action are recognized by musicians
as the highest standard of piano excellence. They represent the "artist's ideal," as they are musically and mechanically perfect. The

Selection of the Breeding Boar.

The choice of the sire is perhaps the most important step in all breeding operations, says the Live Stock Commissioner, Mr. F. W. Hodson. The trite remark that "the sire is half the herd" is only part of the truth. He is much more than half of the herd, because, of the parents, he usually exerts the greater influence on the conformation of the offspring. This, of course, is true only when he is the more intensely bred. It is not enough that he be purebred; it is important that he come of a line of ancestry remarkable for uniformity and individual merit. If he be the chance result of a line of indiscriminate breeding, he is not likely to prove an impressive sire. His stock can scarcely fail to be very irregular in type. This point cannot well be overemphasized, for it is just here that the novice in breeding is most apt to make mistakes. It is a too common practice to select and buy breeding stock from among the winner at our exhibitions, taking care only to stipulate that they be eligible for registration. Frequently a phenomenal showyard animal is an accident of birth, and even though he be registered in the herd book, is none the less a "scrub" in point of breeding, and can reproduce his good qualities only by accident. It is unfortunately true that a certificate of registration is not always a certificate of merit. The only safe way to select breeding stock is to visit the long established herd of some breeder of repute, and buy after seeing the sire and dam, and if possible, the grand-sire and grand-dam of the animal selected. Choose a hog from a large even litter: fecundity is an hereditary trait, and it is essential to profitable hog raising; and the evenness of the litter is a valuable guaranty of the excellence of his breeding, and of his consequent prepotency.

The offspring of immature parents should seldom or never be used for breeding purposes. They are apt to be lacking in constitution and vigour: this is especially the case with the offspring of an immature dam. Few things will more quickly lead to the deterioration of a herd in size, vigour and fecundity, than the continued use of immature females.

In conformation the boar not only must be of the approved bacon type, but must have the distinct and unmistakable masculinity of appearance which is easily recognized but not described. Masculinity does not necessarily imply undue coarseness; it consists rather in a bold, fearless, "come on, who's afraid" expression of countenance than in any peculiarity of conformation. A certain amount of coarseness is unavoidable, especially in an aged boar, but he must not have such excessive roughness as would indicate poor feeding qualities, nor is it desirable that he be of extreme size. Mr. Sanders Spencer, the noted English breeder, says on this point,—"Although some persons make mere size a great point when choosing a boar, our experience leads us to consider this to be a mistake; a very large boar seldom lasts long: he becomes too heavy for the sows: he probably proves to be slow, and his litters few and small in numbers. A very large and heavy boar is also more likely to suffer from weakness of the spine or hind quarters, and he is frequently weak in his joints and crooked-legged. These latter failings should be specially avoided, as they are hereditary and will frequently crop up for several generations. Weakness of ankles and roundness of bone—two qualities which should be avoided in a sire—are often allied with great size. A medium-sized, compact boar, heavy in the hind quarters and light in the fore quarters, will frequently continue fruitful for at least twice as long as will the heavy-shouldered and coarse-boned boar. Nearly the whole of the most successful pigs have been on a small rather than a large scale."

PASSIVE RESISTANCE.

Something Like Anarchy in England.

A despatch from London says:—"Passive resistance as a policy has come to stay, and the government has for the first time in half a century to face something like anarchy in districts of law-abiding and God-fearing citizens. In Wirksworth, in Tunbridge Wells, and in Hastings, the auction of the goods of ratepayers who "conscientiously" refused to pay the school rate under the recent unpopular act, has provoked scenes of wild excitement among the usually sober Nonconformists, such as have not been witnessed in England for generations. When men like the Lord Mayor of Sheffield and the residents of respectable, not to say fashionable, towns, like Hastings and Tunbridge Wells, are joining in the movement, and when no respectable auctioneer can be got to conduct the sales, it is high time the government took some steps to prevent the spread of an agitation which, however noble it may seem from the Nonconformists' point of view, is a grave scandal and a reproach to the good name of law-abiding England. The "resisters" are growing in number and those who are not resisting, but who are coming to sympathize with the agitation as one making for church disestablishment, are also increasing considerably, thus adding to the gravity and difficulty which the Education Act has created for the government."

Some Witty Toasts.

A publisher once gave the following:
"Woman, the fairest work in all creation.
The edition is large and no man should be without a copy."

This is fairly seconded by a youth who, giving his distant sweetheart, said: "Delectable dear, so sweet that honey would blush in her presence and treacle stand appalled."

Further, in regard to the fair sex, we have: "Woman, she needs no eulogy; she speaks for herself." "Woman, the better half of man."

In regard to matrimony some bachelor once gave: "Marriage, the gate through which the happy lover leaves his enchanted ground and returns to earth."

At the marriage of a deaf and dumb couple some wit wished them "unspeakable bliss."

At a supper given to a writer of comedies a wag said: "The writer's very good health. May he live to be as old as his jokes."

From a law critic: "The bench and the bar. If it were not for the bar, there would be little use for the bench."

A celebrated statesman, while dining with a duchess on her 80th birthday, in proposing her health said:

"May you live, my lady duchess, until you begin to grow ugly."

"I thank you, sir," she said, "and may you long continue your taste for antiquities."

Nervous Dyspepsia.

Indigestion, Headache and Dizzy Spells the Result of Exhausted Nerves -- Lasting Cures Effected by

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

A certain amount of nervous energy is necessary to stimulate the digestive organs in their work. When the nerves are weakened and exhausted and nerve force lacking, or when nervous energy is consumed in excessive mental labor or over-exertion of other organs, digestion is impaired, and headaches and dizzy spells come on.

This is why so many brain workers, business and professional men and women, and others complain of indigestion, sleeplessness, and accompanying ills. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food permanently cures each and every ailment resulting from weak blood and exhausted nerves. It is the most satisfactory treatment obtainable for nervous dyspepsia and indigestion.

Mrs. S. Cole, Gibson, N. B., states—For years I have been a victim of severe nervousness and naturally suffered more or less from sleeplessness. At times I had severe headaches and my indigestion was bad. Though I tried several kinds of medicine I did not derive any benefit until I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Since I have used this preparation my nerves are strengthened, my digestion is good, the headaches are gone and I can rest and sleep well. In fact this treatment has benefited my whole system and I feel very much better.

Mrs. Wm. McAuley, 109 Hillyard street, St. John, N. B., states—My trouble was indigestion and I suffered a great deal from dizziness, headache and nervousness. It was not long after I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food before I noticed considerable improvement in my health and today I am glad to be able to say that my system is thoroughly restored, I have no headaches or dizzy spells and my digestion is all that could be desired. I heartily endorse this medicine.

Real Doctoring.

Doc Judson had never taken so much as a single course in medical study, but he was in greater demand than the regular practitioner of Crowfoot, who had a degree and a framed "diploma" in his office.

"I'd rather trust to Bill Judson's doctoring than any that's learned out o' medicine books," said Old Lady Simmons.

When pressed for a reason for this preference the old lady had one unflinching answer.

"When Doc was away one time I was took with rheumatism in my side, an' I had to let daughter Jane send for the diploma doctor. He give me medicines an' said the rheumatism would give way to 'em. It did give way leetle by leetle an' finally wore off, leaving me weak as a rag."

"Well, now, when I have one o' those spells an' Doc Judson tends me he comes in, gives one look at me, mixes up a glass o' his herb stuff, an' in less'n twelve hours he has that rheumatism h'isting all over me from head to feet, departing in a half dozen directions an' no chance for my mind to dwell on any one spot an' say, 'It's the wust thar.' That's what I call doctoring!"
