Centreville.

The ceremonial laying of the corner stone of the new Baptist church took place on Monday last at three o'clock, p. m., in the presence of a large number of men gathered to witness the important rite. The order of the proceedings were as follows:—A hymn was sung, a portion of scripture read and a prayer offered by Rev. Mr. Hayward. Rev. Mr. Freeman then gave a historical sketch of the church for the past sixty-two years. In the year 1843 the Centreville Baptist church was first organized by Rev. Mr. Northrup with a very small membership, today the resident membership numbers one hundred and fifty. Mr. Sherwood one of the building committee read a short address at the close of which he gave a trowel to the wife of Rev. Mr. Freeman and informed her that she had been chosen to perform the rite which she did with such credit to herself that she met with hearty approval on every hand. Then speeches were made by Rev. Mr. Turner, Hayward, Simonson, Cahill and Freeman and also by Messrs. H. H. McCain and G. W. White.

SAFETY FOR CHILDREN.

Mothers should never give their little ones a medicine that they do not know to be absolutely safe and harmless. All so-called soothing medicines contain poisonous opiates that stupefy the helpless little one without curing its ailments. Baby's Own Tablets is the only medicine for infants and young children that gives the mother a positive guarantee that it contains no opiate or harmful drug. Milton L. Hersey, M.Sc., (McGill University), has analyzed these Tablets and says: "I hereby certify that I have made a careful analysis of Baby's Own Tablets, which I personally purchased in a drug store in Montreal, and the said analysis has failed to detect the presence of any opiate or narcotic in them." This means that mothers can give their little ones these Tablets with an assurance that they will do good—that they cannot possibly do harm. The Tablets cure indigestion, colic, constipation, diarrhoea, simple fever, teething troubles and all minor ailments. Sold by druggists everywhere or sent by mail at 25 cents a box.

The House of Rothschild.

An extremely interesting article on 'The Empire of Rothschild,' by David Graham Phillips, has appeared in the 'Cosmopolitan.' 'The basis on which the family have raised the great dominating financial structure, whence it may be said the destinies of empires are controlled, is nothing more, nothing less, than that formed by the one word 'Unity,' says Mr. Phillips. 'Though the Rothschilds are many they act as one. "Remain united to the end," the first great financier of the family urged his children when he was dying. That was nearly a century ago, and there are many scores of Rothschilds today scattered over all Europe; but they still obey that counsel. He or she who disobeys it is cast out relentlessly—ceases to be a Rothschild of Rothschild.'

The origin of this great house is worth quoting:

'In the Judengasse, or Jewish Lane, in Frankfort-the-Main, there was until well on toward the beginning of the American Civil War an old house, neither more nor less attractive than its squalid neighbors. In this house, No. 152, lived an old, old woman plain and primitive in her habits and dress. Very goodlooking people were always coming to see her, were always urging her to leave her dowdy and dirty surroundings and go to live in a palace. The whole world knew her name, was telling of the doings of children who owed life to her. But she was a plain soul, and had no mind to try to get used to new surroundings and new people. She stayed on there until she died, going afoot to a cheap seat in some theatre almost every evening, with her old maid-companion beside her.'

That woman was the wife of the first great Rothschild, the mother of the greatest Rothschild and of his brothers who helped him to establish the house in strength and power.

This old woman married a certain Meyer Amschel, known as a Rothschild, because his father at 152, Judengasse, had kept a curiosity shop with a red shield as its sign. The little old house of the red shield sheltered an increasing amount of banking and mercantile business besides curiosities. Amschel Rothschild's deathbed counsels to his five sons and five daughters were these—

'Remain faithful to the law of Moses.'

'Remain united to the end.'

'Consult your mother.'

'Look on our wealth as a perpetual family trust.'

'Intermarry.'

'Never brook disobedience.'

Amschel Rothschild was not succeeded by unworthy sons. All five turned out able men. Nathan indeed was perhaps the ablest representative of the house. Now, however, according to Mr. Phillips, signs of weakening are showing themselves in the great family. They are thinking too much about the refinements of life and not enough about its business. In the third generation of Rothschilds—Amschel's grandchildren—there were many defections from his principles; in fourth there are more. We read that 'the house, now under the direction of Baron Salomon Albert, of Vienna, has adopted a policy of mercilessly weeding out incompetents. Every male child born to the house has a chance to be active in the business, is put through a system of training not dissimilar to the regimen that old Amschel enforced upon his five sons; if he shows taste and talent for finance, he is promoted and otherwise encouraged; if he proves an idler or as incompetent, out he goes, with a fortune, which is given him outright or in trust, according to his fitness from the standpoint of the maintenance of the family.'

It sometimes happens that the representatives of the original Rothschild show a partiality—not to say a patriotic feeling—for the country in which a particular branch may be domiciled; the indulgence in sentiment is antagonistic to the injunction of old Amschel, who laid it down that the one nationality for the house was that of Rothschild.
