A Royal Household Flour Traveller

hears some funny stories about flour sales as he goes from place to place.

He hears about the flour that makes good bread, but is hard to work with, and of that which makes only a tolerable loaf but gives no trouble at all. Identically the same flour in both cases only each case represents a different point of view. He also hears of Mrs. Jones who makes all her bread and pastry from Royal Household and cannot understand why any sensible woman could be bothered with the ordinary kinds. And then he hears of Mrs. Smith who thinks Mrs. Jones' bread is nice enough but prefers her own which isn't nearly as good.

He hears of the man who sent twenty miles to get a barrel of Royal Household because there wasn't any to be had in his own town at the moment, and he hears of the hotel cook who tried one baking and wouldn't have any more.

Going deeper into the last story, he learns that the hotel man had the flour baked elsewhere and that it beat any bread his own cook had ever produced from any other flour; and so he goes and so his stories grow until he often asks himself,

I wonder what will be next.

Grand Falls Promoters Will Spend $10,000,000.

Attorney General Pugsley, who returned on Thursday afternoon from a trip to New York and Ottawa, told a Sun reporter that while in New York he saw a number of the gentlemen who are interested in the company which has secured a charter for the inauguration of various enterprises at Grand Falls, and learned that satisfactory progress was being made in connection with the matter. The men connected with the company are of the highest financial standing, and it is estimated that $11,000,000 will be expended if all the enterprises that the company have in view are carried out. In the case of operations of such magnitude as those projected many details have to be arranged, but the attorney general said he had every reason to believe that the company would begin operations this year.

Asked what developments the company intended carrying on the attorney general said that the company contemplate the harnessing of the water power at the falls and the creation of at least 60,000 horse power. This power would be utilized for the creation of electrical energy, which the company expected to supply to the towns and cities along the St. John river valley and to this city. They expect to be able to supply this power at a price much less than it has hitherto been supplied for.—St. John Sun.

Outlawed.

The man on the down-town car was holding on by a strap next to a tailor whom he happened to know, and between begging pardons and granting them to his neighbor, he was trying to read a few paragraphs in his paper. One of them, says the Brooklyn Eagle, told of a discovery by a Nippur expedition of the University of Pennsylvania—a well-preserved and thoroughly authenticated tailor's bill nearly five thousand years old.

Since the man who was holding on to the next strap is himself engaged in the clothing business, the man with the newspaper thought the item would interest him, so he read it aloud to him; but this story left the listener with a blank look on his face.

"Don't you understand?" said the other, impatiently. "It's a tailor's bill almost five thousand years old."

"Well," said the tailor, without excitement, "what is it good for? They can't collect it."

Where Silence Is Golden.

This story is illustrative of the absolute silence and loneliness of the typical Australian bush camp:

Two men were camping together, but rarely exchanged a word.

One morning one of the men remarked at breakfast, "Heard a cow bellow in the swamp just now."

Nothing further was said, and they went about their business for the rest of the day. Twenty-four hours later, once more at breakfast, the second man said:

"How'd you know it wasn't a bull?"

Again no comment. Again a pause of twenty-four hours. Next morning the first man began to pack up his "billy" and "swag."

"You going?" inquired the other.

"Yes."

"Why?"

"Because," said his friend, "there's too much argument in this camp."—Kansas City Star.

A Palpable Hit.

It will take some of the Kansans who listened to Jerome a long time to forget some of the things he said. For instance:

Despicable a man as is John D. Rockefeller, you have only to look at your own country crossroads to find men in a smaller way doing exactly as he has done. This is business and business is war. This is commerce, this is competition, it is war and strife. I do not say that this is moral; it is immoral. But don't tell me that if the men at the crossroads had more power they would not use it to their own advantage, or that they would use it any more gently than Rockefeller uses it.

THE KAISER FOR PEACE.

German Reports Say That He Will so Advise Emperor Nicholas.

BERLIN, July 24.—The foreign office here is advised that a meeting between Emperor William and Emperor Nicholas took place early today off the Swedish coast, near the Island of Bjorkoe.

Emperor Nicholas wrote to Emperor William several days ago, during the latter's yachting cruise in the Baltic that if he should approach the Russian shore he (Emperor Nicholas) would be pleased to meet him. The German emperor replied he would be to cruise to any convenient point had the Island of Bjorkoe been suggested. It was understood that the conversation was to be entirely personal, and therefore no minister from either government was present although the Russian Minister of Marine is in Emperor Nicholas' suite. The meeting is a sequence to the correspondence that has been going on between the two Emperors concerning peace, in which Emperor William urges Emperor Nicholas to take steps toward peace. Emperor William was then co-operating with President Roosevelt in seeking to bring the belligerents to a discussion of terms of peace, and in the present meeting the Associated Press is authoritatively informed Emperor William will continue to advise peace, should the Russian Emperor ask for his further views, and it would be very natural that Emperor Nicholas should do so as a development of the correspondence which has already taken place.

Only One Car There.

(From the Boston 'Herald'.)

One day as he was leaving his office in Portland the late Thomas B. Reed was accosted by a stranger who had been inbibing so freely that he was 'seeing things double.' After apologizing profusely, the stranger managed to ask the Congressman where he could get a car for the depot.

Mr. Reed replied—Go to the next corner, there you will see two cars; take the first one; the other one won't be there.

Speaker Cannon is a great lover of green corn. He boards at the Arlington, and one day took one of his Illinois farmer constituents to dinner with him. Cannon made his dinner on green corn, eating seven ears. The farmer asked him how much he paid for board at the Arlington, and Cannon replied: "Six dollars a day."

"Well," said the farmer constituent, "Joe, don't you think it would be cheaper for you to board at a livery stable?"—San Francisco Call.
