There were five carloads of potato phosphate unloaded at this station last year. This season 35 carloads came here. The shippers estimate that the yield will be increased in the same ratio of 7 to 1, and that next fall and winter there will be 500 carloads of potatoes to go out from here if the crop proves an average yield.

Fears For The Aroostook Potato Crop.

Fears are being entertained for the safety of Aroostook county's potato crop. The continual rains throughout the season have soaked the rich soil of the county with an over-abundance of moisture and if the rains continue there is grave danger that the crop will be seriously damaged. The harvest time of the great wealth of Aroostook soil is not much more than a month away now and such a condition of affairs at this critical period is not conducive to cheerfulness on the part of Aroostook farmers. As it stands now, even with the increased acreage and greater amount of fertilizer to the acre used this season, it is conservatively estimated that the Aroostook potato crop of 1907 will not equal that of 1906, but conditions are far from being the same. The 1906 crop was the greatest on record and well it should be, conditions all through the seasons were ideal for the raising of potatoes. From an acreage estimated at 70,000 acres between 17 and 18 million bushels of potatoes were taken. About 14,000,000 bushels were shipped out over the Bangor & Aroostook railroad. Another million bushel went out over the Canadian Pacific. The remainder of the crop stayed in the county to be consumed for food, seed or in the manufacture of starch. The starch factories are still grinding potatoes from the 1906 crop—Kennebec Journal.

Beautiful Hands.

The beautiful hand is slender at the wrist, and has long tapering fingers. A short thumb may be a hereditary characteristic, but it is said to show want of intellect.

Nails should be thin, oval and pink. Very highly polished nails are not considered in good taste, and to make them very pointed suggests that the hands to which they belong are incapable.

English women, as a rule, have well shaped if somewhat large hands, and they are firm

WISE PARENTS

Guard Their Children's Health by Giving Them Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The health of the growing boy or girl should be carefully guarded. During the growing time there is a danger of the blood becoming poisoned and the health seriously impaired. The blood should be kept pure and the child will grow strong healthy and active. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an ideal tonic for the young. They never fail to bring color to the pale cheeks and strength to the growing body. To a reporter of L'Avenir du Nord, Mr. Jos. Provost, of St. Canute, Que., tells how these pills saved his daughter Marie from a life of misery. He says: "A year ago my daughter, a girl of thirteen, was very weak. She was so ill that I feared she was going into consumption. Thought I tried remedy after remedy she remained in this weak state for several months and I began to think she never would get better. I read of the good Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had been in a case of anaemia, so got some for her. Soon she began to improve; her appetite returned; she grew strong; color came into her cheeks and to-day she is as healthy as any young girl could be. I firmly believe Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved her life."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are equally as successful in bringing those of mature age back to health as they are in building up the young. They make prue, red blood—that is why they banish anaemia, rheumatism, St. Vitus dance, heart palpitation, indigestion and the secret ills of girlhood and womanhood. But you must get the genuine bearing the full name. "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around each box. All other so-called Pink Pills are imitations. If your medicine dealers does not keep the genuine pills they will be sent at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Really Rich Folk.

(Saturday Evening Post.)

Belgium, supporting over seven million people on an area smaller than Maryland, is much the most densely populated country in the world. She has had much of which to be proud, but her working class was the least fortunate in Western Europe.

Wages were lowest, and it used to be the laborer's common experience to begin work in mine or factory under the age of ten. The misery of the weavers of Ghent was fairly proverbial.

In Ghent, as we read in a recent account of the country, stands a certain spacious mansion in a beautiful garden. Formerly it housed the most aristocratic club in the city. But the club could not bear the expense, and gave it up. So, now, these same weavers of Ghent have bought the house, equipped it with cafe, library, theatre, assembly-room, and, on Sundays and fete days, they throng the fine garden.

In the same town the workman's 'Voorult' owns a big department store, with theatre and clubrooms upstairs. In Brussels the "House of the People," owned by the workmen, cost $250,000. In nearly every considerable Belgium town the workmen's co-operative society owns a handsome building, containing a store, theatre, cafe and clubrooms.

This is not because the individual Belgian workman has grown rich. Economically, his lot is far from a happy one. Politically, after fifty years of vigorous fighting, he has not yet attained equal universal suffrage. Co-operation, compelled by crushing pressure, makes him collectively rich enough to afford a club house that the aristocrats found too expensive.

There is really no wealth and no power save that of the common people.

They have only to get together and the rest of the population becomes mere fringe.
