

NEWS FROM THE COUNTY.

WOODSTOCK, N. B., NOV. 28, 1906.

Maple Dale.

The weather for the last few days has been quite pleasant. The farmers who have grain or potatoes to haul are anxious for snow.

The community was much pleased the first of the month to learn that James and Ed McDade, two of our most popular young men, had returned from the west.

A knitting bee and wood frolic was held at Enoch McDade's on Friday last. A party was held that evening and about forty of our young people were present. All report a good time.

Miss Annie Laverty, who has been visiting friends in this vicinity, returned home on Sunday.

The social held on the nineteenth was largely attended and the result was all that could be desired. The baskets averaged $1.25. The proceeds go toward furnishing a chemical set for the school.

Mrs. Mills, who has been living with her sister for the past year, is very ill, and little hopes for her recovery are entertained.

Miss Jean Atkinson is visiting friends in Woodstock.

Little Lives Saved.

Many a little life is lost because the mother does not have the means at hand to aid her little one at the first sign of illness. In homes where Baby's Own Tablets are kept the mother always feels a sense of security. These Tablets cure colic, indigestion, constipation, simple fever, diarrhoea, teething troubles and other minor ailments of babyhood and childhood. Baby's Own Tablets always do good—they cannot possibly do harm. Thousands of mothers keep these Tablets in the house and use no other medicine for their children. Mrs. Wm. Brown, Deer Park, Toronto, says: "I find Baby's Own Tablets of the greatest help to my little ones and would not be without them." Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Bachelors.

BY TOM MASSON.

Bachelors can be found roaming at large in all parts of the world. They inhabit apartments, clubs, open fields, bodies of water and music halls. They are also seen behind the scenes. They hover at times near front gates, and have been found in back parlors with the aid of a search-light.

Bachelors are nomadic by nature and variable in their tastes, never going with one girl long enough to be dangerous. They flourish in large cities and are generally used at dinner parties to fill in with.

Bachelors are divided into two classes—selfish and unselfish—those who are unborn being the unselfish.

The open season for bachelors is in the Summer time, but on account of their wily natures they are not easily lured from their haunts for more than two weeks at a time, and are likely to elude the pursuer.

Bachelors make love easily, but rarely keep it. Rich bachelors are hunted openly and shamelessly, and are always in great danger. Those who finally escape are as a rule useless ever afterwards.

There can be no doubt that the bachelor is a menace to civilization. The fact that he leaves nothing to be desired in the long run counts against him.

Every bachelor should be licensed, and compelled not to exceed the speed limit.

Sanitary Considerations Will Compel Adoption of Cremation.

In the long run cremation will, says the Springfield Republican, become the civilized method of disposing of the bodies of the dead. Considerations of the public health will be more and more applied. As bearing upon this element in the promotion of the reform a recent decision by the Supreme Court of Iowa is worth noting. When the town of Wayland in that State sought to establish a new cemetery adjoining the old one north of the town, and on top of a hill, from whence there was drainage into streams which furnished water for the people in Wayland and their stock, certain citizens brought suit to enjoin the opening of the new cemetery. The Wayland authorities regarded this move as a "preposterous" one, but Judge James R. Smythe took a modern view of the situation, and issued the injunction prayed for. Then the town appealed, but the Supreme Court has affirmed the decision first given.

Straining Bonds of Empire.

Prof. Wrong of Toronto University, in a letter to the London Spectator, says Lord Alverstone's action in the Alaskan boundary matter did more than anything else which had happened during the last quarter of a century to weaken Canada's loyalty to the Empire. As a result of the Alverstone surrender, regret, distrust, and anger are low felt in Canada, where these were wholly absent some years ago.

The Spectator, in commenting on Pro. Wrong's letter, says Britain is determined to stand by Canada in any matter of vital importance, but will not support the Dominion in asking for more than Canada would ask for if independent. The Spectator further points out that in case of war, Canadian and not English homes would suffer, and this, while not a reason for giving in to all American demands, is a reason for proceeding with caution.

Donald Fraser, sr., and Donald Fraser, jr., were in Fredericton Saturday. A reporter asked Mr. Fraser, sr., regarding the prospects of his firm rebuilding the Aberdeen mills in Fredericton. Mr. Fraser's reply was when the rafting situation was untangled and log driving bettered we may be able to tell you something about what will be done. Nothing has been decided upon as yet. The manufacture for the season of long lumber at the firm's mill is about over. The Cabano mill finished sawing long lumber on Saturday last, and Plaster Rock mill will finish up sawing long lumber for the season Saturday. Owing to the scarcity of labor and the fact that they have a large supply of round lumber which they will carry over to next year, the Messrs. Fraser have not as large crews of men in the lumber woods this season as last and their cut will therefore be smaller. They are not getting out any lumber for Baker Brook mill, as they carry over sufficient to supply this mill next year. Their cut on Temiscouata and Tobique will about equal that of last season.

Old Jewelry Popular.

(Boston Advertiser.)

The most noticeable feature of the present styles in jewelry is the sudden revival of the antique, both in stones and in their settings.

Old-fashioned and cumbersome brooches, massive chains, heavy gold buckles and enormous lockets that for a long time have been treated with ignominy are now high in favor in the fashionable world, and the woman who can unearth from long packed trunks old pieces of jewelry is lucky and the larger the better.

Stones the names of which had almost been forgotten by everyone, except perhaps the stonecutters themselves, are once more taking an important place in the latest schemes. They are used not only for letter-weights, umbrella tops and charms, but for expensive pieces of jewelry as well.

The enormous old brooches of solid chased gold in which our grandmothers revelled—inset with gems of enamel, and chiselled, chased, embossed and twisted into eccentric shapes—have been looked upon so long as not only in bad taste but really uncouth, that the strictest mandates of fashion are necessary to place them again in popular favor.

The revival is a reality, however, and tiny brooches and heart-shaped pendants, with lace pins of microscopic dimensions, have given way before ornaments of the most extravagant size that seem not at all out of place on the scarfs and fichus and old-fashioned pelerines and mantles that have come back into fashion.

In Paris huge lockets are now being worn on gold or jewelled chains, the chain passed twice around the neck, and the locket hanging down rather low in pendent form.

The latest revival of all, however, is the cameo, and so popular has this old-fashioned ornament become with Parisians that half the curiosity shops of Paris have been ransacked in bringing to light mementoes of the First Empire, a period when the cameo was particularly fashionable.

Cameo-topped toilet accessories, umbrella handles, stamps and ring boxes or tortoise shell combs and other ornaments inset with cameos are a craze of the moment, while enormous gold lockets or brooches and rings inset with intaglio or cameo medallions are worn indiscriminately with costumes of every description.

Forced Into It.

Justice Brewer, of the United States Supreme Court, has a story of the days when a certain lawyer, now well known at the bar in Chicago, was having anything but an easy time endeavoring to win recognition in his profession. One day a well-to-do farmer in need of advice sought the struggling attorney in reference to a suit he desired to bring against a neighbor. The lawyer looked up the statutes and advised his client what course to pursue. As the latter rose to leave the office he asked, "How much?"

"Oh, say three dollars!" carelessly responded the lawyer.

Whereupon the client proffered a five dollar bill. The lawyer appeared embarrassed. He carefully searched his pockets and the drawers of the desk without finding the necessary change. Finally he met the exigency by pocketing the bill and observing as he reached for a digest:

"It would seem, Mr. Blank, that I shall have to give you two dollars more worth of advice."
