

Bringing Somebody Home.

A delightful place for the children can be made of home by exercising always a delightful hospitality towards the children's friends. Make them think that they can bring somebody home any time, even if everything is not in readiness, as for the grown-up guest.

It takes little to please children, who feel most of all the sympathy and friendliness with which their attempts at conversation are received, especially at the dinner table by the little friend's mother, and by the less well known father, of whom they are almost sure to be a little shy, and to whose talk with the other grown-ups 'over their heads' they are particularly sensitive. Said a girl whose home had always been a gathering place for all her friends and all her proteges from childhood: 'Mother always treated everybody I brought home as if he or she was the only person on earth. And even to this day she is never put out if we invite company and forget to mention it.'

In homes where so much freedom is impossible the warm welcome and gracious reception which she would accord an older guest can at least be forthcoming from the mother. She who does this will be in closer touch with her children, and find her task easier when the time comes for her social guidance to be exercised.—Bristol 'Times.'

The Results of Weak Blood

TIRED BRAIN AND BODY AND LANGUID, WORN-OUT FEELINGS—CURE IN

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

In the spring the blood is lacking in the red corpuscles wherein is found the life-giving principles which put snap and energy into the system—making the body active and the mind alert.

For lack of red corpuscles in the blood, the lungs are weak, the action of the heart feeble, the stomach fails to properly digest the food, the liver, kidneys and bowels become sluggish and inactive.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food overcomes these conditions because it contains the very elements of nature which go to increase the number of red corpuscles in the blood.

These ingredients are so combined in this restorative as to act mildly and gently on the system, instilling new vigor and vitality into the blood and nerves and through these mediums reaching with a beneficial influence every vital organ of the body.

Mrs. Jas. E. Lloyd, Upper Gaspereaux, N. B., writes:—"On the advice of a neighbor I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and can say it has done everything for me. I was very much run down, would feel nervous and my head seemed to get all in a whirl. I was easily overcome by any little trouble and my health generally was in a miserable condition.

"Since using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I am very much better in every way and cannot praise this treatment too highly. We have also used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in our family with good results."

It is interesting to note your increase in weight from week to week while using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food; 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Famous "Spenders" of Old.

Americans are prone to believe that they are the greatest of "spenders" the world has ever seen. As a nation, America probably is; but the millionaire is older than history, and the American people have examples in prodigality 2,000 years old. According to the Bible, King Solomon collected in one year over $1,500,000. His dishes, cups, goblets, everything, was of gold. Silver never was allowed. It was too common, and, in fact, was "as stones in Jerusalem." Queen Semiramis was another very rich personage of ancient history. She was the lady who founded Ninevah, and it is claimed that she erected an altar all of beaten gold, the total cost of which amounted to $55,000,000. The tyrant Nero was so extravagant that he never wore the same garment twice, and when he traveled 1000 carts were necessary to carry his luggage. Alexander the Great did things in the same open-handed way, which met with so much popular disapproval when modestly practised by some of our contemporary insurance officers. At a banquet, when 9,000 persons were seated at the table, he spent no less than $8,438,878, for during the entertainment he became so pleased with his guests that he presented each with a golden goblet and paid the debts of every one present. When this mighty conqueror died, two years elapsed before suitable preparations could be completed for his burial. The funeral procession which then took place has never been surpassed. The chariot which bore the remains was encrusted in gold and jewels. Jewels and gold and precious objects were worn or carried by every member of that glittering procession. Another parade which the ancients consider rather effective was that of Ptolemy Philadelphus, Emperor of Egypt. This procession took place at Alexandria, and took from sunrise to sunset in passing the point where the Emperor sat. To read such stories about the riches and the money the millionaires of the olden time used to spend makes the millionaires of the present look small, and a comparison between Croesus, who at one swoop got rid of $15,000,000 by making a present to the temple at Delphi, makes the present day efforts of Andrew Carnegie look rather limited.

The Latin States Of Europe.

The conference on the Morocco question at Algieras had the incidental effect of showing to the world that there is a tendency on the part of France, Spain, Portugal and Italy to co-operate in the solution of problems relating to both sides of the Mediterranean Sea. There is a formal alliance between Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Italy, but in spite of this fact Italy stood firm in her determination to leave France as free a hand as possible in dealing with her troublesome neighbor on the side of Algeria. The result of this attitude has been to convince Germany of the untrustworthiness of the triple alliance as a source of safety in a European mix-up, if one may judge from the coming visit of the German Emperor to the Emperor of Austria-Hungary.

Except in so far as the development of a Latin league in southern Europe may effect the peace of that continent and of the civilized world at large, outsiders are not particularly interested in the movement. But there is reason to believe that the formation of such a league would become one of the strongest possible guarantees of continued peace. Even an informal alliance of the four Latin States with Great Britain, to say nothing of the Scandinavian and Dutch kingdoms and of the Swiss republic, would make it impossible for Germany, Russia, or Austria-Hungary to take up an aggressive role in Europe, and an alliance of all three is for the present out of the question, inasmuch as Russia is still an ally of France. Moreover, she is likely to have for many years enough of subjects in home politics to keep her busy anticipating and preventing civil troubles.

The internal condition of Austria-Hungary is not such as to afford encouragement to ambitious schemes in world politics, if Germany is really cherishing any. There is a wide divergence in ideals and temperament between the Austro-Germans and the Hungarians. It is hard to say what amount of support, in the event of a break-up of Austria-Hungary, a movement on the part of Germany to annex Austria would receive. No such separation is likely to occur in the lifetime of the present venerable and popular Emperor, and his successor may prove equally efficient and equally popular. For all these reasons the peace of Europe is likely to remain for a long time unbroken.—Toronto Globe.

The Race Problem in Kansas.

At the Leavenworth, Kan., High School it has been discovered that a negro girl leads her class in scholarship, and is therefor entitled to deliver the valedictory address for forty-three white pupils. Now, this is carrying matters entirely too far. Heaven knows it is disgraceful enough to be thrown into school with negroes, but to have a negro calmly step in and lead the entire school in scholarship is a piece of impertinence that is not to be tolerated. And this, too, just as we were finding a satisfactory solution of the race problem!—[Chicago Evening Post.

Gold, Diamonds and Iron.

By combining the most trustworthy data obtainable, the French scientific journal, La Nature, estimates the total amount of gold that has been extracted from the earth within historic time at 17,000 tons, valued at $12,000,000,000. The total amount of diamonds taken from the earth during the same period is estimated at about 20 tons, valued at $700,000,000. Basing the comparison upon weight, the amount of iron daily produced is nearly equal to the total quantity of gold taken from all the earth's mines since they were first opened.

HUMILITY.

Humility is perfect quietness of heart. It is to have no trouble. It is never to be fretted or vexed, or irritated, or sore, or disappointed. It is to expect nothing, to wonder at nothing that is done to me, to feel nothing against me. It is to be at rest when nobody praises me, and when I am blamed or despised. It is to have a blessed home in the Lord, where I can go in and shut the door, and kneel to my Father in secret, and am at peace as in a deep sea of calmness, when all around and above is trouble.—Andrew Murray.

Smoke a Benefit to Health.

The following news item recently appeared in a Chicago press despatch: "That the smoke blanket over large cities, instead of being a menace, is conducive to health, was the contention advanced here by Dr. E. W. Anderson, the banishing of smoke in several European cities was in every case followed by a decline in health." If this be true, it would be interesting to know why it is so. Is it due to the presence of carbon in the atmosphere, or is it, perhaps, a proof that there is something in Major Woodruff's theory, that light is injurious to the blond races? London has a smaller death rate than any of the world's largest cities. It has been claimed that this is due to the carbon in the atmosphere of that city, where, on a foggy day in winter, it is necessary to light the lamps at noon. For nervous people too much sunshine is doubtless bad. Such people would do better on the seacoast. Meantime, until further light is thrown on the subject, most people will prefer the sunny skies of Southern California to the smoky atmosphere of "dear old Lunnun." By the way, is it impossible that this is intended as an ingenious advertisement, to popularize Pittsburg as a health resort, just as the Puget Sound cities are taking up Major Woodruff's theory? Smoky Pittsburg hopes, however, to have clear skies soon, as power is to be transmitted from coal mines by means of electricity.

Kind-Hearted But Thoughtless.

The "tyranny of tears" is known in all classes, but the tyranny of bad language is almost entirely confined to the poor, writes a London district nurse in "The Queen's Poor." Many men who would not dream of striking their wives, or of keeping back a penny of their wages beyond the stipulated sum, are deferred to anxiously in every detail of domestic life, simply from the nervous fear that every decent woman has of swearing. Sometimes the tyranny, instead of being that of profanity, is merely an unthinking and unintentional selfishness.

A young housemaid, singing the praises of her mother, said, "Father can't a-bear nothin' prickly against his skin, so mother she always takes the first wear out of his shirts and socks."

Few well-to-do people realize how much self-control and unselfishness are necessary if one would live comfortably and charitably with others in crowded quarters. One little girl told me, "Mother's chest isn't never really bad except when dad smokes in the kitchen on an evening; but she won't say nothing about it to him, because it's very hard if he can't have a pipe in his own house same as other men does."

"Sometimes it makes mother feel that queer she has to go to bed, and then dad says, 'Why, what's took you, mother? You've been rampaging round too much. Why don't you let things be? I don't take heed of nothing, long's I get my meals, and the boys would rather be dirty.'

"Dad's such a stupid, he don't ever think that it's his smoking has done it. And he'll make her a cup of tea and carry it up to her, and then he tells me to make haste and grow, so's she won't have so much work to do.

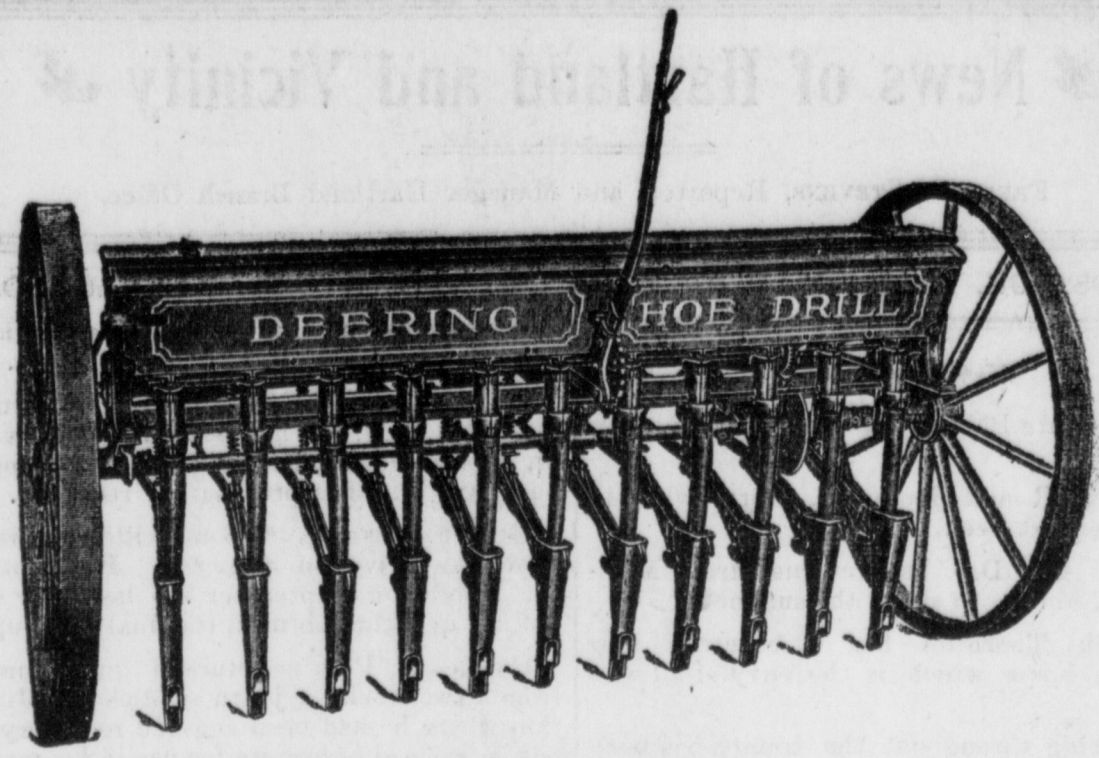

"It do annoy me! I don't think I'll let my husband act so silly, but mother says you never know till you get them. He's the biggest baby of the lot."

A chicken-farm is established on the roof of the largest family hotel in New York. The hens lay eggs for those who dine in the hotel. The first experiment at keeping chickens twenty stories up in the air failed because the chickens were taken to their high place from a country farm. They became homesick and did not lay. Then an incubator was bought, and the chickens were hatched on the roof. About two hundred and fifty are now kept there all the time, feeling at home in the only sort of scenery they have ever known. But it makes a country chicken-raiser homesick to think of chickens, twenty stories up in the air, deprived of the joys of digging worms in the flower-beds.

A Nice Dog Story.

On Monday afternoon Mr. C. Buschlen, proprietor of the Angus Hotel, Daysland, was shaking hands with Mr. Olegg, and gave his arm a sudden jerk, when the dog grabbed him by the calf of the leg and one fang tore right across inflicting a very severe and painful wound. The dog has been taken out of town and it is high time as has bitten ten other people. A dog like that should be shot or put out of the way at once.

THE GREAT PURE BRED Percheron : Stallion, "COPAIN"

Has been purchased by the undersigned and will stand for the season as follows:

Monday, at Boundary Line. Wednesday, at W. Jamieson's, Knoxville. Friday, at Scott McCain's, Florenceville. Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, at Centreville.

Terms: $10.00 and $15.00, $3.00 to be paid at time of first service.

"Copain" is four years old, weighs 2070 lbs., color grey; has the best of feet and legs and good all round action. He is a perfect type of the pure bred Percheron and was imported from France last August. "Copain" is one of the best bred draft horses ever imported by those well known dealers, Hamilton & Hawthorne, of Simcoe, Ont., got by such noted sires as "Besique," "Brilliant," and "Fenelon." "Besique" was sold at his own stable for $4000.00 when 16 years old to be imported to Australia. Dunham, of Chicago, Ill., imported "Brilliant" at a large price, and refused $10000.00 for him, the largest price that was ever offered for a draft horse of any breed. This goes to show that "Copain" is the best bred draft stallion in New Brunswick, and with his breeding and size will produce the big horses that command the top prices today. "Copain" will be a good sire to cross with our grade mares as he will give the offspring size, good looks and lots of action. The breeders of this section will do well to inspect this grand young stallion before breeding. Why use a small inferior horse for the sake of a few dollars when you can have the services of such a fine imported horse with size, quality and breeding. For any further information, write or telephone the undersigned.
