Your Doctor

Can cure your Cough or Cold, no question about that, but—why go to all the trouble and inconvenience of looking him up, and then of having his prescription filled, when you can step into any drug store in Canada and obtain a bottle of SHILOH'S CURE for a quarter.

Why pay two to five dollars when a twenty-five cent bottle of SHILOH will cure you as quickly?

Why not do as hundreds of thousands of Canadians have done for the past thirty-four years: let SHILOH be your doctor whenever a Cough or Cold appears.

SHILOH will cure you, and all druggists back up this statement with a positive guarantee.

The next time you have a Cough or Cold cure it with Kist or Kissed?

Louisville Courier Journal.

There is a serious question as to whether some of President Roosevelt's phonetic words are really as phonetic as the older forms.
Why, for instance, is "kist" more phonetic than "kissed?" The Greek idea was to convey by the form of the word the nearest approach to the impression conveyed to the ear or mind, by the act or thing which the word was designed to describe. The word "kist" conveys the impression of something done as quickly as snapping the fingers. On the other hand, "kissed" seems to better describe a more lingering caress—a more prolonged performance.

"He kist her," describing the chivalrous attention of a son-in-law to a mother-in-law, might be well enough. It might better describe the act of one who, having served his courage to the sticking point, was resolved to have it over with the greatest possible expedition. Again "kist" might have been the better word when "my lady came in like a nolle prosequi and stopt proceedings." Stop, by the way, many have been written by Congress to convey an impression of suddenness which would not have been conveyed by the form "stopped," a word with less rapid action in it.

Kist might have been well applied to an interrupted caress referred to when Imogen said to Pisano:

Give him that parting kiss which I had set Betwixt two charming words, comes in thy father,
And like the tyrannous breathing of the North
Shakes all our buds from growing.

The elision of the syllable expressing the past term properly might be well when the kissing lacked the completeness that was contemplated by the participating parties.

But when the hero says: Once more for pity: that I may keep the flavor upon my lips till we meet again.

It is morally certain that the girl has been deliberately "kiss-ed," and not merely pecked at in the manner that might be described as "kist." The inclusion of the syllable "ed" carries with it the idea of the passage of time between the beginning and the end. It is, in fact, as essential to the sense as the several central vowels in the written form of the president's favorite greeting to the beloved proletarian from Kennebunkport to Medicine Hat who drops in occasionally at the White House. And no one who has felt the presidential hand-clasp, observed the dazzling flash of the presidential teeth and heard the quadruple "e" could think of spelling the word "delighted" and fancying for a moment that he approached the phonetic rule in so doing.

Another example:
Once he drew
With one long kiss my whole soul thru My lips, as sunlight drinketh dew.

This does not create the impression upon the mind that the lady was "kist," any more than "delighted" would express the sound of the president's greeting.

Not until he leaves out several "e's" in the interest of brevity is the president in a position to dictate to the people a policy of elision with regard to kissing, and the girl at all worth kissing will still feel that "kist" is inadequate to describe her experience.

The Tobacco Struggle.

A cable from London a few days ago stating that an agreement had been reached in the lengthy litigation of British merchants against the tobacco firm of Ogdens, Limited, recalls one of the bitterest industrial struggles on record. The American Tobacco Company, the most powerfully concentrated corporation in the business, invaded England some three or four years ago, with the declared object of driving the British manufacturers out of the market. They set about the task in a manner that simply staggered the English houses. The latter, however, soon learned the power of cooperation, and a combination was hastily formed to deal with the invader. The WOODSTOCK, N. B., OCTOBER 24, 1906.

American Tobacco Company was said to be prepared to lose somewhere in the neighborhood of two million pounds sterling, per annum, or, say, ten million dollars, in bonuses to the retail and wholesale merchants, so as to get a foothold. With this end in view, retailers were offered all profits for a period of four years, together with a cash bonus of a million dollars annually, to be divided according to the amount of sales made. In addition to this every package of the trust's product contained a coupon which bore a face value of about one-half the price paid for the article. On the other hand, the British company, while giving a small bonus, also started a very extensive advertising campaign, in which consumers were asked to buy the product of British capital and British labor; in other words, to be 'patriotic' in their smoking. Strange as it may seem, this had the desired effect, and before many months the United States invaders were crying for quarter. An arrangement was made between the contending forces, which left the United Kingdom market to the home combine, the 'Americans' selling out their English interests. The purchasers were not prepared, however, to assume the bonus obligations, which resulted in the retailers concerned bringing suit for recovery. The cable does not state the exact terms of the agreement, but it seems quite evident that the retailers' case was built upon solid foundations. There is no doubt that the severe drubbing administered to the 'American' tobacco trust has made the other numerous 'American' corporations look before they leap into a competitive battle with the industrial houses in England. The English tobacco trade, if it knows its Shakespeare, is probably quoting with glee, 'Nought shall make us rue, if England to itself do rest but true.'

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

In a spirit of patriotic lamentation The New York Haberdsasher deploras the fact that the people of the United States borrow their fashions from this country. "It is", says the paper, "galling to our national pride to have to admit that we tread on the heels of England." The Haberdsasher ought to cheer up. After all, most of the heels of England are made in America.—London

Too Much Food.

Every time you eat too fast, cram too much food into the stomach you offend the law of nature and will probably suffer headaches, nausea, biliousness, and all the horrid distresses which are so called. Now if you will assist nature a little in an agreeable manner with such a pleasant and efficacious treatment as Hutch you need not suffer all these troubles. Hutch will give you instant relief from these little complaints and if you give it a thorough trial you will find that it will cure you permanently of the causes which produce them. Hutch is a doctor for ten cents. 25c. and 50c. all drug stores.

Norman Haggood, the distinguished journalist and essayist, was discussing American newspapers.

"It is not enough that our papers shall tell the truth," he said. "Truth-telling in itself is particularly wise nor praiseworthy. Indeed, it is sometimes the reverse.

"Thus a young man called on a young lady one spring morning very early. He had his automobile along. He wanted to give the young lady a morning spin through the country.

"A little girl, the young lady's niece, answered the bell.

"Is your auntie in?" said the young man.

"Yes, sir," said the little girl.

"That's good. Where is she?" he went on.

"She's upstairs," said the little girl, "in her nightgown, looking over the balustrade."
