

NEWS FROM THE COUNTY.

There was an oyster stew at the Orange Hall a few nights ago. The party who are surveying the route for the new railway were present and helped to make the evening pleasant. Innocent games were enjoyed until the small hours of the morning. The worst part of the affair was facing the blinding snow-storm going home.

The many friends of Barter Bros. who were operating a woodworking factory at Avondale were very sorry to hear of the destruction of the factory by fire last Saturday morning. By strict attention to business and honorable dealing the Barter Bros. have worked up a splendid trade and it is to be hoped their financial condition is such that a new factory may be put in its place in the shortest time possible.

No Woolly West in Canada.

Winnipeg Telegram:—There never was any wild and woolly west in Canada. The swearer, the swaggerer and the bad man never had a chance to live north of the forty-ninth parallel. As to this it may be said that in the streets of New York and Chicago the wayfarer will hear more profanity and see more swagger and bumpiness of all kinds in a week than in Winnipeg or any other western city in twice the time. He certainly will pass by more revolvers hidden away in the clothes of "yeggmen" and tailor-made toughs.

HEALTH IN SPRING.

Nature Needs Assistance in Making New Health-Giving Blood.

Spring is the season when your system needs toning up. In the spring you must have new blood, just as the trees must have new blood, just as the trees must have new sap. Nature demands it. Without new blood you will feel weak and languid; you may have twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia, occasional headaches, a variable appetite, pimples or eruptions of the skin, or a pale, pasty complexion. These are sure signs that the blood is out of order. A tonic is needed to give new energy. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best tonic in all the world. They make new, rich, blood—your greatest need in spring. They clear the skin, drive out disease and make tired, depressed men and women bright, active and strong. Mrs. Chas. Masson, Yamachiche, Que., proves the great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in building up people who have become weakened and run down. She says:—"In the winter of 1905 I was very much run down and lost flesh rapidly. My blood was poor. I suffered from indigestion, severe headaches and general debility. In this condition I decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and thanks to this valuable medicine I am again enjoying perfect health."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure all the ailments due to poor blood or shattered nerves. That is why they cure anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, kidney trouble, indigestion and the secret ailments of women and girls. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Good Music.

Good music is a powerful tonic to many people, especially those suffering from melancholia. It lifts them out of their solemn moods, dispels gloom and despondency, kills discouraged feelings and gives new hope, new life and new vigor. It seems to put a great many people into proper tune. It gives them the keynote of truth and beauty, strikes the chords of harmony, dispels discord from the life, scatters clouds and brings sunshine.

All good music is a character builder because its constant suggestion of harmony, order and beauty put the mind into a normal attitude. Music clears the cobwebs out of man minds, so that they can think better, act better and live better. Some writers are dependent upon music for their inspiration and their moods. Somehow it brings the muse to them. It adds brilliancy to the brain and facility to the pen, which they cannot seem to get in any other way.

Good music seems to give us a touch of the divine and to put us in contact with divinity. It drives out evil thoughts, making us ashamed of them. It lifts us above petty annoyances and little worries of life and gives us a glimpse of the ideal which the actual is constantly obscuring.—Success.

Lord Strathcona's Title.

When Sir Donald Alexander Smith was created a peer he was anxious to assume the title of Lord Glencoe, which became extinct in the reign of King William III. But no sooner had he intimated his intention than not only all the Macdonalds, but even the very Campbells, and, indeed, all Scotland, raised up their voices in such angry protest at the idea of a Smith, in no way connected with either of the clans concerned in the massacre, assuming the name of the Glen of Weeping (which is the meaning of Glencoe) that Sir Donald was compelled to withdraw his application to the Crown, and to content himself instead with the title of Lord Strathcona.

Appropos of the massacre of Glencoe, an ancient practice is still in vogue to this day in Scotland. Whenever a Macdonald meets a Campbell at table in the Old Country, he is in the habit of either passing to him, or else holding towards him, a knife, blade foremost, that is to say, pointing the blade at him, by way of indicating that the treacherous massacre by the Campbells of the Macdonalds, whose hospitality they were enjoying and by whom they had been most kindly received, at Glencoe in 1692, has never been forgotten or forgiven. On yonder side of the Atlantic every Campbell and every Macdonald understands the custom and appreciates its meaning.

Lord Strathcona, by the way, indignantly denies the story so constantly printed to the effect that he began life as an errand boy in a village dry goods store in Scotland, that he came to America in the steerage, and that after a short stay in New York, he wandered on to Canada, where he made his way up, step by step, in the service of the Hudson Bay Company from the lowest rung of the ladder until he became its president. He wishes it to be known that his origin was far from being as humble as intimated by his biographers. He declares that his people were among the county families of Morayshire, and that his mother was a daughter of the same blue-blooded house to which the late Field Marshal Sir Donald Stewart belonged. He further claims kinship with the Grants of Mauchester, who were the originals of the "Cheeryble Brothers" in Charles Dickens' "Nicholas Nickleby."

Instead of earning his living in his youth as an errand boy in a village store, he studied law at Edinburgh, and, worst of all, he never came over in the steerage, but, on the contrary, as a first-class passenger, with a commission as an officer of the powerful Hudson Bay Company.

Planning Ahead For The Summer Outfits.

There is a wise woman who is already planning her next summer's outing. Not, of course, laying an absolute plan which cannot be deviated from, but by looking around her, while there is plenty of time to think about it and arrange for it, to see if that long-deferred trip she has been longing to take can't be managed some way.

It is just such planning as this which so often results in the realization of what seemed impossible dreams when they first occurred to you.

How often do you run across some one, after you've abandoned a coveted trip because you could find no one who could go with you, who has had this same experience as you have, who would have been delighted to go with you, who would have proved a congenial traveling companion, only you hadn't happened to "connect" in time! All that could have been arranged if you had planned earlier. Unconsciously you set your mind upon taking a certain sort of trip, and it is surprising how you happen upon information and good practical advice about ways of getting there, the things to take, etc. Often too, a whole party will plan to follow your lead and the jolliest sort of an outing be the result.

You plan your clothes for spring a summer with an eye to your trip; if it is to be camping, perhaps the very shirt waists and skirts you were about to discard for all time will be the very thing to alter into right lengths. You'll need fewer summer dresses, too, than if you were taking the sort of trip where dressing was the rule instead of the exception it is in camp.

For a trip across sea or land there are a lot of little things which are much more easily accumulated than bought in a lump when you are ready to start. A travelling bag, which will hold enough things to last you several days, will be one of them; and a black china silk wrapper of some sort (avoiding kimono or bathrobe types); your steamer rug, if you're crossing the sea; an air pillow wherever you're going, unless it is to be a matter only of hours.

If, on the other hand, the greatest rest, meaning to you the greatest possible change and you look forward to the diversion of seat shore or mountain resort life for your little time, look ahead at the things you'll probably need to make that trip a success. Let that idea govern you in the things you choose in the line of clothes. What you get now for a little dinner gown should be the sort which will do splendid duty next summer; if you get a new evening coat or cloak, choose a type which will look well summer and winter alike—you'll have plenty of need for it in both seasons.

Perhaps the best effect this planning ahead has is when you are arranging for a trip which is to be all sight-seeing. Then you find yourself studying photographs, eagerly asking questions of people who've visited the place (or places), and reading away for dear life such books as give you not only the dry-as-dust, necessary facts and dates and the like, but those other truer ones, in a way, which put you into almost mystic possession of the character of the place—its very color and atmosphere.

As you plan and plan, your ideas grow, and you stretch mind and purse alike to accomplish your desire. You begin to save toward your trip—money which would slip through your hands like the rest, were it not that a bigger purpose than usual catches it and lays it aside. Best of all, you've home to yourself the fact that a set purpose, even in a comparatively small thing, unconsciously sharpens circumstances to its own ends.

A Word About the Construction of

CREAM SEPARATORS

It has never been our practice in advertising to try and elevate the reputations of our goods by any attempt to discredit the goods of our competitors. We never claimed to have the ONLY CREAM SEPARATOR. However we have not been treated in a similar manner but fast and furious have rained down upon us a tirade of bombastic advertising where-in we have been accused of having the one Cream Separator you should NOT buy.

Now Ladies and Gentlemen we are not mad on the contrary we owe our competitors quite a good deal for advertising our goods, but we ain't going to pay the debt. Let us examine the criticisms a moment.

1st.—Nearly all Cream Separators made are worm geared machines. What does that mean? Either nearly every manufacturer is in a lot of trouble or else it is a good style of gear.

2nd.—Worm gear has been used in hand separators for a generation, at least twenty years, yet our Expert Critic was the first to find out that they were of no use. What does that mean? That the pill won't go down with the buyer. Our rival separator has been with us two years.

3rd.—There are several Cream Separators in CARLETON COUNTY about ten years old that are still running. Some of the owners are W. Kirkbride, Avondale; Chas. Gray, Waterville; Barry Emery, Jacksontown, and others. All Sharples.

What about the worm gear? Never heard tell of it before. Some would have to look before they would know that they had a worm gear. They have worn out spindles and bearings the same as all other separators will wear out spindles and bearings, but never the gear, its absurd for the gear is not where the greatest friction is.

We said that spindles and bearings wore out and that is true. We have NOT a machine that NO PART will ever wear out. The life of a spindle in a Cream Separator is from four to six years, and then what, well you will have to buy a new one. Ours will cost you a trifle because it is NOT PART of the BOWL.

Look at our competitors machines and you will see that their spindle is PART of the BOWL. Then what, well you must buy a new BOWL, SPINDLE and all, and the cost is such that you will just buy a new separator and you will look out next time that the spindle is NOT PART of the BOWL, but rather a separate piece.
