

Raising Dogs.

Nearly all of us have at one time or another kept dogs on our farms. Usually these dogs were of the 'just plain yellow cur' type, and although faithful and affectionate, as a source of revenue they were useless. It is just as easy to keep a pair of thoroughbreds as mongrels, and very much more profitable. There is a constant demand for good dogs, and even little eight weeks' puppies bring from $5 to $15, and house-broken dogs fetch all the way from $5 to $1,000. At a recent sale, thirty dogs from a well-known farm brought $1,185. A pair of thoroughbred pups can be had for $30. The bitch will have two litters a year, and an average of five pups to a litter. Of these, taking several years as an average, half will be dogs and half bitches. It will be better to drown most of the females, as there is no great demand for them, and they bring small prices. Of course, it is important to select breeds that are popular, or becoming so, like the Airedale terriers, Boston terriers, English bull terriers, and Old English sheep dogs and Scotch collies are always good. These dogs may sell up in the three figures, and the cost of raising them isn't a cent more than that of raising curs. Don't over-feed a dog; a light breakfast of oatmeal and milk, and a good generous supper at night is plenty. Puppies are apt to have worms which are easily got rid of. Fits in young dogs are usually due to worms or over-eating. Dog-raising appeals to all boys, and will keep them in pocket money, thus adding an interest to their home life. Don't be afraid to spend $25 or $30 in this way for the boys. A pair of good dogs will raise enough pups to pay for themselves in the first eighteen months.—E. K. P. in County Gentleman.

Nutriment of Bacon

(From the Chicago 'Journal').

Prof. Snyder, of the Minnesota food Station, gives in a report some reasons why bacon should become popular. In reference to a test he says that bacon was cut in thin slices and baked or broiled in the oven until crisp and brown. All the fat which was cooked out was saved and eaten with the bread and other foods which made up the daily fare.

On an average about 90 percent of the protein and 96 percent of the fat of the ration containing bacon were digested and about 88 percent of the energy was available. Calculated values for bacon alone showed over 90 percent protein and 96 percent digestible fat, figures which compare favorably with those which have been obtained for other animal foods.

Lean bacon contains as much protein and about twice as much digestible fat as other meats, says Prof. Snyder, 'making it at the same time and even at a higher price a pound a cheaper food than other meats. Bacon fat is easily digested, and when combined with other foods it appears to exert a favorable mechanical action upon digestion.'

Notice.

The Board of Trade will hold a meeting in the Council Chamber on Monday evening, the 22nd inst. to consider important business matters.

By order of the Executive.

L. E. YOUNG, barrister, who has had desk room in Fewer Bros. store, expects to move into his office on the second floor of his new brick building on Main street this week.

MRS. ISABEL LEWIS died on Saturday last at the residence of her son, James Lewis, in the 73rd year of her age. She is survived by one son, and two daughters, Mrs. Kelly, of Andover and Mrs. Geo. Upham of Woodstock. The funeral took place Monday, the Rev. Geo. D. Ireland officiating. The pall bearers were W. B. Nicholson, John McLaughlan, John McNinch and Alexander Henderson. Among the floral emblems received was a handsome wreath from the railwaymen.

The Humorist.

A king and his clown fell ill one day,
And the king, as he lay on his royal bed,
Beholding the clown was moved to say:
"Lo, all my glory has from me fled.
One man wears motley and one a crown,
We raise distinctions and cling to caste,
But the hand of the Masquer strikes us down,
And the king and the clown are the same at last."

The poor, pale clown turned wearily
And looked across where monarch lay:
"Nay, master, it is not so," said he,
"Though we share one lot in common to-day,
I must have my wits when I rise again,
Or another clown to your feet they'll bring,
But you, oh sire, though you retain
No spark of reason, will still be king."

Those who have been indifferent to advice to spray the orchard, or been skeptical as to practical results, should not lose the opportunity to compare sprayed orchards with those unsprayed. Maybe some up-to-date neighbor has been spraying his trees all summer. Just call around at harvest time and see if he gets more high grade apples per tree than the man who did not spray. It would be more convincing than any other argument we can offer. The same applies also to the potato crop. Investigate this for your own satisfaction.

FREDERICK G. COY.

The remains of Fred G. Coy who died at his home in Saskatoon, Sask., arrived in Boston on Friday morning, 5th instant, accompanied by his widow and Brother W. H. Coy. They were met at the train by the father of the deceased and his son John Coy, Mr. Sutherland, father of the widow, and her two sisters. The funeral took place from the church at Mount Hope cemetery, attended by a large number of relatives and friends. Deceased died on the 29th September of typhoid fever, at the age of 32 years. He was the second son of Rev. J. H. and Mrs. Coy, of Woodstock, N. B., and is survived by father, mother, three brothers, W. H. Coy, of Saskatoon, Sask., John S. and Charles W. Coy, of Quincy, Mass., and three sisters, Mrs. F. E. Shea, of Saskatoon, Miss Annie Coy, of Waverly, Mass., and Mrs. Arthur Tibbitts, of Bangor, Maine. The funeral was attended by the entire family, except Mrs. F. E. Shea who arrived at Saskatoon a few hours after her brother had left with the body for Boston.

Four months previous to his death he was married to Miss Barbara Sutherland, of Brighton, Mass. His worldly prospects were early blighted by the hand of death. Truly we know not what an hour may bring forth.—King's Highway.

Anniversary of Woodstock Reformed Baptist Church.

Woodstock church is planning to celebrate the 18th anniversary of its organization by a Roll Call and three days meeting, beginning Friday evening, November 2nd, and continuing over the following Sunday. Fort Fairfield and Hartland Praying Bands composed of zealous young men in the work of the Lord and several ministers will be invited to assist the pastor. A grand rally and a rich feast are anticipated. An invitation is extended to all to come and get helped.—Com.

Rev. G. B. Macdonald is supplying the pulpit of the Baptist church at Regina, N. W. T., Sundays. He will be home the last of November and remain for a few weeks, then will return to Strausburg, Sask., to remain until spring.—King's Highway.

A Little Misunderstanding.

"A young lady I know," said an Englishman, "got married last year in London and had only been keeping house a week or two when a cousin in the country sent her in a brace of pheasants. Same people like to 'hang' pheasants—to keep them a week or two, letting them get 'high' on the ground that the fresh flesh is tough and stringy. The cook knew this, but her young mistress knew nothing—positively nothing—of cooking."

"Please ma'am," said the cook when the pheasants arrived, "do you like the birds 'igh'?"

"The bird's eye?" said the mistress puzzled.

"What I mean, ma'am," the cook explained, "is that some folks likes their birds stale."

"The tail?" repeated the mistress, more puzzled than ever.

"And then, in order not to appear ignorant in the cook's eyes, she smiled brightly and said:

"Prepare the birds, please, with the eyes and the tail both."

A Walker;

Mr. George W. Bryan tells of a countryman down in Craven by the name of Brish, who walked over to Newbern, a mere sixteen miles, one morning to the county fair. One of the races was a walking match of forty miles, and Brish promptly entered it. Dusk was beginning to fall before the race was ended. Brish was well in the lead. His closest competitor was within speaking distance of him and began to reason with him not to walk too fast. "Now you don't care much about winning this race," said his competitor.

"I know I don't," said Brish.
"Then you sort of slow up and let me get by you and I'll give you $10 and I'll take first money and nobody will know and everything will be all right."

"That's all true," said Brish, "but I've got to walk home tonight and plough all day tomorrow, and, since I must get up before day and begin ploughing, I can't afford to lose my gait and get tired."—Charlotte Observer.

COULD SCARCELY WALK

A Rheumatic Sufferer Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Rheumatism is rooted in the blood—that is a medical fact every poor rheumatic sufferer should know. Liniments and outward applications cannot possibly cure rheumatism. They are a waste of money, and while the sufferer is using them the disease is steadily growing worse—is slowly but surely taking a firmer grasp upon the entire system. Rheumatism must be treated through the blood. That is the only way in which the poisonous acid can be driven out. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood and thus always cure rheumatism. Every dose of these pills helps to make new rich red blood which sweeps the poisonous acid from the system, loosens the aching joints and muscles and gives the rheumatic new health free from pain. Among those who can bear witness to the truth of these statements is Miss Dorina Langlois, of St. Jerome, Que., for weary months she suffered from rheumatism and had begun to think she was incurable. "I could not straighten up," says Miss Langlois, "My limbs were almost useless, so stiff were they. For many months I endured such pains as only rheumatic sufferers can understand. Although only thirty years of age the suffering I endured actually made me look like an old woman. I used liniments and tried several medicines but got not the slightest help until almost by chance my attention was directed to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I began taking them and in the course of a few weeks I could see they were helping me. Little by little the pain began to go and the stiffness to leave my joints. I continued taking the pills for several months when every symptom of the trouble had disappeared. I have not felt a twinge of rheumatism since, and I bless the day Dr. Williams' Pink Pills came to my notice."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills never fail to cure rheumatism because they go right to the root of the trouble in the blood. That is why these pills cure all the common ailments due to poor and watery blood, such as anaemia, headaches and backaches, indigestion, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, general weakness, and the distressing irregularities that afflict women and growing girls. If you need a medicine you will save money by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once. See that the full name Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is printed on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
