When to Quit.

An English journal requested a number of its largest advertisers to give their opinions concerning the best time to stop advertising, and the following replies were received:

When the population ceases to multiply and the generations that crowd on after you and never heard of you stop coming on.

When you have convinced everybody whose life will touch yours that you have better goods and lower prices than they can get anywhere else.

When you stop making fortunes right in your sight solely through the direct use of the mighty agent.

When you forget the words of the shrewdest and most successful men concerning the main cause of their prosperity.

When younger and fresher houses in your line cease starting up and using the trade journals in telling people how much better they can do for them than you can.

When you would rather have your own way and fail than take advice and win.—American Correspondent.

Put the Blood in Condition

BY THE RESTORATIVE BLOOD-FORMING PROPERTIES OF

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is weakness that causes most of our sufferings—weakness of the heart, weakness of the stomach, weakness of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

The result is feelings of languor and depression, and impaired action of the vital organs, headaches, indigestion, spells of dizziness and weakness, sleeplessness, irritability, and a general rundown condition of the system.

Put the blood in good condition by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and you have a foundation for health to build on. Weakness and disease will give way to new strength and vigor, and languor and discouragement will yield to new hope and happiness.

Mr. Fergus Conn, Lily Oak, Ont., writes: "As a result of the severe winter and an attack of la grippe, I was all run down this spring. I soon improved very much by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. My appetite is better than it has been for years, and though sixty years of age I am able to do a man's work on the farm following a team. I believe that I owe my good health to the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

"Mrs. George Beattie, Carr's Brook, Colchester Co., N. S., writes:—'Last spring I was very much run down, felt tired all the time and did not seem to have life or energy enough to do my work. Three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food did me a world of good and made work a pleasure to me. I have not had occasion to use any medicine since, and have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all my friends.'

"We always keep Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the house to be used for constipation, pains in the back and stomach troubles."

By means of good blood only can Nature make weak people strong, and Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed of the most powerful blood-forming elements known to medical science. Every dose is bound to be of some benefit to you; 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

A Plea for the Use of the Lash.

A New York City Magistrate has come out openly in advocacy of flogging men convicted of the commission of certain classes of offences. When these cause the death of their victims the law vindicates itself by inflicting the death penalty, but when their diabolism falls short of a fatal result no term of imprisonment is an adequate punishment. The crimes in view are those involving intentional physical injury, such as stabbing, slung-shotting, robbery with violence, assaults on women, and other acts which are the outcome of undoubted brutality and bestiality of disposition, with apologies to the "brutes" and "beasts" for the disparagement wrongfully implied in this use of their names.

The correct theory of legally inflicted punishment is that it acts as a deterrent, and thus tends to save society from a repetition of the offence. On this theory the punishment should be not merely physical but acutely painful, and the pain should be so prolonged as to be a serious inconvenience and a dreaded humiliation to the reprobate or violent wretch on whom it is visited, while it is so graded as not to endanger his life or even his health.

It is not open to advocates of the death penalty to condemn flogging, and as an overwhelming and apparently increasing majority favor the continuation of capital punishment, it seems fair to conclude that under the criminal code flogging should be made a prescribed part of every sentence for the crimes specified, leaving the trial Magistrate or Judge to fix the amount and time of the punishment with the aid of medical advice.

Imprisonment has no terrors for such inhuman wretches, and most of them, as their persistent reversion to lives of violence shows, have no intention of trying to lead better ones. On the other hand, a man who has passed through a severe flogging, administered on the installment plan, is likely to have a wholesome respect for the majesty of the law, and at the same time become an effective object lesson to others who feel inclined to indulge their tempers or their lusts.

Silencing a Bore.

De Mille, the playwright, was dining with a party of gentlemen some years ago, when one of the number, who had taken more wine than was good for his wits, became obnoxiously talkative. Efforts were made in many delicate ways to call the offender to order, but they seemed only to incite him to increased chatter. Finally when it became apparent that the party must either put a stop to the foolish fellow's talk or take an adjournment, Mr. De Mille turned to him and asked if he had heard the latest parrot story. The gabbler said he had not.

"You won't take offence if I tell it."

"How can I?" asked the victim, innocently.

"Assure me that you will not think I mean to make any personal application, and I will tell it," said the dramatist.

"Of course I won't," and the offender gave the floor and his eager attention to Mr. De Mille.

"Well," said the playwright, "the parrot sat upon his perch in one corner of the room. A bulldog, a newcomer in the household, lay in another corner."

"S-s-sick 'em," said the parrot, "sick 'em, Tige!"

"The new dog bounded to his feet and looked for something to seek, but, finding nothing lay down again."

The parrot clambered down from his perch, and waddled across to where the dog was lying.

"S-s-sick 'em, Tige," he said again.

"This time Tige found something to seek. He pounced upon the parrot, tore him, shook him, and boxed him about, until the poor bird was well-nigh dead. When the dog had been called off, the parrot labored up to his perch, looked about the floor where his beautiful feathers lay scattered, scanned himself minutely, noted his one remaining tail-feather, and said, 'I know what's the matter with me; I talk too much.'"

The dinner went on without further interruption.

The Deadly Parallel.

(New Haven Register.)

Of R. B. Hull, the Yale senior who won the Thatcher debating prize, a story has been floating about New Haven.

Young Mr. Hull happened to be reading and smoking on an afternoon walk when an elderly clergyman stopped him and tried to induce him to give up tobacco.

"Young man," the clergyman said, "are you aware that in all creation you won't find an animal except man that smokes?"

"Yes," Mr. Hull answered, smiling "and neither do I find in all creation any animal that cooks its food."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surface of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Drummond's Unpublished Poem.

(Boston Transcript.)

It seems that our charming Canadian guest of a few years ago, Dr. Drummond, the poet, who has immortalized the "habitant" dialect, gave to his friend, Walter Brackett, the trout painter (they were fond companions of the fishing pool), while here in Boston last, a copy of the verses which he recited in the studio with tears streaming down his face, and which, because they commemorate the poet's own son, Mr. Brackett has thought too sacred and intimate ever to published in the lifetime of the author. They are published here as an affectionate tribute to the gifted lover of things "both great and small":

THE DREAM.

Las' night w'en I'm sleeping I dream a dream,
An' a wonderful wan it seem—
For I'm off on de road I was never see,
Too long an' hard for a man lak me,
So ole he can only wait the call
Is sooner or later come to all.

De night is dark an' de portage dere
Is narrow, wit' log lyin' ev'rywhere,
Black bush aroun' on de right an' lef',
A step from de road, an' you los' yours'f;
De moon an' de star above is gone,
Yet somet'ing tell me I mus' go on.

An' off in front of me as I go,
Light as a dreef of de fallin' snow,
Who is dat leetle boy dancin' dere?
Can see hees white dress an' curly hair,
Can almos' touch heem so near to me,
In an' out dere among de tree—

An' den I hearin' a voice is say
"Come along, fader, don't min' de way,
De boss on de camp is sen' for you,
So you' leetle boy is goin' to guide you troo;
It's easy for me, for de road I know,
'Cos I travel it many year ago."

An' O? Mon Dieu! W'en he turn hees head
I'm seein' de face of ma boy is dead—
Dead wi' de young blood in hees vein,
An' dere before me he come again,
Wit' de curly hair an' dark blue eye,
So lak de blue on de summer sky—

An' now no more for de road I care,
An' slippery log lyin' ev'rywhere,
De swamp in de valley, de mountain, too,
But climb it jus' as I use to do,
Don't stop on de road, for I need no res',
So long as it's dere, de leetle wite dress—

An' I foller it on, an' wance in a wile
He trun again wit' de baby smile,
An' say, "Dear fader, I'm here, you see,
We're bote togeder, jus' you an' me,
Very dark to you, but to me it's light,
De road we travel so far tonight—

"De boss on de camp w'ere I always stay
Since ever de tam I was go away,
He welcom de poores' man dat call,
But love de chil'ren de bes' of all—
So dat's de reason I spik for you,
An' come to night for to bring you troo."

Lak de young Jesu w'en He's here below
Do face of my leetle son look jus' so—
Den off beyon' on de wood I see
De wite dress fading among de tree—

Was it a dream I dream las' night
Is goin' away on de mornin' light?

LAME BACK.

This is an ailment for which Chamberlain's Pain Balm has proven especially valuable. In almost every instance it affords prompt and permanent relief. Mr. Luke LeGrange of Orange, Mich., says of it: "After using a plaster and other remedies for three weeks for a bad lame back, I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and two applications effected a cure." For sale by All Dealers.
