Dr. Sheard of the Toronto Board of Health says that these outbreaks are more frequent in the valleys of rivers than in any other region. There was an outbreak in the valley of the Grand River some time ago. Toronto is and has been singularly free from the disease, Dr. Sheard being of opinion that no death from this cause has been registered since the new year. Physicians everywhere will await with interest the outcome of the New York Board of Health investigations.

Johnny—Paw, what's the rest of that quotation beginning "Truth is mighty?"
Father—"Scarce," I reckon.

WOODSTOCK, N. B., APRIL 5, 1905.

Forgot her Overshoes.

"Now everybody take a good look at me and tell me if I'm really all right before I descend," said a Chicago matron to a group of friends after she had removed her wraps in the upper rooms of her hostess' home.

"Why, yes, to be sure, you are," said a friend.

"Well," said the matron, "I always like to be sure. I will never forget an experience I had shortly after I was married. We had gone as bride and groom into a little city down in the State. You know how those small towns are—it's easier for that rich man to get through the needle's eye than it is for outsiders to break into the little exclusive home sets, and Jack and I were particularly delighted one day to receive an invitation to a ball to be given at the very swellest home in the city. They knew how to do things down there, and these people lived in princely style. Of course, we were exceedingly anxious to make a good impression. I got out my white satin wedding gown, removed the lace yoke, pinned a priceless lace bertha, which was a wedding gift, about my shoulders and felt pleased with myself and the world. You know how good you do feel when you're conscious of the fact that your costume is without a flaw as to taste. Well, it had been snowing, and Jack insisted upon my drawing on a pair of red flannel-lined overshoes—the regular storm variety, you know—over my white satin slippers, that my feet might not get cold in the carriage. I didn't happen to have a pair of carriage shoes. My heart was beating a bit of a tattoo when we entered, for I did so want to do my best. I went up to the dressing-room, removed my wraps, spent no end of time putting final touches to my hair, and then descended to meet Jack in the hall. It seemed to me I could feel every eye on me as we walked the full length of that drawing-room to the receiving line, but I just supposed that I was self-conscious. Then we wandered about and finally sat down. Unwittingly I crossed my feet and almost immediately Jack clutched my arm and uttered a low but frantic:

"Heavens, Mary! Look at your feet!"
"I glanced down. From under my white satin gown—and it wasn't the full kind of skirts that are worn today, but the kind which fell straight and tight, giving full view to the feet every time a step was taken—from under that gorgeous gown peeped out two big, cloth, red flannel lined storm overshoes. I started for the dressing room, but in all my experience I can't remember one that equals my walk back across that drawing-room to the stairs."

The Fight Between A Commonwealth And A Trust

A battle is being waged in Kansas which rivals in importance the struggle between the free soil and slavery parties of fifty years ago. The present conflict is between the State Legislature on the one side and the Standard Oil monopoly on the other, Kansas is a large oil producing State, and the Standard Oil Company succeeded in crushing out competition. To give the oil producers relief the Legislature has passed a law providing for establishment of an oil refinery owned and operated by the State. The Standard Oil Company has retaliated by closing up its refinery in Kansas, but its action appears to have stimulated the Kansas Legislature to more aggressive action. On the one side is a corporation whose wealth is equal to that of three-fourths of all the farmers in Ontario; on the other is an independent commonwealth. The struggle will be watched with interest by a whole continent, and the outcome may have the most far-reaching consequences.

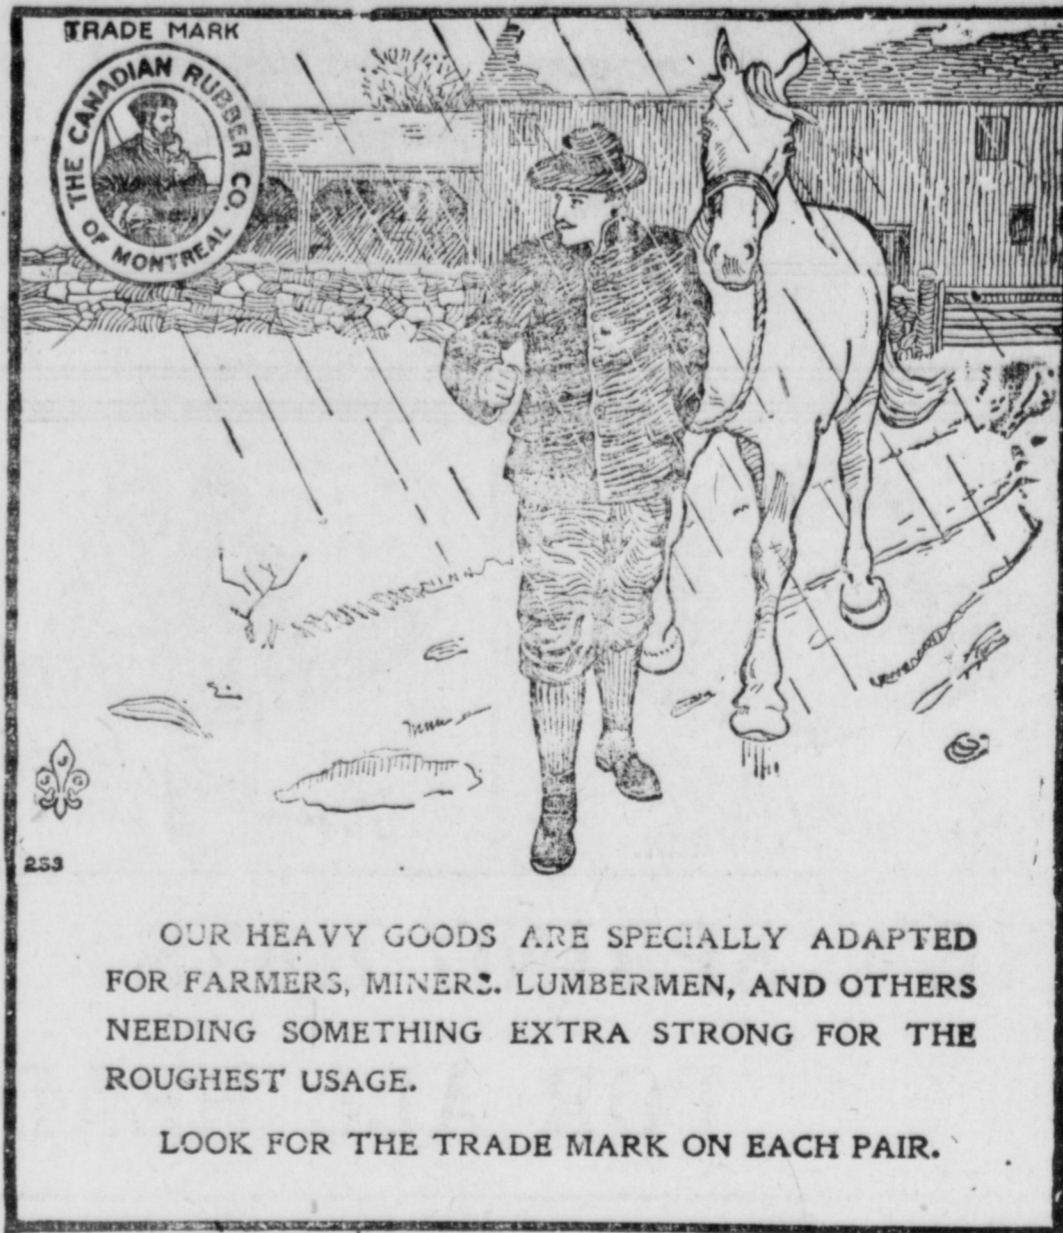

Wit of an Austrian Bishop.

(From the 'Strand Magazine.')

A certain Bishop, happily still with us, though retired from the cares of his colonial diocese, was famous throughout Australia no less for his quaint conceits than for his spiritual vigor and eloquence.

When one of the clergy described a wealthy parishioner as a careless, indifferent sort of man, who cared only for his garden during the day and his billiard room at night, he said: 'Garden! Billiards! Don't call him careless; he evidently minds his peas and cuss.'

To the rude question of a dissipated passenger on board ship, 'Why do you wear that thing?' (a cross), he replied: 'For the same reason that you wear a red nose—as a mark of my occupation.'

Was The Real Bad Man.

(From 'Fuel.')

Prof. O. L. Walker, the Government's irrigation expert has travelled over almost every foot of American soil, and in this way has gathered together many reminiscences of odd places and odd persons.

'A vanishing type,' said Prof. Walker recently, 'is the bad man of the Middle West. We rarely meet with him now. He is almost extinct.'

It was some years ago that I came upon my last bad man. He sat on a small stone under a tree.

"'House!" the bad man snorted. "Do ye think I'm one of that sort? I sleep in the prairie. I eats raw buffalo and I drinks out of the Mississippi."

Piles

To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 60c a box, at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & Co., Toronto.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

It is reported that one newly married lady kneads bread with her gloves on. The incident is peculiar but there are others. The editor of this paper kneads bread with his shoes on; he kneads bread with shirt on; he kneads bread with his pants on, and unless some of the delinquent subscribers of this paper pay up before long he will knead bread without so much as anything on, and this is no garden of Eden either in the winter time. —Oklahoma Daily Wave.

IDEAL BONDS

Have you time to investigate the "Ideal Income Bonds" of the

LONDON LIFE?

SATISFACTION.—They are in every way deemed MORE SATISFACTORY and desirable than bonds, stocks, houses or debentures.
PROTECTION.—They afford better and MORE COMPLETE PROTECTION than any other system yet devised.

FOR HUSBAND, WIFE AND CHILDREN.—The same income that is payable to the husband for life will also be payable to the wife for life if she is the same age. If older the income will be larger; if younger the income will be proportionately smaller. After the death of the husband and wife the residue of the Bond goes to the children.

$450.00—Per year will be the INCOME PAYABLE on $10,000 bond maturing after 45 years of age.

$470.00—Per year will be the INCOME PAYABLE on $10,000 maturing after age 50.

$500.00—Per year will be the INCOME PAYABLE on $10,000 bond maturing after 55 years of age.

$540.00—Per year will be the INCOME PAYABLE on a $10,000 bond maturing after 60 years of age.

$600.00—Per year will be the INCOME PAYABLE on a $10,000 bond maturing after 65 years of age.

$680.00—Per year will be the INCOME PAYABLE on a $10,000 bond maturing after 70 years of age.

TRUSTEES.—It is not necessary to appoint a Trust Company to administer these bonds as the LONDON LIFE becomes your trustee under Government supervision.

IDEAL INCOME BOND BOOKLETS.—Booklets explaining advantages of these Bonds mailed to any address. Apply to,
