Faith

You cannot be expected to have faith in Shiloh's Consumption Cure, the Lung Tonic, as a cure for Colds, Coughs and all diseases of the air passages, if you have not tried it. We have faith in it, and to convince you that it will cure you we guarantee it. If it doesn't cure you it costs you nothing. If it does it costs you 25c. That's fair. Try it to-day.

Shiloh

has cured many thousands of the most obstinate cases, and we do not hesitate to say that it will cure any Cold, Cough, Throat or Lung trouble. If we did not believe this we would not guarantee it absolutely as we do. Shiloh has had an unbroken record of success for thirty years. It has stood every possible test without failure. Isn't that proof of its curative properties. Further is found in the many testimonials of those who have tried Shiloh and been cured. Mrs. Archie Taylor, Asaph, Pa., writes:—

Proof

"I bought a bottle of Shiloh's Consumption Cure and found it very beneficial. I have two children and they had a terrible cough. I gave them everything I could think of, but they got no better until one evening my husband bought a bottle of Shiloh. We gave it to the children when they went to bed, and they slept all night. It cured them completely. I shall always keep it in the house."

Good Steers.

To do the best with beef cattle, they should be raised on the farm and kept growing to their full capacity. Well-bred steers handled in this manner may be marketed in eighteen months, weighing 1,200 to 1,250 pounds, and selling for $65 to $70. To do this it would of course be necessary to have the best beef breeds; but why should not many Eastern dairymen carry selected short-horn or other suitable cows and use a good short-horn bull? There would be every facility for pushing the calves on a dairy farm, and the best results should be regularly obtained. This would permit of the number of cows being reduced, lessening the labor without seriously affecting the net income. But the steers should be sold at eighteen to twenty months, instead of twenty-six months and the weight should be not less than 1,200 pounds.—[Country Gentleman.]

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Look For Dirt.

Know your horse. Study him carefully and watch the ways of the professionals to profit by them. Be able to recognize at sight a poor tail, a mane which has not been properly trained and feet badly cared for. Always look for dirt. A clean horse is as easy to distinguish as a well-groomed man. There is a certain "something" about a man who has been cared for all his life, and the same is true of a horse. It is easier to get spots on clothes than it is to get them off. The same obtains with a horse; neglect in toilet will ruin the best of horses, and once allowed to "go to seed." It may take weeks, or even months, to overcome neglect for a brief period.—[Charles P. Sawyer, in Country Life in America.]

Honest Support.

"I thought," said the young man who was having his first experience as a candidate for office, "that you were going to give me honest support."
"Yes," replied the editor of the Trumpet, "that's what we're trying to do. I want to see you elected."
"Well, it's queer you haven't a line in this morning's paper about the speech I delivered last."
"Not at all, my boy, not at all. I was there myself and heard it. As I said before we want to help you in every way we can."

Harry's Waterloo.

Harry had been deck-hand on a steamer all summer. Harry's season ended some week ago, and with considerable back pay in his pocket, Harry was "on the tour." Even as rain in the midst of drought or lemon to the athlete, so was the beer of Craig street to Harry's dry, dry throat. The thought of pulling at icy hawsers and the unkind remarks of the mate made it taste different to the beer of Buffalo and Ontario Beach which Harry had imbibed during the summer. "It was fine beer, finer far than the lager in Harris' pavilion," said Harry, in his Welch accent, sadly corrupted by his contact with Canadian and American conferees for several seasons, and Harry took another 'schooner.' "Satisfaction," said Harry. "You had something in yer when you drink this." Harry had. When Harry had circulated for some time, there was a strange, wild freedom in his gait, a poetry in his motion that was unnatural. Harry had the pitch-and-toss lurching movement of his late floating home when pounding across Lake Ontario against a head-sea. And Harry's spirit soared. Why shouldn't it? Though only four-feet-four Harry felt he could battle with giants. Though diminutive he knew he had the blood of heroes in his veins. He whistled "Men of Harlech," and looked for trouble. Just at the corner of Craig and Bleury he found it. It was a burly boilermaker, with veins running with rye instead of red corpuscles. "To me," hissed Harry. Back to de dump, you cart-horse, said the stranger, understanding Harry's gestures. Little more was needed. While the stranger warned Harry to leave his farewell messages for friends, Harry beckoned him to a side street. There was waged an Homeric encounter for nearly five minutes. Harry's eyes were blacked, the stranger's clothes were torn, and then Harry went down and out. Chastened, but not subdued, Harry sought Craig street and more beer. Harry had met his Waterloo.—Montreal Star.

The Business Magazine.

In the hundreds of excellent magazines now being published there are many articles the modern business man should read. But how can he hope to do this, unless he has unlimited leisure and unlimited means? Fortunately there is a way, which has recently been opened to Canadian business men, through the enterprise of The MacLean Publishing Company. In The Business Magazine, published by them, will be found each month a varied and carefully selected series of articles from the best magazines of the world. In addition there is a complete descriptive index of all the other important articles of the month for which there is no room in the current issue of The Business Magazine.

The November number is crammed from cover to cover with good things. It gives more solid reading matter for the money than any magazine published. There is a cleverly written article on the business career of the late Senator Fulford, of Brockville, who made a name for himself as a world-wide advertiser. The Senator left over $15,000,000, and the article tells how he made it. Then follows an amusing short story, "The Smartness of Lewkovitz," and a series of 23 articles on subjects of general interest. A few of these are: "Big Salaries and Fees," "A Night in a Marconi Station," "The Richest Woman in the World," "How Great Business Men Keep Well," "The Rothschilds of France," "Saving the Key to Success," "The Typewriter Girl," "The Largest Vessel Ever Built," "A Female Training School for Sluthing," etc.

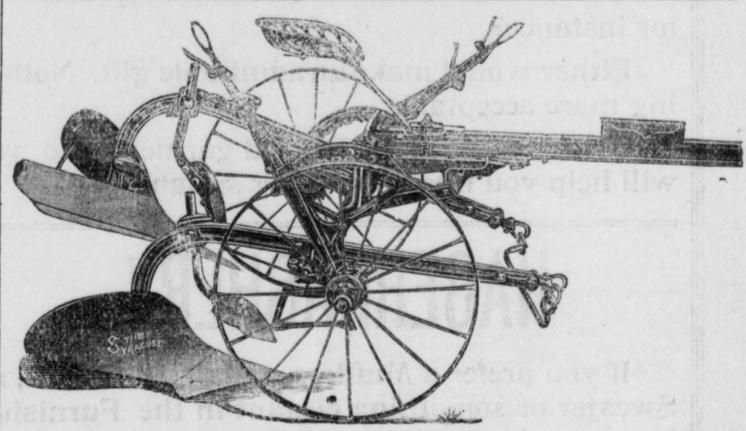

A Scotch minister had forgotten to bring his manuscript to the church and on going into the pulpit gave his congregation this explanation: "I am very sorry, my friends, to have to tell you that I have mislaid my manuscript. I must, therefore, this morning just say to you what the Lord has put into my mouth, but I trust I shall come this afternoon better provided."
