

A FOOD AND A TONIC

What the leading Medical Journal of the world has to say about FERROL.

After making a thorough test of FERROL in its own laboratory the London (England) Lancet published an article from which the following is taken:

FERROL

"This is a successful combination of the well-known valuable remedies, Cod Liver Oil, Iron and Phosphorus. The formula is no secret, and our analysis showed the presence and amount of constituents as described. The preparation is a good one and of distinct therapeutic value. The association of an easily assimilable oil, in a fine state of division, with a phosphatic salt of iron which does not disturb the digestive functions and which is easily tolerated, determines its success as a food and tonic in wasting diseases."

What the London Lancet recommends as a food and a tonic in all wasting diseases must have very special qualities.

No higher endorsement is possible. The results following the use of FERROL for the past ten years have proved that this endorsement is well deserved.

FERROL is not a patent mystery. The formula is freely published. It is prescribed by the best Physicians. It is endorsed by the most eminent Medical Journals. It is used in prominent Hospitals, Sanitariums, etc.

Orchard Thieves.

From all over the country comes the cry from fruit-growers that theft and vandalism are more than usually prevalent in orchards and fruit plots this year. School children on their way to and from school make a common practice of raiding fruit plots and melon patches. Is it not time the Provincial Legislature took a hand in the game and enacted something to meet the requirements of such cases. Public educators, too, have an excellent opportunity to help lessen the growing evil by inculcating stricter ideas of the rights of our fellows, and pointing out the dangers that beset the paths of those who fall into the habit of taking what does not rightly belong to them.—Strathroy Despatch.

Up-to-date Cure

For Skin Disease.

UNLIKE INTERNAL TREATMENT, YOU CAN SEE THE BENEFITS DAILY OBTAINED BY USE OF

Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The day is past when people will be satisfied with an internal treatment for itching skin disease. It is more satisfactory to apply an ointment and witness the beneficial results, instead of taking medicine and hoping that in time the desired effects will be obtained.

This change of opinion has come about largely through the extraordinary cures being brought about by Dr. Chase's Ointment. Eczema, salt rheum, psoriasis, tetter, scald head and all the dreadful itching skin diseases, which torture children and grown people alike, are not held in such terror since the merits of this great ointment have become known.

Mrs. JOHN J. DELORY, Linwood, Antigonish, N. S., writes:—"I want to say that Dr. Chase's Ointment has proven a great blessing to me. I had salt rheum on one hand and could not get it healed up. The itching was most distressing at times. Two boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment has cured me completely and I gladly recommend it to every sufferer."

By its healing, soothing, antiseptic influence Dr. Chase's Ointment cleanses the sores, allays the inflammation, stops the itching and heals the raw, flaming flesh. In the most simple as well as the most aggravated skin irritation or eruption, this ointment is certain to give highly satisfactory results; 60 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Special Notice for Roman Catholics.

Roman Catholics came in for special notice last night from Protestant speakers far distant from one another. Dr. Mowatt, of the Erskine Presbyterian church, Montreal, speaking at the Presbyterian Synod in Moncton, N. B., declared more religious liberty could be secured in China than in the French parts of Quebec, while Dr. Donald Guthrie of Baltimore, in the opening lecture of the Presbyterian College in Montreal, said that in New York during the past fifty years, the Roman Catholic church had been doing an immense work, while the Presbyterian church, as a result of its criminal conservatism, was standing still or losing ground. The political club, the pleasure club and the labor unions, he said, were shaping the minds of men, while the Presbyterian church was doing comparatively nothing.

He Was a Broncho.

It has been and is still believed by some that to break a broncho he must be roped, thrown, beaten, conquered before he can be utilized, writes a contributor to 'Forest and Stream.' I believed so once, but the method has always struck me as a dead failure. Were the breaker of as fine intellect as the broncho, in many instances he might gracefully submit to a reversal of situation and allow the broncho to train him, for out of the brains of the broncho he may learn wisdom, as well as out of the mouths of babes and sucklings.

I had a friend once, as brave a man as ever graced a saddle, levelled a Winchester, or loved a child, and he owned a broncho. If he would saddle the animal once or three times a day the pony must be roped, thrown, and blinded on each occasion. My friend said it was 'the nature of the brute.' I knew he could not be wantonly unkind to anything. It never occurred to me that it might be education, and that nature had nothing to do with it.

Several years ago the madam and I were camped near an old log road in the mountains in the vicinity of a friend's ranch. One morning, as I was about building the fire for coffee, the ranchman's son, a lad of eighteen, came up the road with a bridle on his arm. He stopped near us and began to whistle, as one would for a dog. After he had whistled a few times I heard a whinny, and in a few moments the rapid beat of a horse's hoofs broke upon the sweet peacefulness of the summer morning. Looking in the direction of the sound, I presently saw a pony coming down the old road on a keen run. A dappled gray pony, with ears erect and mane flying; his neck was outstretched, and his eyes seemed to flash with exquisite pleasure; he came leaping on as if moved by thoughts of love, absolutely free, beautiful in form, graceful in his liberty and in every movement. Within a few rods of the lad the reckless gallop resolved itself into a swinging trot until he reached his friend, when he came to a halt and rubbed his nose against the boy's shoulder. The loud whinny was softened and the arched neck pressed against the lad for the expected caress. It is a good twenty years since that bright morning and yet the memory of it is as fresh as if I saw it now; I can taste again the very sweetness of the balsam-laden air, can see the tender blue mist that lingered about the distant hills, and see the pony's head resting against the boy's shoulder; and it seemed to me then as it does now that if there had been hands instead of hoofs he would have hugged the boy and would have kissed him on the lips instead of on the hand, had he known how.

'Where did you get that horse, Harry?'
'Out of Hill's drove.'
'You don't mean to say he's a broncho—he's too kind and handsome!'
'That's what he is.'
'How long have you owned him?'
'About three months.'
'But how did you break him? I supposed that they had to be roped and beaten and—'
'Now don't you believe a word of it. I haven't even spoken cross to him, have I, Dick?'

The pony corroborated the statement beyond cavil. The madam went out and shook hands with the boy and hugged the horse, and I should not have blamed her had she hugged the boy, as I looked down into his honest, laughing gray eyes.

Patience and its attendant genius, kindness, without any exhibition of man's 'dominion,' a simple endeavour to bring himself up to the horse's standard of intellect, and the result was two loving friends. That they could not talk Greek, Latin or English to each other dignified the situation. The understanding between them was quite perfect and beautiful in its eloquence.

Two Possible Executive Orders.

The Bookman has received what purport to be advance copies of three important executive orders, soon to be issued to several departments under the control of the United States national government. We do not vouch for their authenticity, and they are published with all due reserve; but on their face they do not seem to be inherently improbable.

I.

The White House, To the Scientific Bureaus and the Regents of the Smithsonian Institution:

Having given some thought to the subject in the intervals of my other occupations, and having talked with Professor Phake of the Cowboy University, I have decided to direct you hereafter to maintain that it is possible to square the circle, and that perpetual motion is feasible. The Government in these matters must keep abreast of public opinion; for scientific theories ultimately rest upon the verdict of a majority of our countrymen. If, however, it should turn out that public opinion is unfavorable to this order, the thing will be dropt, and that is all there is about it.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

II.

The White House, To the Superintendent of the U. S. Naval Observatory:

My Dear Sir: I have been much impressed by reading some powerful sermons of the late Rev. John Jasper, D. D., of Richmond, Va., who was during his lifetime an intimate of my friend, Prof. Booker T. Washington. Dr. Jasper's arguments have convinced me that your views of astronomy are utterly absurd and contrary to common sense. You will please, hereafter, see that all computations and calculations made by yourself and your assistants are based upon Dr. Jasper's dictum that "the sun do move." We must keep abreast of public sentiment in astronomy, though if it should turn out that I have made a mistake, the matter may be dropt.

Yours very truly,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Yankee Report on Growth of St. John.

The latest publication of United States consular reports contains the following official announcement:

Consul G. Willrich reports that St. John, New Brunswick, is rapidly rising in importance as a winter port. The volume of its trade is growing fast. The consul writes:

"St. John has become the chief port of the Dominion of Canada for its trans-Atlantic business during the winter months when the St. Lawrence river is closed to navigation. In 1895-6 the export trade of the port amounted to $3,000,000, while in 1905-6 it reached $23,615,000. Of this amount Canada furnished products valued at $14,541,217, of which $13,921,749 worth were sent to the United Kingdom and $619,468 to South Africa.

"The value of the export of American origin was $9,010,784, of which $8,064,664 worth went to the United Kingdom and $946,120 worth went to South Africa.

"The export of goods from the United States via St. John to the United Kingdom consisted of the following principal articles: Cattle, 13,508; sheep, 1,575; meat, 56,193 packages; grain, 206,987 bushels; lard, 201,044 packages, and flour, 143,407 packages.

"The United States merchandise exported through this port to South Africa consisted of meat, machinery, agricultural implements, flour, lard and poultry. The total shipments of grain in 1895-96 amounted to 272,910 bushels, while in 1905-6 the shipments reached 6,764,499 bushels.

It may be said, in passing, that St. John is called St. Johns all through the report. Whether Consul Willrich is responsible for this or whether it is a result of President Roosevelt's spelling crusade does not appear, but it might be well for someone to take Consul Willrich aside and gently but firmly impress upon him that it is St. John and not St. Johns. More than half the time the New Brunswick city is spelled St. Johns in American publications.

"My!" exclaimed Mr. Klumsay at the summer hotel hop, "this floor's awfully slippery. It's hard to keep on your feet."

"Oh!" replied his fair partner, sarcastically, "then you were really trying to keep on my feet. I thought it was accidental."
