Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Tripping Tongues.

To those who saw something sinister in a recent incident at Ottawa the following from The Daily Graphic will be of interest:—"The tongue is a creature of habit, as public speakers sometimes find to their cost. The other day Mr. Reid, the Australian statesman, in the midst of an earnest speech in the Federal Legislature, spoiled a passionate period by addressing his hearers as 'ladies and gentlemen,' to the general entertainment. It is curious to note that in the same debate Mr. Watson, the new head of the Government repeated the famous slip made by Disraeli shortly after his accession to power, when he referred to his defeated rival, Gladstone, as 'the Prime Minister.' Mr. Balfour is a careful speaker, as well as an old Parliamentary hand, yet he addressed the House of Commons as 'My Lords' in one of the debates on the education bill, and only a few weeks ago upset the equanimity of the House with a 'bull' of the purest Hibernian quality. Mr. Broadhurst contributed last week towards an anthology of such verbal mishaps when, in criticising the licensing bill, he invited the House to consider the inconvenience that might arise 'if a man were out for a walk with his sweet-heart and were met by his wife.' The hilarity of the House prevented any exposition of how the bill might be amended so as to meet the requirements of so tragic a situation, which is to be regretted, since this particular 'lapses lingu' differs from most of its kind in baffling all attempts at explanation."

CHILDHOOD DANGERS.

How the Heavy Death Rate Among Children [May be Reduced.

The death rate among infants and young children during the hot weather is simply appalling. For example, in the city of Montreal alone in one week, the death of one hundred and six children was recorded. Most of these deaths were due to stomach and bowel troubles, which are always alarmingly prevalent during the hot weather, and most, if not all of these precious little lives might have been saved, if the mother had at hand a safe and simple remedy to check the trouble at the outset. As a life saver among infants and young children, Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in every home. These Tablets prevent and cure diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera infantum and all forms of stomach trouble. If little ones are given the Tablets occasionally they will prevent these troubles and keep the children healthy. The Tablets cost only 25 cents a box, and a box of Baby's Own Tablets may save a little life. They are guaranteed to contain no opiate or harmful drug, and may be given with safety and advantage to a new born babe or well grown child. If your dealer does not keep the tablets, send the price to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and a box will be sent you by mail post paid.

The Littlest Souls.

"Ho!" said Satan. "Whose soul is that you fellows is all sweatin' an' a-crackin' of your muscles over as you bring him fresh to hades?" "It belonged to a poor truckman," said one of th' pantin' imps as soon as he could git his breath, an' a-wipin' of his brow, "who died swervin' his team to save a child; but he'd done a mixed-ale murder years ago." "My! but it's a real big soul," Satan said. "You'll have to lock it in that mammoth hot-box I had built for John Paul Jones before I made a trusty of him. It's the very biggest hot-box in all hades." They started out to do it. Just then a small devil come a-runnin' up, light footed an' quite merry. "I got some, too," he squeaked. "How many?" asked Satan, grinnin', an' lookin' some surprised to think that such a little chap could carry anything of sech an importance as a soul. "How many have you got?" he says, smilin' at him. "I've got most a dozen," says th' little imp; "an' I could brought you sixteen more if they hadn't had good doctors an' got well. I've got these in the smallest pocket of my outgrown vest." "Whose be they?" asked Satan. "Oh, they're jest th' cunningest an' th' littlest souls!" th' tiny imp replied. They belong to presidents that was killed by a fallin' roof at a convention of th' trusts." Satan grinned and hollered out to th' boss of th' structural hot iron workers, who was waitin' for more orders, "Never mind this job, you ain't needed on it. Jest tell the solderer's union to make me a nice tin pill-box an, heat it up white hot an' quick. Tell 'em to make th' joints tight." An' it's to be real small, only big enough to hold a dozen high financial souls—but make it strong, for badness knows I don't want them little insect's a-runnin' loose here. They might corner all my coal!" The box was made an' the souls inserted by a chap with little fingers an' small tweezers. When th' lid was on, Satan held it to his head and shook it. "My! how them souls do rattle round in there!" he said.—[Judge.

"No, sah" was the reply, "the Squire's done got too old."

"Well, then, I suppose the young man has succeeded to his father's law business?"

"No, sah."

"What is the young man's occupation then?"

"Husbandry, sah."

"What, farming! I didn't suppose he liked work enough for that."

"He don't. I means he married a gal, and don't do nothin' but tend ter her."

"Yes, I know," persisted his interrogator, "but what is the occupation by which he gets money."

"Nothin' but just husbandry," was the reply. "The gal's got the money."
