CARLETON LODGE Independent Order of Odd Fellows have for some years had their lodge room up stairs over the store now occupied by H. E. Burt. They have now taken the room next door, lately vacated by the 67th band and have converted it into a reading and recreation room and off it they have fixed up a convenient kitchen. They have thus in one of the most prominent buildings in town a suite of rooms that are convenient and attractive. Next year it is the intention to have a Ladies Auxiliary lodge started in connection with Carleton Lodge.

An Unruly Member.

Doctor Bates was discovered in the post-office, searching his pockets for coin that was not there. "The tongue," said the good, absent-minded doctor, gazing ruefully at the big envelope in his hand, "is indeed an unruly member. Mine has just cost me twelve cents."

"How's that?" asked Bodley.

"Why," returned the doctor, "here is a calendar that my wife gave me to mail to her cousin in Brooklyn. There's only a four cent stamp on it, and—"

"Well," demanded Bodley, "isn't four cents enough? A calendar's third-class matter, isn't it?"

"This one was," returned the doctor, sadly, "but it isn't any more. In a moment of abstraction I applied my tongue to the flap. The envelope being sealed, this calendar—for all it is most atrociously painted—is now first class matter; and although it isn't a letter, it is a letter, and I'm obliged to pay letter rates. Just lend me twelve cents, please."

The Correct Thing in Bedsteads.

The time has gone by when the bedstead was a simple framework. It has developed from a skeleton of plain wood or iron into a magnificent and expensive piece of furniture, and nowadays people choose their bedsteads with care. The nickel sort has never proved popular on account of its cold appearance. As the bedstead is the largest piece of furniture, it naturally has the most to do in giving the room a furnished appearance. Nickel bedsteads are only fit for a summer home, where everything should look cool and refreshing.

Brass is the best to get in a metal bedstead if one can afford it. It has a rich, warm look. The pattern differs little, but each season finds an improvement in the finish. The best bedsteads are not of solid brass. They have iron supporters running through each separate rod, and this gives the frame stability.

Although metal bedsteads are considered more sanitary by many, they can never be made so handsome as some of the wooden ones. Nor can they give such an appearance of comfort. One of the handsomest bedsteads is of mahogany. It lends an air of solid comfort to a bedroom.

Twin bedsteads of metal or wood are the proper things now. It is healthier to sleep alone.
