Two Scottish Highlanders, in Glasgow for the first time, were having a walk through the city. Turning a corner, they were much surprised to see a water cart wetting the street. Not having seen anything of the kind before, Tougal, under a mistaken idea, ran after the cart and cried to the driver: "Hey, man-hey, man, yer losin' a' yer water!" His friend annoyed at Tougal's want of knowledge, ran and caught him by the arm Bull three years old and up, 2 entries—1st no see it't to keep the laddies off the back of

Her Doctors Order. (The Sketch.)

At a dinner party one night Sir Andrew Clark noticed that the lady next to him at table declined a dish to which he helped himself plentifully.

He asked if she did not like it, as it was excellent. She replied:

"Oh, yes; I like it, but my physician forbids me to eat it."

"Stuff and ponsense," said Sir Andrew, "it would not hurt any one. Who is your physician?"

To which the lady, whom the medical magnate had forgotten, answered, with a demura twinkle in her eye:

"Sir Andrew Clark,"

An Inopportune Joke.

(M. A. P.)

The Dowager Countess of Maclesfield is a sister of Lord Stalbridge, who tells a good story concerning her. She sat at dinner one night next to Bishop Wiblerforce, who said to her in the course of their conversation, "I weigh exactly so much when I step out of my bath."

"Does that include the soapsuds?" enquired the countess. She had not the remotest notion at the moment that the good Bishop was generally termed by the irreverent "Soapy Sammy," and he knew it.

The neatest, cleanest, and most convenient receptacles for supplies of almost every kind, cereals, rice, coffee, tea, sugar, etc., are common glass fruit jars with screw tops. Ants and beetles will shun a pantry where this system is followed, and it has the special advantage of keeping the cook or the housekeeper informed concerning her stock, the transparent jars showing at a glance exactly how much of each article is at hand.
