If present indications point in the right direction, the smart girl's togs will be adorned with more furbishings before they assume simpler trimmings. Fashion's autocrats have ransacked old-time styles in search of ideas to combine with modern whims and vagaries in the making of startling fashions, and surely they have not overlooked any possible chance to introduce forgotten modes. Never has there been such a bewildering display of odds and ends borrowed, as they are, from historical period as far back as early Empire days and now we are about to enter the second Empire period when fringes played such a prominent part in the garnishment of gowns and coats. Of course it is not likely that we shall repeat the vogue for hoop skirts—that has too often been attempted with dire results, but the cut and the draping of garments for both young and old show a decided favor for all the Second Empire styles. Tunic effects in a wide range of shapes are making their appearance as is also the polonaise with gathered and looped side seams and dangling fringe finishing its edges.

What Doctors Say About the Nerves AND THEIR CURE BY THE BUILDING UP PROCESS AS ILLUSTRATED BY Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Avoid fatigue, hurry, worry, and excess. Seek fresh air, rest, and the best means of increasing the nerve force of the body, or, in other words, use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. These are the instructions the best physicians will give you as the most effective treatment to overcome diseases of the nerves, for, if they do not recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in so many words, they give you a prescription containing practically the same ingredients.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is an up-to-date, scientific preparation, composed of the most powerful nerve restoratives known to science. It is bound to prove effective as a treatment for weak nerves, because it supplies the very elements of Nature which are necessary for the formation of new nerve force.

It is only by this up building process that you can ever hope to entirely cure sleeplessness, headache, neuralgia, nervous dyspepsia, irritability, brain fog, and the discouragement and despondency which tell of exhausted nerves.

Mrs. ROBERT BUSTARD, Maxwell, York County, N. B., writes:—"I can say that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food entirely cured me of what I believe was the beginning of locomotor ataxia or paralysis. My nerves were very bad and at night I could not sleep at all, nor could I control my arms or legs. They seemed to fairly jerk me off the bed.

"For six months I was this way and cannot describe what I suffered but now I am entirely cured, thanks to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It is a pleasure to recommend this great medicine to anyone suffering as I did from nervous disease."

Two Men.

"These ought ye to do, and not to leave the others undone."

A pale young man sat down on a bench in the park behind the reservoir on Forty-second street. He put a torn bag of tools under the bench.

A small, red-faced man came behind him. He stooped to steal the bag.

The pale man turned, and said in a slow, tired way: "Drop that. It ain't worth stealing."

The ruddy man said: "Not if you're looking in."

The pale man set the bag at his feet, and said:

"It's a poor business you're in."

"You don't look as if yours was any better." He sat down. "What's your callin'?"

"I'm an iron-worker; bridge-work."

"Don't look strong enough."

"That's so. I'm just out of Bellevue Hospital; got hurt three months ago."

"I'm just out of hospital, too," he grinned.

"What hospital?"

"Sing Sing."

"What? Jail?"

"Yes; not bad in winter, either. There's a society helps a fellow after you quit that hospital. Gives you good clothes, too."

"Clothes? Is that so?"

"Gets you work—"

"Work—good God! I wish they'd get me some."

"You ain't bad enough. Go and grab somethin'. Get a short sentence; first crime. Come out, and get looked after by nice ladies."

"My God!"

"Didn't they do nothin' for you when you got out of that hospital?"

"No! Why the devil should they? I'm only an honest mechanic. Are you goin'?"

He felt his loneliness.

"Yes; I've got to go after that job. It'll give me time to look about me. Goah! but you look bad! Good-by."

The ruddy man rose, looked back, jingled the few coins in his pocket, hesitated, and walked away whistling.

The pale man sat still on the bench, staring down at the ragged bag of tools at his feet.—S. Weir Mitchell, M. D.

The Meaning of True Hospitality.

We are prone to think that hospitality means a touch of the hand, an "ever so glad to see you," a cup of tea and some buttered bread, perhaps, and a bed to sleep in. But the widest hospitality shows itself in the touch of lives as well as the touch of hands; it shows itself in warm interest and sympathy; in willingness to understand and share the great world's interests. It means giving welcome and lodging to ideas and ideals and knowledge, as well as to people. It means putting out our hands to draw into our lives world benefits and world experiences and the joys and sorrows of others. Have you ever thought how many wonderful, and beautiful and interesting, and ennobling things are constantly going past our doors, how many noble people are constantly passing? What we all need is to welcome more and more of them into our lives.

The vogue of the brown hat and veil, tan shoes and gloves—worn with costumes of white or gray—seems to have appealed to popular fancy, and there are pretty brown hats being prepared for autumn wear which will not accompany, exclusively, the brown costume. One Parisian effect is a hat and furs of brown, matching to a nicety, worn with a costume of dull green.

RIGHT USE OF WORDS.

Jerry would use slang. He said it didn't make any difference what words he used, so people understood what he meant to say. Jerry was mistaken. It does make a great deal of difference about the words that we use, and the way we speak them. When Peter denied Jesus of Galilee, he was told that his speech betrayed him. Our words reveal ourselves. They tell of our education, habits of thought, our age, and our country.

Daniel Webster, who was a master of language, made a daily study of words, that he might use only clear strong ones to express his thoughts.

Lord Chesterfield, known as one of the most polished talkers of England, was asked how he acquired such a command of language. He replied that early in life he determined not to speak one word in conversation which was not the fittest he could recall. And he charged his son never to give the commonest order to a servant but in the best language he could find, and in the best tone.

If the masters of the English language thought so much care necessary in the use of words, surely the study of words and the correct use of them ought to be worthy of our closest attention.—Sel.

Young Chap, is This You?

St. Catharines Star-Journal.

St. Catharines like every other city has some young fellows that are getting themselves in shape to spend a useless life. They skip school as soon as possible and leave it for good as soon as they can. They do not care to work and are more or less of a burden to their parents. It is a pity there is no law compelling them to do something. The young man who drops out of school early in the race, smokes cigarettes, loafs around the streets and runs with toughs, is ready to enter life's contests away in the rear. He has cut down his earning capacity to a small quantity. He will be badly handicapped and the chances are he will be beaten in the race of business and of wage earning. No business man wants an employe of this sort and he is never likely to be either well off or live to be a good old age. If he were married his wife would have to take in washing to keep him, and he is most likely to fill a dishonest grave.

This is inserted in these columns without any comment. In fact it needs none: "She was dressed smartly, and when she met a little urchin carrying a bird's nest with eggs in it, she said: "You are a wicked boy; how could you rob that nest! No doubt the poor mother is now grieving for the loss of her eggs." "Oh, she don't care," answered the boy, edging away, 'she's on your hat.'"
