The Village Sunday.

The "Book of Sports" plays a large part in the history of England under the Stuarts. Puritans denounced it as part of an attempt to force upon them customs which suggested Roman Catholicism. A writer in the National Review thinks there was a good deal of common sense and liberality in it, if we may judge by this passage: "For his good people's lawful recreation, His Majesty's pleasure was, that, after the end of Divine Service, his good people were not to be disturbed, letted, or discouraged from any lawful recreation, such as dancing, either men or women; archery for men, leaping, vaulting, or any other such harmless recreation; nor from having of May-games, Whitsun, dales, morrice-dances, and the setting up of May-poles, or other sports, therewith used, so that the same be had in convenient time without neglect or impediment of Divine Service. . . . And the present recreations are forbidden to any who, although conform in religion, are not present in the church at the service of God before going to the said recreations."

The writer in The National Review pleads for a brightening of the English village Sunday. He says that the much-dreaded Continental Sunday would be a vast improvement on it. "It strikes us that if we could stoop a little and take what our American cousins call a few 'pointers' from the Continental Sunday, make our Sunday more of a period of recreation, allow the pent-up and repressed spirits and energies of a naturally spirited and energetic people full play, or at any rate fuller play, on the very day when they are the most pent up and repressed; were our country lads and boys allowed more liberally to help each other in the work of passing time by engaging in hearty, honest sport, instead of being driven to invent expedients for killing time, there would be less mischief and blackguardism perpetrated on Sundays than there is."

The "upper classes" in England play golf and tennis and croquet on Sundays. The villager, he thinks, would be better employed playing cricket and football than doing as he is now obliged to do—eat his extra Sunday dinner, fill his pipe, sprawl in a ditch, or simlessly wander about the fields, or spit over the bridge, all the while talking rubbish or worse until the public house opens, when he repairs thereto and there remains until closing time. No doubt the idea of cricket-playing on Sunday would shock a good many people. But when we remember that taverns are open in England on Sunday, the argument that wholesome exercise is better than drinking has a good deal of force.

History Repeats Itself.

From The Chicago Tribune.

"Daughter, you ought not to wear those high-heeled shoes. They will make corns on your feet."

"How do you know, mamma?"

"By experience. I used to wear them when I was a girl."

"Did grandma tell you they would make corns on your feet if you wore them?"

"Yes."

"How did she know?"

"She found out by experience, just as I did."

"Haden't she any mamma to warn her against wearing them?"

"Oh, Yes."

"But she wore them, just the same?"

"To be sure."

"And you did too?"

"Yes; that is what I am telling you."

"Well, if I ever have any daughters, I'll have to be able to give them a warning against high-heeled shoes from my own experience, won't I?"

[Puts them on.]

Honest Maple Sugar Wanted.

A petition, largely signed by farmers and maple sugar makers in Ontario and Quebec, is being prepared for submission to the Government at Ottawa asking for proper protection for the maple sugar industry of this country. The petitioners ask that legislation be passed to prevent the adulteration of maple products, or at least to have adulterated articles stamped as such. If the present legislation in regard to adulterated food products be considered sufficient for the purpose then inspectors should be appointed to insure a strict enforcement of the law and the prosecution of all offenders, both in the country and town. The petitioners further recommend that competent instructors be appointed to demonstrate throughout the country the correct method of production.

In the preamble to the petition it is stated; that the adulterated article bears no label or other distinguishable mark to enable it to be detected from the genuine article, which is greatly injuring the sale of the genuine article; that the practice of adulteration has grown to an alarming extent in recent years; that the industry, if properly protected, would be a source of great revenue to the country; that the industry at present is only in its infancy, since a large proportion of the maple trees cannot be worked to advantage, owing to the low prices at which the adulterated article can be sold; that there is a continually growing demand for genuine maple sugar; that the industry is one that can be followed by nearly every farmer in the maple districts with profit; and that the industry is one deserving of encouragement and protection by the Government of the Dominion.

We quite sympathize with the petitioners in their efforts to stamp out the maple sugar fraud, which has been a glaring one for years, and we trust their efforts will meet with the success they deserve. In no other Canadian industry is fraud and adulteration so openly practiced as in connection with maple sugar. In many sections it has reached such a pass with maple sugar makers that as soon as the season approaches it is the usual thing to get in a stock of common sugar to help out the product of the maple. We question if even one-tenth of the so called maple sugar offered for sale is genuine and people have become so suspicious that they don't buy any, or in only very limited quantities. It is time something were done to stop this fraud and we would advise every farmer interested in honest maple products to make sure that his name is attached to this petition. There is no room in this country for adulterated food products of any kind.—Toronto Farming World.

Nervous Dyspepsia.

Indigestion, Headache and Dizzy
Spells the Result of Exhausted
Nerves—Lasting Cure Effected by
Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

A certain amount of nervous energy is necessary to stimulate the digestive organs in their work. When the nerves are weakened and exhausted and nerve force lacking, or when nervous energy is consumed in excessive mental labor or over-exertion of other organs, digestion is impaired, and headaches and dizzy spells come.

This is why so many brain workers, business and professional men and women, and others complain of indigestion, sleeplessness, and accompanying ills. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food permanently cures each and every ailment resulting from weak blood and exhausted nerves. It is the most satisfactory treatment obtainable for nervous dyspepsia and indigestion.

Mrs. S. Cole, Gibson, N. B., states:—For years I have been a victim of severe nervousness and naturally suffered more or less from sleeplessness. At times I had severe headaches and my digestion was bad. Though I tried several kinds of medicine I did not derive any benefit until I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Since I have used this preparation my nerves are strengthened, my digestion is good, the headaches are gone and I can rest and sleep well. In fact this treatment has benefited my whole system and I feel very much better.

Mrs. Wm. McAuley, 109 Hillyard street, St. John, N. B., states:—My trouble was indigestion and I suffered a great deal from dizziness, headache and nervousness. It was not long after I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food before I noticed considerable improvement in my health and today I am glad to be able to say that my system is thoroughly restored. I have no headaches or dizzy spells and my digestion is all that could be desired. I can heartily endorse this medicine.

A Mistake.

The manager of one of Washington's large department stores was at his desk, deep in thought over some intricate business problem of the day.

Not far away stood the young woman who has charge of the sheet music department, carrying on an animated conversation over the 'phone.

When the manager came out of his reverie his attention was arrested by scraps of conversation from the small box like arrangement that holds the telephone.

"I love you, dear, and only you—I'm wearing my heart away—can't live on love?—I never was hurt until then—I've a longing in my heart for you, and maybe when the harvest days are over I'll think of you—dreamy eyes—just kiss me good-bye—yes, a dream of the golden past—good-bye, forever."

Before he had recovered from his astonishment and wonder the young woman hung up the receiver and stepped out of the telephone box.

"Miss Jones, come here," he commanded, sternly. "It's strictly against the rules of this store for salespeople to use the 'phone for personal business. I must forbid you to do it any more. Hereafter, when you wish to make love to a young man, don't do it over the telephone, where every one can hear everything you have to tell him. Now go to your own department."

"Why, Mr. Brown," she answered, "I was simply ordering some new sheet music, which we need from the publisher."

He hasn't stopped apologizing yet.—Washington 'Star.'

THE WOODSTOCK RANGE.

The Methodist Parsonage, Jacksonville, Carleton Co., N. B., Oct. 11th, 1902.
Messrs. Small & Fisher, Woodstock:

Gentlemen,—After upwards of thirty years experience with a large variety of cook stoves, none has ever given the satisfaction derived from your "Woodstock". It is a perfect heater and baker, keeps the water tank hot day and night, with less fuel than any stove we have ever had in our parsonages.

Yours faithfully,

JOHN C. BERRIE.
