REASON No 16
WHY YOU SHOULD USE
Red Rose Tea

Because so often imitated.

It is said that "Imitation is the sincerest flattery," and imitation creeps into everything—even a good brand of tea.

Red Rose Tea is very often imitated—but no man will imitate an inferior article. If Red Rose Tea is worth imitating, it is well worth buying.

Will you judge it for yourself? Ask your grocer to send you a package.

Insist on getting the genuine article.

Wherein Coffee Is Peculiar.
Probably every one who has noticed the green and roasted coffee sitting together in sacks in the dealer's storehouse has observed the difference in size of the beans. It is a peculiarity of coffee that in roasting, while it loses considerably in weight, it gains in bulk. At the reddish brown stage the loss of weight has been about 15 per cent and the gain in bulk about 30, at the chestnut brown, 20 and 50 per cent respectively, and, if carried to a dark brown, 25 and 60. It is in the roasting that the volatile oil, to which the delightful aroma is due, is developed, as it is not present in the green berry. If the roasting is carried too far—beyond a light brown—this oil is injured and destroyed, and the disappointed housekeeper properly complains that the coffee has been roasted to death.

Simple Life in Jersey.
"How far is it to Somerville?" asked the newspaper photographer.
"Nigh onto six miles," replied the village shoemaker, looking up from his last.
"Can I get somebody here to drive me over?"
"I'll do it, if you'll wait till I hitch up." In a few minutes the team was ready and the cobbler and his passenger were on the way.
"Pretty quiet life you lead up here in the hills," observed the photographer.
"Pretty quiet—not much doing, like there is down in town. But I manage to make a living."
"Shoemaking profitable, is it?"
"No, not very. I s'pose I'll average 80 cents a week at that. But I do other things, you see. I carry the papers and that's good for $1 a week, sure. Then I drive the mail twice a week, and that's another. And I do barbering, too. Some weeks I make $4 clear, but generally not more than three-fifty. We get along somehow, me and my family, and we ain't gone hungry yet. Once in a long while somebody wants to be took over to Somerville, and then's when I strike it rich.
Oh, you needn't think I ain't going to soak you!" And he smiled broadly upon the passenger beside him.
The photographer remembered that he had less than $5 in his pocket.
"How much will you charge me?" he asked.
"Well, you work for one of them big rich metropolitan papers, and I'm going to make you pay as much as—75 cents, by gum."

Modish Spring Millinery.
"The most noticeable feature in the newest importations is the profusion of trimming arranged at the backs of the hats," says The Delineator for May. "Another feature of this season's hat is the bandeau. Nearly every new model has a bandeau, and it may be placed at the back to accentuate the tip tilted brim, or at the side, where the brim is either flared or folded over to meet the top of the crown, while some of the daintiest creations have a tiny bandeau in front or even all around. The shape will take on entirely different aspects by a clever handling of the bandeau.
"Floral trimmings were never so beautiful both as to form and color, and almost every hat of any importance is adorned with some sort of flower or foliage. Roses hold first place in the trimming of smart headgear, and each season they appear more attractive.
Garlands of miniature morning-glories, pansies in pastel, and conventionalized pansies, and the fluffy, feathery thistles suggest delightful effects in the adornment of Spring and Summer headgear.
"One of the picturesque hats of the season is the Corday in broderie anglaise. Ribbon or flowers form the trimming. The newest turban is perfectly round, with the edge of the rolled up brim meeting the crown edge."

Drink and Health.
(The London Chronicle.)
Fifty years ago the opinion was firmly established that alcohol not only 'made glad the heart of man' but was essential to the health of his body. The President of the British Medical Association, speaking at a meeting, mentioned that he had been brought up in the school of Dr. Todd, who prescribed alcohol so freely that the students christened him 'whiskey toddy.' Sir Thomas Barlow recalled the days when life-insurance offices refused any man who was a total abstainer.
Liebig, the great chemist, said that wine was 'medicine for the sick and milk for the aged.' How completely we have changed all this is shown by the meeting at which Sir William Broadbent presided. Its object was to promote the teaching of hygiene and temperance in elementary schools.
On the general question of alcohol—as food or poison—the average attitude of the medical profession, said Sir Thomas Barlow, was that of the 'open mind.' But on one point the doctors represented at yesterday's meeting have made up their minds. It is essential, they say, to teach the people that alcohol is a luxury rather than a necessity, and that in the general hospitals it should be prescribed as little as possible.

All Had Stopped.
An amusing little scrap of conversation was overheard in a certain market hall recently.
In response to a question as to the time of day one old dame rather rudely advised her companion to "lyok at the clock."
"I have done so," was the reply, "an' it's stopped."
"Stopped!" ejaculated the other, glancing up in her turn. "Ay, so it is. What's come to the clocks? I've one at home, an' it's stopped, too. There must be a hepidemic among clocks just now."
"Hepidemic, indeed!" came the response.
"You ought to come to my home, Mrs. B., an' then you might talk about hepidemics."
"What? Is your clock stopped as well?"
"Rather!" was the grim reply. "I've a watch, three sons, two clocks an' t'owd man all doing now! Hepidemic, indeed!"

Drink Buttermilk.

There would be more buttermilk sold if people only knew the good qualities of the drink. There is nothing in the line of simple drinks which exercises a more beneficial influence on the general health. It is at once food and medicine. The lactic acid it contains acts on the whole digestive system, while as food it has already undergone a semidigestion in the churning to which it has been subjected. Instances are numerous of persons afflicted with Bright's disease living for many years in comparative comfort with no other medicine than a daily supply of buttermilk.

The Canadian Newspaper Directory.

The 1905 edition of The Canadian Newspaper Directory has just been published.
The book is handsomely bound in cloth, contains nearly 400 pages of valuable information about the newspapers of Canada, and is well worth its cost to any firm which aims to do business outside of its own town.
In addition to complete lists of newspapers and magazines published in Canada, with full particulars as to frequency of issue, publishers, politics, circulation, etc., etc., the work is also a valuable Gazetteer of the important towns and cities, giving population, location, chief industries, etc., etc.
Issued as a supplement, and included in a special envelope with the Directory, is a set of specially prepared maps of the Dominion, giving all the newspaper towns.
This valuable work is published by A. Mc-Kim & Co., Newspaper Advertising Agency, Montreal and Toronto, who handle the advertising of many of the leading and most successful advertisers in the Dominion, as well as many of the largest advertisers in the United States and Great Britain.

Unconventional Young Man.

There is in Philadelphia a young architect who, though entitled by birth and breeding to enter the sacred precincts of Quaker City society, has always affected a supreme indifference to social distinction, even going so far as to evince a disinclination to observe the conventionalities.
This young man tells a good story on himself, says Harper's Weekly. It appears that when he had proposed to and been accepted by the young woman who is now his wife, he began at once to talk of the wedding arrangements.
"We will," suggested the young man, "do without some of the ridiculous fuss-andfeather business of marriage; we will go away somewhere by ourselves, my dear; there will be no flourish, no cards, no ceremony—" Whereupon the girl indignantly interrupted with the observation:
"My dear, we may dispense with the flourish, but I shall certainly insist upon a ceremony!"
