PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause in congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—coaxes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.
If you have a headache, it's blood pressure. If it's painful periods with women, same cause. If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.
Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply common sense.
We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

A Last Will and Testament.

A young Chicago lawyer with an original humour and nice fancy one day in the year 1898 wrote a last will and testament for an imaginary client and sent it to Harpers Weekly who published it. Though buried in the files of a weekly paper ten years old it has been resurrected and is again being admired for its sweetness and light. Below is the text of the document.

In the Name of God, Amen—I, Charles Lounsbury, being of sound and disposing mind and memory (he lingered on the word memory), do now make and publish this day my last will and testament, in order, as justly as I may, to distribute my interests in the world among succeeding men.

And, first, that part of my interests which is known in the law and recognized in the sheep-bound volumes as my property, being inconsiderable and of none account, I make no account of it in this, my will.

My right to live, it being but a life-estate, is not at my disposal, but, these things excepted, all else in the world I now proceed to devise and bequeath:

Item—And first, I give to good fathers and mothers, but in trust for their children, nevertheless, all good little works of praise and all quaint pet names, and I charge said parents to use them justly but generously as the needs of their children shall require.

Item—I leave to children exclusively, but only for the life of their childhood, all and every, the dandelions of the fields and the daisies thereof, with the right to play among them freely, according to the custom of children, warning them at the same time against the thistles. And I devise to children the yellow shores of creeks and the golden sands beneath the waters thereof, with the dragonflies that skim the surface of said waters, and the odors of the willows that dip into said waters, and the white clouds that float high over the giant trees.

And I leave to children the long, long days to be merry in, in a thousand ways, and the night and the moon and the train of the Milky Way to wonder at, but subject, nevertheless, to the right hereinafter given to lovers; and I give to each child the right to choose a star that shall be his, and I direct that the child's father shall tell him the name of it, in order that the child shall always remember the name of that star after he has learned and forgotten astronomy.

Item—I devise to boys jointly all the useful idle fields and commons where ball may be played, and all snow-clad hills where one may coast, and all streams and ponds where one may skate, to have and to hold the same for the period of their boyhood. And all meadows, with the clover blooms and butterflies thereof; and all woods, with their appurtenances of squirrels and whirring birds and echoes and strange noises; and all distant places which may be visited, together with the adventures there found. I do give to said boys to be theirs, and I give to said boys each his own place at the fireside at night, with all pictures that may be seen in the burning wood or coal, to enjoy without let or hindrance and without any encumbrance of cares.

Item—To lovers, I devise their imaginary world, with whatever they may need, as the stars of the sky, the red, red roses by the wall, the snow of the hawthorn, the sweet strains of music, or aught else they may desire to figure to each other the lastingness and beauty of their love.

Item—To young men jointly, being joined in a brave, mad crowd, I devise and bequeath all boisterous, inspiring sports of rivalry. I give to them the disdain of weakness and undaunted confidence in their own strength. Though they are rude and rough, I leave to them alone the power of making lasting friendships and of possessing companions; and to them exclusively I give all merry songs and brave choruses to sing, with smooth voices to troll them forth.

Item—And to those who are no longer children or youths or lovers, I leave Memory, and I leave to them the volumes of the poems of Burns and Shakespeare, and of other poets, if there are others, to the end that they may live the old days over again freely and fully, without tithe or diminution; and to those who are no longer children or youths or lovers, I leave, too, the knowledge of what a rare, rare world it is.

The Ways of a Mole.

"While fishing I noticed a very small molehill," says a writer. "After a short time a quantity of earth was shovelled out, and so I quickly scraped away the loose earth and found the hole. I traced the tunnel until I noticed movements in the soil, and caught sight of some black fur, which immediately began to disappear in a downward direction. I had some difficulty to dig it out, and when I at last caught it it gave me a series of scratches with its powerful paws, crusing me to release it, when it ran along the ground, prodding the soil as it went, in its endeavors to find a soft enough place to begin burrowing. I soon caught it again and imprisoned it in my bait can. It seemed to resent being handled and uttered a peculiar hissing noise. I carried it home and placed a large box half full of earth at its disposal. The mole had a ravenous appetite. When given a piece of raw meat it would place its large fore paws on the flesh and tear off pieces with its teeth. In eating worms it would place one fore paw on each end of the worm, beginning to eat from the middle.

"Its senses seemed very acute, for when a dog came near to its box when it was on the top it would immediately burrow underneath at a great rate, and when I placed it in a tin and put my hand anywhere near it it usually came and smelt it directly, never attempting to bite; even when handled it only tried to force away my hand with its forepaws. When the earth in its box was loose it burrowed at a tremendous pace, forcing back the loose earth with its hind legs; when I packed the earth tightly down it would run about the box poking its long snout into the ground as it went until it found a soft enough place, when it would immediately start burrowing.

"Its eyes were very small, and it seemed only able to distinguish between light and dark. It disliked sunshine, and never cared to come up of its own accord when the sun was out. Its front paws were possessed of tremendous strength, while its hind legs were comparatively weak. It seemed to be quite healthy as long as I had it, some three weeks or so, and it took a great deal of exercise, honeycombing the earth in its box with tunnels. I eventually let it go."

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart, or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the RESULT of your ailment, and not THE CAUSE. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitable have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for samples and free book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by All Dealers.

Cute Man.

He had finished his introductory remarks and was about to propose, when he discovered that his proposal would be treated with contempt.

"Go on Mr. Sprigger," she said, impatiently, tapping her foot on the carpet as he paused in his remarks.

"I was about to say, Miss Hilder," he continued, "that I am aware that the human heart, especially a woman's is a delicate thing and I come to-night to correct a wrong impression, which you have been under for some time, I think. To be plain, Miss Hilder—because I do not wish you future suffering—let me state that I have never cared enough for you to ask you to link your lot with mine; therefore I do not think I can return the love you bear me. My attentions to you have been prompted purely by a friendly feeling—nothing more. But I trust this will not mar our friendly relations," he said, taking his hat to go, "for, remember you will always have in me a true friend. Be assured I will always be a nephew to you."

And she was so dumb with surprise that she didn't say good-bye to him when he bowed himself out.
