

Thorough in Action

ON THE DIGESTIVE AND EXCRETORY SYSTEMS.

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS ARE LASTINGLY BENEFICIAL—RE- MOVING THE CAUSE OF DISEASE.

The symptoms of dyspepsia, biliousness, liver complaint, kidney disease and rheumatism point to the presence of poisonous matter in the system.

The first thing Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills do is to thoroughly cleanse the system of this waste matter by causing free action of the kidneys, liver and bowels.

This result is not brought about in a harsh and irritating way, but is naturally and thoroughly accomplished.

The flow of bile from the liver aids digestion and ensures continued regular action of the bowels; the free action of the kidneys removes the uric acid, which would otherwise cause rheumatism or stone in the bladder.

Digestion, assimilation and the removing of waste matter are carried out without pain or discomfort, and there is no foothold for contagious or other disease.

There is no other preparation possessing the unique and combined action, and none which can possibly reach such complicated diseases as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. C. F. Immel, shoemaker, Western Hill, St. Catharines, Ont., states: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills regularly for some time and consider that they are unsurpassed for torpid liver, headache and constipation, as there were my troubles. I used many remedies, but got no relief until I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and a few boxes of this preparation have entirely cured me. I am not in the habit of endorsing any medicine but in this case I cannot speak too highly in praise of Dr. Chase's Pills for what they have done for me."

Why Some Women Fall as Wives.

The first reason why women fail as wives is because marriage has never yet been esteemed one of the learned professions which only a highly qualified individual is fitted to practice. On the contrary, it is held to be a kind of trade that any girl can pick up at a minute's notice, and carry on successfully without the slightest previous knowledge or training. No girl would be conceited enough to think that she could practice medicine or law or dentistry without devoting years to its study. She wouldn't even dream of hiring out as a stenographer without first learning how to make pot-hooks, but she blithely and cock-surely tackles the most difficult and complicated job existing—that of being a wife—on the fallacious assumption that a knowledge of how to manage a man and make him happy and comfortable comes to a woman by inspiration, and not through preparation.

When the average girl marries she does not even know how to make a man comfortable, and yet, unromantic as this may seem the very foundation of domestic happiness has to be laid in bodily ease. Nobody can be sentimental on an empty stomach, and bad cooking will kill the tenderest affection in time. Love is choked to death on tough steak as well as slain by unfaithfulness, and many a young husband's illusions about his bride have been drowned in watery soup. The first inkling that young Benedict gets that his Angelina is not all his fondest fancy painted her, and that he has missed his affinity, is when he has to sit down to ill-cooked and ill-served meals; and you may be very sure that if there were no bad dinners there would be precious few men wandering away from home. . . . To be a good wife is not an easy task. It is one of the most strenuous undertakings on earth. It requires labor and skill and care and tact and unselfishness, but it is the kind of service a woman agrees to give when she gets married. If she doesn't like the price, she can stay single.

Russia's Beast of Burden.

St. Petersburg correspondent Springfield Republican: Modern Russia is a complex commingling of peoples, much as America is. She has a strong mixture of European, Asian, and African races, scattered broadcast over the land; and I am told that the Russian Empire contains more than 65 independent racial groups. Russia is no longer a half-fathomed mystery, remote from the tracks of the traveller, for she is in touch with all the the countries of Europe through a network of railways and telegraphs. Russia, like India is a land of countless isolated villages and a few great cities. Many million of moujiks live in these lonely villages. The Russian moujik is verily unique among the peasants of the world. He is a sort of primitive son of the soil, who accepts discomfort, as he does poverty, with a stolid indifference, emotionless as if life had never appealed to him as a desirable gift—or as if the beauty of the sky, sea, and earth was not his heritage.

Watch a crowd of Russian peasants, whether on pleasure or sorrow bent; there is never the least passionate violence visible, as one sees amidst Latin crowds. The crowd, be it at the railway station, or at some pilgrimage church, passes slowly, doggedly along, hardly turning to the right or left. There is no talking, no chatting, no laughing or joking; they are intent on the patient fulfilment of some prescribed duty. At the churches they wait patiently to kiss the sacred "ikons," every face expressive of a duty to be accomplished. The face of the moujik is like an open page of a book; one reads thereon a gentle, stolid subjection to the powers that be. Even the moujik's body denotes a lack of the simplest animal joys.

Verdict Against Goliath.

A case came before the Children's Court recently, says a writer in the New York Times, which might have well been styled Goliath versus David. It was brought by the parents of a big, hulking East Side bully against a small boy, who, they said, had beaten him shamefully.

The bully was nineteen years old, and for years had been a pest in the vicinity of his home. He bullied and tormented the small boys till they ran at the sight of him. At last he was set upon and thoroughly trounced, and his enraged parents hailed into court the small boy who, they said, was the offender. He was accused of assault and battery.

The lawyer for the defense was a quiet, confident young chap, who allowed the bully to tell his story and leave the stand without being cross-examined. Other witnesses for the plaintiff also went unquestioned. When the bully's lawyer rested his case nothing had been done for the defence. The small boy's chances appeared poor. But his lawyer had his plans well laid.

"Your honor," he said, "I shall call but two witnesses, and shall ask each of them two questions. I desire to call both the plaintiff and the defendant."

The bully shuffled to the witness-chair and was sworn.

"How old are you?" asked the lawyer.

"Sixteen," lied the bully.

"How much do you weigh?"

"One hundred and seventy." That appeared truthful, and the bully was told to step aside and make room for the defendant.

"How old are you?" asked the lawyer of the small boy, in turn.

"Thirteen," was the prompt reply.

"And how much do you weigh?"

"Seventy-five pounds," replied the defendant.

Every one in the court-room had caught the joke by this time, and those not enlisted on the bully's side laughed.

"The case is dismissed," said the judge, and the decision rested with David.

The Evil and Its Cure.

No punishment is too severe for a ballot stealer. When we consider the years of agitation spent and the thousands of lives sacrificed to gain the franchise for mankind, the ballot-stealer should be classed with the worst of criminals. But he is not. When last winter several men in Toronto were given light sentence for ballot box stuffing they were pardoned after serving a few days.

Why are men so indifferent regarding political matters to-day, and why are men so ready to accept money for their votes? Because there are no great principles to be voted upon. When you find a man enthusiastic in present-day elections, nine chances in ten he either is or wants to be a grafter. We have it from a reliable source that in the recent Dominion elections one man in Hastings was approached by fully 25 persons, seeking money for their votes. We heard a man, all of 70 years of age, publicly declare that he would not vote unless he was paid for it. We heard several young men who were going to cast their first vote intimate the same. Abraham Lincoln and his party stood for a principle to benefit his brother man, and after a few years' agitation they won. If some party in Canada will stand for some great principle that will benefit everyone, that party will win, for when a man votes on principle, money is no object. That kind of a party will show itself in no distant day and then this political debauchery will be swept from the land.—Hastings Star.

A member of the faculty of the University of Chicago tells of the sad case of a young woman from Indiana who was desirous of attaining social prominence in Chicago. Soon after her arrival there she made the acquaintance of a student to whom she took a great fancy. Evidently it was at this time that she realized for the first time her early education had been neglected, for she said to a friend: "I suppose that, as he is a college man, I'll have to be a careful what I say. What'll I talk about to him?" The friend suggested history as a safe topic. To her friend's astonishment, she took the advice seriously, and shortly commenced in earnest to "bone up" in English history. When the young man called the girl listened for some time with ill-concealed impatience to his talk of football, outdoor meets, dances, etc., but finally she decided to take the matter in her own hands. She had not done all that reading for nothing; so, a pause in the conversation affording the desired opportunity, she suddenly exclaimed, with considerable vivacity: "Wasn't it awful about Mary, Queen of Scots?" "Why, what's the matter?" stammered the student, confused. "My gracious!" almost yelled the girl from Indiana, "didn't you know? Why, the poor thing had her head cut off!"

Treat every man as a gentleman and you will be regarded as one yourself. Act as if you thought other men were curs, and some day you will be treated like a yellow dog.

1,800,000 People

Have Asked Us to Buy Them a 50c. Bottle of Liquozone.

We offer to buy the first bottle of Liquozone, and give it free to each sick one who asks it. And we have spent over one million dollars to announce and fulfill this offer. Our object has been to let Liquozone itself show what it can do. A test is better than testimonials, better than argument. In one year, 1,800,000 people have accepted this offer. They have told others what Liquozone does, and the others told others. The result is that millions now use it. It is more widely employed than any medicine ever was—more widely prescribed by the better physicians. And your own neighbors—wherever you are—can tell you of people whom Liquozone has cured.

Not Medicine.

Liquozone is not made by compounding drugs, nor is there alcohol in it. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. This process has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research.

The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease. It is this fact that gives Liquozone its worth to humanity. And that worth is so great that, after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, we paid $100,000 for the American rights.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.
