

The "Jolts" and "Jars" of Life are what use people up. Most people live pretty well up to the limit of their powers, and so long as everything goes smoothly that is apparently all right; but a "jolt" or a "jar" in the shape of business worries, domestic anxieties, or an attack of La Grippe, Pneumonia, Typhoid, or other wasting disease, suddenly reveals the fact that there is a sad lack of reserve force to meet these contingencies and the result is serious, often fatal. A wise man will see to it that his system is fully fortified against sudden attack. To attain this result nothing is so sure and effective as Burial Place of Booth.

Frank H. Phipps, Colonel of the Ordnance Department of the United States, in a letter to The Army and Navy Journal says:—I note in the last issue of the Journal a letter from Olive Ennis Hite, in which she relates a story told her by an officer of the navy, as to the disposition made of the body of Wilkes Booth, in which it was stated as a fact 'never having been disputed,' that the body of Booth—in a gunny sack—was taken aboard the Montauk in the Potomac River, and cast overboard at a point below Indian Head.

How such a story could have originated I fail to understand, and that it may not be accepted without dispute, let me state the following: After the assassination of President Lincoln and the arrest of the conspirators, the latter were tried in the old Washington penitentiary building, and after their execution they were buried just outside the walls of the building. When these buildings—with the exception of the warden's quarters—as well as the surrounding walls, were torn down, these bodies were taken up and buried in one of the old storehouses at the Washington Arsenal, in a locked room and underneath a stone flagging, and by their sides were placed the bodies of Wirtz, the Confederate jailer, and also the body of Booth, the latter having been delivered at the arsenal in a gunny sack at the little boat-house off the Washington Arsenal grounds. The place of burial was marked so as to identify where the bodies were placed.

Just before Andrew Johnston's term as President expired, Edwid Booth applied to him for permission to have Wilkes Booth's body exhumed, and turned over to him for burial at Baltimore. The president gave instructions through the secretary of war, to General George D. Ramsay, the commanding officer of the Washington Arsenal, to exhume this body and satisfy himself—there having been several stories about that Booth had never been killed and had been seen here, there and elsewhere—that the remains turned over were those of J. Wilkes Booth. The commanding officer of the arsenal directed me to superintend personally the transfer of these remains.

With a party of enlisted men, the remains were taken up in my presence, the lid of the box removed, and the remains of Booth positively identified beyond any question. The black hair, the shape of the skull, the color and condition of the clothes, the riding boots, and the remains of the boot cut off at the ankle all indicated without doubt that the body was that of Booth. In addition to this identification, a dentist in Baltimore had previously stated that he could identify Booth anywhere by a tooth the cavity of which he had filled and built up, it being so unusual that he could identify Booth anywhere by this tooth. This identification, I understand, was subsequently made.

Later on the friends of the other conspirators—Mrs. Surratt, Paine, Harold, Atzerott, and also of Wirtz, the Confederate jailer—applied for and received similar permission, the bodies being removed under my personal supervision, the lids of the boxes being removed in each case.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Anna Held, whose eyes are famous for their depth and brightness, received one afternoon a pretty compliment from a boy of five.

The boy, during a matinee, had been brought into Miss Held's dressing room. She wore a Persian gown of lemon-colored silk, and three dogs, smaller than kittens, played on the floor.

The little boy admired the dogs. He admired the actress' robe. He looked with calm admiration up into her face.

Her eyes delighted him, as a glittering jewel delights a girl.

"Are your eyes new?" he said gravely.

For Catarrh, let me send you free, just to prove merit, a Trial size Box of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy. The Age of Nursery Rhymes.

Slang phrases in the course of time become absorbed into the vernacular, just in the same way as nonsense rhymes and nursery verses become institutions. Take the following examples. The famous lines:

'Mother may I go out to swim?
Yes, my darling daughter;
Hang your clothes on a hickory limb,
And don't go near the water,'

are at least thirteen hundred years old, being found in a book of jests of the sixth century, compiled by Hierocles. 'Humpty Dumpty sat on a wall,' etc., has come down to us from the days of King John. 'The Babes in the Wood' dates from the fifteenth century, being founded upon facts, an old house near Wayland Wood, Norfolk, having the whole story in carvings on a mantelpiece. 'Little Jack Horner,' 'Little Miss Muffet,' 'Old Mother Hubbard,' 'Mother Goose,' and 'Goosey, Goosey, Gander,' are each traceable to the sixth century. 'Pussy Cat, Pussy Cat, where have you been?' belongs to the reign of Queen Elizabeth. 'Three Blind Mice' first appeared in a music book dated 1609. 'A Froggie Would a-Wooing Go,' was licensed to be sung as far back as 1650. 'Boys and Girls Come out to Play,' and 'Lucy Locket Lost Her Pocket' both hail from the period of Charles the Second. 'Cinderella,' 'Jack the Giant Killer,' 'Blue Beard,' and 'Tom Thumb,' were published by their author, Charles Perrault, in the year 1697.—Bristol Times.

A Woman Tells How to Relieve Rheumatic Pains.

I have been a very great sufferer from the dreadful disease, rheumatism, for a number of years. I have tried many medicines but never got much relief from any of them until two years ago, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I found relief before I had used all of one bottle, but kept on applying it and soon felt like a different woman. Through my advice many of my friends have tried it and can tell you how wonderfully it has worked.—MRS. SARAH A. COLE, 140 S. New St., Dover, Del. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is a liniment. The relief from pain which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. It makes rest and sleep possible. For sale by All Dealers.

Under Adjudgment.

A newly elected squire in Wisconsin was much elated by his honors, but was not sure that he could carry them gracefully, says a writer in the New York Sun. So he haunted the court-house to gather stray crumbs of wisdom from higher courts which sat there. One day he sat in judgment on his first case, and when the testimony was all in and the arguments made, he said:

"The court takes this case under advisement until next Wednesday morning, when it will render a verdict in favor of the defendant."

EUREKA!

Yes, I Have Found it at Last.

Found what? Why that Chamberlain's Salve cures eczema and all manner of itching of the skin. I have been afflicted for many years with skin disease. I had to get up three or four times every night and wash with cold water to allay the terrible itching, but since using this salve in December, 1906, the itching has stopped and has not troubled me.—ELDER JOHN T. ONGLEY, Rootville, Pa. For sale by All Dealers.

An Appreciation of Goldwin Smith.

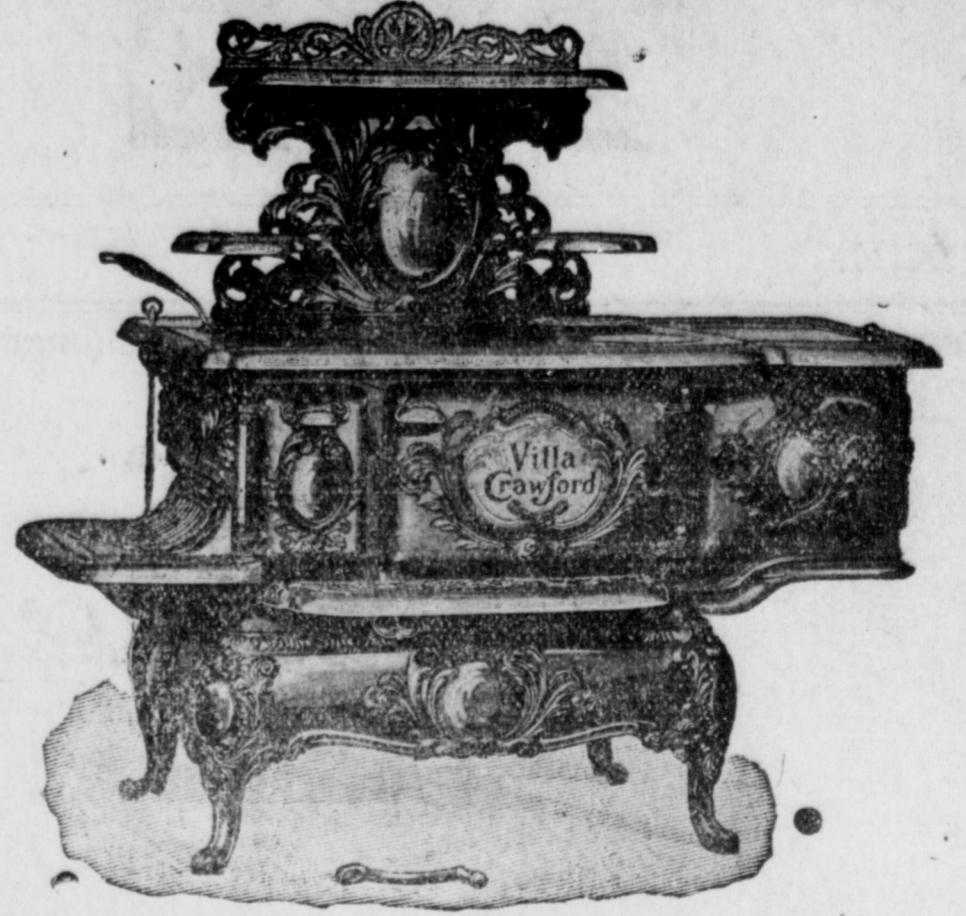

A writer in the British Weekly recently drew attention to what he called "The Miracle of Goldwin Smith." He certainly is one of the most wonderful men of his day. Even in 1823, he had a brilliant literary reputation fifty years ago. He was one of the ablest of the contributors who made the Saturday Review famous. Cobden said of him that his pen was "a power." But the amazing thing is that it is still so busy, and has seemingly lost none of its easy force. At eighty-four he writes copiously and his style appears as trenchant and his thought as philosophic as ever. Mr. Smith is not a supernaturalist, yet his own career shows that Nature is at any rate, not tied down to averages. His sustained productiveness entitles him to be called, if not a miracle, at least, with the prolific Lope de Vega, a monstruo de la naturaleza.—New York Post.

Surgery as a Cure.

The London Lancet is authority for this statement: An English doctor sustained injury to his head from a fall. Afterwards he suffered severely from sleeplessness and neuralgia. Moreover, his character completely changed, and he became emotional and developed suicidal ideas. A mental specialist declared the change was due to injury to the brain, opened the skull, let off certain fluids which had collected at one point, and the injured man is now enjoying his usual health.

Accuracy and Tenseness.

The editor of the Independence (Kan) Star found it necessary to warn a careless reporter to write nothing unless he absolutely knew it to be correct. Later in the day he reported handed in a society item as follows: "It is rumored that Mrs. Smith, who claims to reside on South Crestnut street, gave a so-called dinner party to a number of her alleged friends. Mrs. Smith asserts that they all had a good time. In the progressive euche feature which followed the dinner, Mrs. Brown, who claims to be the wife of Postmaster Brown, was successful."

RANGES, COOK STOVES AND HEATERS.

Did it ever strike you that when you buy a Stove from Connell Bros., that if by any chance it does not WORK RIGHT, they are at hand to MAKE IT WORK RIGHT. They cannot afford to let the stove do anything else but WORK RIGHT. Their stoves are all built to WORK RIGHT, made from good patterns; of the best material, and by good workmen. Another thing, too, they have all pieces for the stove, so you don't need to get rid of a good stove that was made by them because you can't get the repairs for it. We have repairs for stoves sold 25 years ago.
