, of its needs and opportunities, than she can obtain within the four walls of her home.

Again, the commodities which are used in the home were formerly, also, prepared in the home, and the woman who gave her attention exclusively to her household was the woman who was most likely to know when the health of her family was being endangered. Now most of the commodities used in the home are made far away from it, and the responsibility for their good quality is widely distributed. Now it is not the woman who gives her time exclusively to her home who is most likely to know whether or not the milk that she serves to her child has been adulterated, and whether or not the coat that she buys for him was made by the bedside of a smallpox patient. Nor is it this woman who is best prepared to ward off from the home the dangers which come from impure food and unsanitary conditions of preparation of the articles in common use.

Once there was no domestic service problem. Now this problem is hanging over the home and threatening its comfort and happiness. Its solution rests not with the woman who is able to see it only as it effects herself and her household, but with the woman who sees it in its broad industrial and social bearings.

Just as long as public opinion insists upon seeing in the varied activities of housekeeping ends in themselves, just so long will it run the risk of insisting upon them after they have become not only unnecessary to good home-making, but even impediments to it. Only when it sees in home the end, and in the material surroundings of home and in the work connected with it merely the means, will it have a conception of home-making adjustable to changing social conditions and favorable to the best interests of home itself.—Home Science Magazine.
