

WOODSTOCK, N. B., AUGUST 23, 1905.

Home at Night.

When chirping crickets fainter cry, And pale stars blossom in the sky, And twilight's gloom has dimmed the bloom And blurred the butterfly;

When locusts-blossoms fleck the walk, And up the tiger-lily stalk The glow-worm crawls and clings and falls And glimmers down the garden-walls:

When buzzing things, with double wings Of crisp and rasping flutterings, Go whizzing by so very nigh One thinks of fangs and stings:—

O then within is stilled the din Of crib she rocks the baby in, And heart and gate and latch's weight Are lifted—and the lips of Kate.

—James Whitcome Riley, in The Reader Magazine for August.

BULL AND BULLION.

Enraged Animal Discovers Ancient Treasures.

The incursion of a furious bull into a farmhouse at Berling, Austria, led to the discovery of a hidden treasure.

The bull, meeting two tourists walking by the banks of the river, made a rush and galloped after them as they were running in the direction of the village.

They rushed for shelter into an old farmhouse. The bull followed, and with a snort of anger, charged the door of the farmhouse, which gave way to the terrific onrush of its horns.

Meantime the two fugitives had locked themselves in an upper room, thinking they were safe there from their pursuer.

The infuriated animal, however, followed them upstairs, and butting its powerful horns against the door of the room, shivered it to pieces.

Suddenly there was a terrific crash as the old flooring of the room collapsed under the heavy impact of the maddened animal, and the next moment the two tourists were amazed at seeing the bull's head and shoulders emerging from a huge gap in the flooring, while the lower part of its body was invisible.

The animal was literally hanging imprisoned between the rafters of the flooring and bellowing with rage and terror, was unable to extricate itself.

Three hours later a policeman shot it through the head.

Immediately afterwards the farmer who occupied the house discovered lying in a corner of the lower room a heavy iron box which, on being forced open, was found to contain a large quantity of gold and silver coins of the time of the Emperor Charles V., their value being roughly estimated at £15,000.

The treasure box had become dislodged from its secret hiding place under the flooring when the bull had crushed through the woodwork.

The Limit.

The recent generous addition to the salary roll of Canadian Judges prevents the possibility of those gentlemen following the remarkable example set by their brethren of the Bench in Australia, which was nothing more or less than a strike. The strikers were the High Court Judges, and their ground of complaint was the refusal of the Federal Attorney-General to pass certain sums—no very large amounts—for travelling expenses. The Judges were persuaded that they were entitled; the Attorney-General was equally convinced that they were not. In the result the Judges struck work by postponing the sittings of the court at Melbourne from March 7th to May 9th. The whole sum in dispute was but thirty pound, and it does not speak well for the tact of the contending parties that the difficulty should have reached such dimensions, and that the judicial machinery of the county should have been disorganized.

Commander Takeshita, the Japanese naval attaché at Washington, at a dinner, told this story of a swindler and a Yokohama Judge:—

The swindler had come, footsore and weary to the cottage of a poor man. There he had been entertained a month without payment. Finally, departing, he had borrowed the entire savings of the household that had sheltered him, pretending that, with this money for lawyer hire, he would be able to get an inheritance that had been withheld from him.

So the hospitable poor man gave the swindler all his savings, and that was the end of the swindler, of course. But he was caught by the police a few months later, and at his trial he was proved guilty of having swindled his benefactor of his modest hoard.

The Judge, before sentencing the swindler, said to him reproachfully: "How could you be so base as to swindle those honest folk who put confidence in you?"

The swindler, with a smile replied: "Your Honor, I'll make it worth your while if you'll tell me how to swindle those who don't put confidence in me."—San Antonio Express.

Stammering.

(From the London Chronicle.)

Among the minor arts of great importance is the self cure of stammering, which comes upon so many in early youth.

In the memoir of the author of "John Inglesant," which his widow has prepared, we read a rather touching confession. "I contracted the habit of stammering," wrote Shorthouse of Lady Welby, "as a delicate little boy of three at a large day school. It was not such a misfortune as might be supposed. For without this thorn in the flesh 'John Inglesant' would never have been written or conceived, and much which is very dear to me in philosophy would have been unknown."

Few stammerers can bring a classic from their affliction, and some would even refuse the author's fame at the price of the speaker's embarrassment.

In many cases the self cure of stammering is easy. The present writer was a sufferer, when a boy at a day school. He set himself to invent the cure.

It was absolutely necessary, he found, that the opening syllable of a sentence should be said several times before the sentence was under way (just as the billiard player waggles his cue before the correct stroke.) It occurred to him that the stammering might be done silently. So that little boy stammered firmly to himself with tightly closed lips, imagining himself to be speaking. It was easy enough, when the requisite number of "tut-tut-tuts" or "gug-gug-gugs" had been achieved in silence, to start the sentence. Since then he has never stammered—aloud.

An Anecdote of Dumas.

(Harper's Weekly.)

Dumas pere, who was proud of the prices he received for his work, was once boasting of the fact.

"Beyond a doubt," he remarked, "I am the best paid of living men of letters, I receive thirty sous a line."

"Indeed, monsieur?" said a bystander. "I have never worked for less than £5,000 a line. What do you think of that?"

"You are joking!" responded Dumas, in irritation.

"Not at all."

"For what do you receive such rates per line?"

"For constructing railways," was the answer.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Milk Pail.

To have your cows milk long, milk them clean.

Uneven salting and working makes streaky butter.

Keep the farm separator clean, inside and outside.

When the butter sticks to the worker, the latter was not scalded properly, rub it with salt and scald again.

It don't pay to keep cows for a side issue. Get the best and make dairying a business just like any branch of farm work.

In order to make a success of raising the calf on skim milk, the condition of the milk must be uniformly sweet. Nothing, perhaps, will contribute more to produce scours in calves than to feed sweet milk one day and sour the next.

Human Picture Gallery.

An unknown man, of about 35 years, who was found with his throat cut in Kensington Gardens, was almost completely covered with tattoo marks. The marks, which form the only means of identification, are as follows:

Chest, portrait of Queen Victoria surmounted by the royal arms, and the words: "King's Own Borderers, XXV," flags, guns, stars, and female on horse-back holding a spear, George and the Dragon.

Right forearm, six men and women, and various other marks.

Left forearm, a grave and cross, with the words, "In memory of brother Arthur, aged 32," and other marks.

Back, figures of a woman encircled by a snake, lions, peacocks, parrots, mermaid, a swan mounted on a camel, and a horse jumping a gate.

Right thigh, a heart and anchor.

Left thigh, two men in fighting attitude.

Each leg was was encircled by a cleverly tattooed garter.

Butter Sausages.

A Minnesota creameryman has invented a new way of packing butter for private customers. He makes special paraffin cloth bags, holding one, two, three and five-pound lots of butter, and has invented a machine which will stuff and seal these bags quickly and inexpensively. These make airtight packages, keeping the butter pure and proof against moisture and odors. It is said that this scheme has proven quite successful. It was invented something over a year ago and butter packed in this way went thru the cold storage season last year in fine condition. The first experiment was in the line of packing butter in sausage casings but these were abandoned.

Sheriff Herrick and Speeches.

The late Horatio G. Herrick of Lawrence, for many years high sheriff of Essex County, always took a keen interest in the Lawrence schools, and was for a long time chairman of the school committee. Visiting the Saunders school soon after the death of Garfield, Sheriff Herrick spoke to the pupils of the life of the late distinguished statesman, and thus asked, genially:

"Now, can any of you tell me what a statesman is?"

A little hand went up, and a little girl replied:

"A statesman is a man who makes speeches."

"Hardly that," answered Mr. Herrick, who loved to tell this story. "For instance, I sometimes make speeches, and yet I am not a statesman."

The little hand again went up, and the answer came, triumphantly:

"I know; a statesman is a man who makes good speeches!" [Boston Herald.]

An Impertinent Poet.

"Why," asked Mrs. Oldcastle, "did your daughter break her engagement to that handsome young poet?"

"He insulted us," replied her hostess, as she carelessly ran her fingers through the pages of a $3,500 copy of 'Squints and Glances.' 'In a poem he wrote about her he said she had lambent eyes, and Josiah just wouldn't stand for that, because it was an insinuation about us gettin' rich in the meat business.'—[Chicago Record-Herald.]

She Decided Not to go.

Eva: "Muvver, how shall you take pussie ven ve go to de seaside nex' week?"

Mother: "We shall not take puss with us, my dear."

Eva: "How funny! heard dadda tell Mr. Fastman dat do mice would have a good ol' game ven re cat was away at de seaside."

Worse Than a Snub.

From The Houston Post.

"You said you think your girl is going back on you? What leads you to such a supposition; did she snub you?"

"No; but she called her little sister into the parlor last night and had her recite for me."

In talking with a young Yale graduate who had been at the recent commencement, a newspaper man asked whether he had heard any adverse comments on Yale's acceptance of Rockefeller's "tainted money." "Well," he said, "the only comment I heard was 'tain' enough."

The annual report of the British Post-office savings bank for the last year shows that the total amount due depositors on Dec. 31 last was £148,000,000. During the year the cash received from depositors was more than £40,000,000. The interest accruing during the year was £3,500,000.

PSYCHINE

(PRONOUNCED SI-KEEN)

COUGH AND LUNG TROUBLE

"PSYCHINE" differs radically from the old fogey medicines. It is compounded on new and advanced methods of curing disease, otherwise it would be just like scores of others, without any exceptional merits.

But "PSYCHINE" possesses virtues of healing, that no other preparation in the world does. There never has been in the history of medicine, such a truly remarkable remedy, for the prompt and complete cure of obstinate coughs and lung trouble. There is nothing else just like it, or nothing else one half so good. Thousands of men and women readily and enthusiastically give testimony to prove the statement.

PSYCHINE BUILT ME UP

Linden, N. S., June 7th, 1904.

"I cannot speak too highly for your excellent—I may say invaluable—remedy for weakness of throat, lungs or declining conditions. My brother, mother, and sister died of consumption, and I suppose I inherited a tendency in this direction; but, thank God, through the use of PSYCHINE I to-day enjoy good health. I suffered for some two years from a distressing, obstinate cough and weak lungs. I used PSYCHINE and OXOMULSION, and they built me right up. My lungs are now strong and I enjoy splendid health. Yours truly,

"ELLA M. COVE."
