

WOODSTOCK, N. B., MARCH 22, 1905.

REASON No 11
WHY YOU SHOULD USE
Red Rose Tea

Because it is always fresh and sweet. My teas are shipped to St. John direct from where they grow, instead of being imported from London, where teas often lie in warehouse for several months. The sales of Red Rose Tea are so large that any one lot of tea seldom remains on hand more than a few weeks; fresh lots arrive by every steamer. Then, in the grocery store, Red Rose Tea is never dead stock. Except where being first introduced, the demand is such that each shipment is sold in a very few weeks. From start to finish, Red Rose Tea is handled so that the consumer is sure to get it while it is fresh and sweet.

Still Safe.
A well-known and very serious-minded citizen confesses that the most intimate friends of his childhood were two cast-iron Hessian soldiers that made the "fire-dogs" of the sitting-room. He told them all his secrets, and went to them every morning the first thing on entering the room, to see if they had moved out of their "first position"; and his wonder was as great as his relief to find they never had. The New York Tribune tells a story of another little boy, a negro, who went often to a public library, and always asked for the same book. He seemed to enjoy it immensely, and one day an attendant followed him to an alcove, where she found him, the book open before him, looking at the picture of an old man, also colored, being chased by a bull. A wide grin had illumined the little fellow's face. "What's the joke?" asked the attendant. He pointed to the picture and chuckled. "He ain't ketch'd him!" he explained delightedly. "He ain't ketch'd him yet!"

Friday Vizer, a familiar negro about town in a certain part of Mississippi, had been found dead, and he, being a member of no church or lodge—very unusual for a negro—there was no one to pray for his soul in the great beyond. A few old intimates, however, carried the body to the cemetery in a rude pine coffin, and Bob McRaven, one of the number, an old "befo'-de-wah ducky," was called upon for a few remarks. Bob removed his hat and stepped reverently and sadly toward the open grave, and in solemn, funeral tones, said: "Friday Vizer, you is gone. We hopes you is gone whar we specks you ain't!"

EDITORS
Editors is men which aint got anny soap job i guess, my Uncle is a editor and they have thare furniture to pay for but he is a editor of a little paper on the big papers they pay for thare furniture befoar they git it. They are 3 kinds of editors:

1. boss editors.
 2. other editors.
 3. spoarting editors.
- i would like to be the spoarting editor bekaus he gits into all the fights and ball gains free and the other editors pay when thay go but thay doant go thay aint got time. The boss editor is the best job for munny. editors is pretty hard to lick thay doant git licked much. Once my Pa tried to lick a editor but got licked hisself and came home with a eye all black and Ma said it serve yu rite trying to tak away the freedom of the Press.

PALM GARDENS.

palm gardens is nice places to go to when yu want a nice place to go. All the people that go to the palm gardens behave nice but sum behave nicer than others. I only been in the palm gardens 3 times, but when I gro up I am going 3 times a day anyway. I like to sit under the palms and heer the musick and watch the waiters talking Tipps I wish i was a waiter so i could git all them Tipps and when I got rich I would have a palm garden too.

1. night Pa and Ma and me went to a palm garden. Ma drank 2 glasses of soda and i drank 1 glass of soda and Pa drank 14'of sum kind of drink he called them eyeballs or sumthing. I guess bekaus they made his eyeballs stick out and then Ma said Well come on home now yu have made a site of yusef be foar all our friends and when we got home they had a dandy scrap.

Heroic Treatment.

Wise mothers do not bring up their children by exact rule. Like the mikado of light opera fame, they endeavor instead "to make the punishment fit the crime," when punishment seems an unavoidable part of education, as it sometimes does. Mrs. Crosby was much distressed by her small son's habit of fighting. He came home from school frequently with his jacket torn and with telltale patches of crimson on his face.

No amount of serious reasoning or stern reprimands appeared to change his ways, and Mrs. Crosby was searching her mind for some method of stopping pugilistic tendencies when an unexpected opportunity offered itself.

She was sitting in her upper window one afternoon, looking down on the sidewalk, when she saw her son approach a boy about his own size, and demand in a lordly way an orange which the boy was just beginning to peel. The owner of the orange was reluctant to part with it, and the young highwayman had no miud to talk him into it; instead, he struck the boy with his sturdy fist, and knocked the orange out of his hand. In a moment the blow was returned, and Mrs. Crosby noted, with rather painful satisfaction that the boy, although less rugged-looking than her own son, was trained in boxing.

She suppressed her natural desire to put a stop to the fight, and with as much composure as she could muster, saw her son receive a thorough trouncing. When at last both the victor and the victim seemed satisfied, and the stranger started to regain his orange, which had fallen on the grass, Mrs. Crosby leaned out of the open window so that the recent combatants could see her. She threw a quarter toward the owner of the orange and said, most graciously, "Please take this, and thank you so much for whipping my son. He needed it very badly."

The boys were equally surprised, but their sensations otherwise were entirely different. One grinned happily. The other went slowly into the house as sore in spirit as he was in body and if he ever fought after that it was only when battle was forced upon him.

Street Gowns.

Bright colors and light colors are very popular, and never before have there been seen (that is, for many a year) such bright blues, bright reds, and bright browns as are now worn. It is a dangerous thing, generally speaking, to advocate any conspicuous colour, unless a woman has an unusually large wardrobe. There are many times when wearing too bright a gown is in exceedingly bad taste, besides which constantly wearing the same gown of a conspicuous colour is not satisfactory. Therefore it is best to choose carefully, unless one can have more than the one gown. A bright brown or blue is safer than red, while a black with bright trimmings is best of all. Just now there are more exquisite shades of gray and tan made up in light cloth, in soft silk, and in veiling or voile as it is now called, this is really a new material this year, so absolutely different is it in its weave from the old fashioned veiling.

The Greater Curiosity.

One day at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition a countryman from Arkansas appeared on the "Pike," says the Arkansas Globe before a building in which some elk were exhibited. He was attended by a large assortment of boys and girls and a woman in a sunbonnet.

"I'd like to go in there," he said to the barker, "but it would be mean to go in without my family, and I cannot afford to pay for my wife and seventeen children." The barker stared at him in amazement. "Are all those your children?" he gasped. "Every one," said the man from Arkansas. "You wait a minute," said the barker. "I'm going to bring the elk out and let them see you-all."
