Mothers and Their Boys.

No matter how carefully a boy has been trained, he is apt to become more or less troublesome when he reaches the age of fifteen years. It is at this time that a mother should do all in her power to make a boy happy at home, and to give him such interests as he will be happier at home than anywhere else. Study his likes and dislikes, and in so far as it is possible, indulge him in many little whims that are harmless. If he thinks that his room will look better if the bed stands in the opposite corner, there will be no harm, but much good, done if he be allowed to make the change. If there is the least taste for decoration, let him decorate his room to suit himself. Spare a few dollars, if possible, to have his room repapered, and be sure to select some paper that will suit his taste, even if it may be at the expense of your own. It is nearly always possible to direct his thoughts in the proper channel if you go about it in the right way. If papering is to be done talk to him about it, and tell him how pretty a room for a boy may be made to look if certain ideas are carried out. By the time the paper is to be selected you will find that he has come around to your way of thinking, and will perhaps suggest that you select the paper for him. Be sure to have a picture moulding, or, if possible, a narrow shelf put around his room on which he may display all his cups and other trophies from the races or regattas. His pictures, too, will be numerous, if not elegant; so supply him generously with picture wire and hangers. Be sure that he has a bookcase in his room, and see that it is liberally supplied from time to time with books that are wholesome. If his taste has been trained for good reading, you need not fear that he will ever care for the poor trash that is selected by less fortunate boys. A few books given at Christmas or on his birthday will cost but little, but will go far toward keeping your boy in the house at night, when less fortunate boys are learning much to be deplored by meeting with undesirable acquaintances. Should your boy show any aptitude for mechanics, fit up a good carpenter's bench for him in the cellar or garret, or, better still in some small room near his own room, where he may feel that it belongs to him. Supply him with tools and material for whatever he desires to make, and be only too thankful that you are able to spend your money for him in such a harmless manner. If he is socially inclined, invite pleasant companions to his home, so that you may become acquainted, and in this manner you may select such young people for his friends as will be advantageous for him to have. Ask his boy friends to spend the evening with him, have them to supper and in the evening; see that there is a generous dish of apples and nuts on the table in his room. A few games will help them spend a pleasant evening, and especially so if you will learn to enter into the pleasure with them. Do not be above enjoying heartily any of the games that boys enjoy. Many of the games are really very instructive, and may be played with benefit to you as well as to the boys. If there are other children let the girls invite their friends, and be sure to so plan the entertainment that the boys will be glad to join in the games.

Capital Punishment.

Capital punishment is still practised in many countries, though of late years it has been made as humane as possible. That creation of the French Revolution, the guillotine, is still used by some countries, and the old executioner's axe deals out justice in Brunswick.

The most humane method of execution, the electric chair, is used only in the United States. Spain employs the garrote, or iron collar, which is tightened until the victim strangles to death; and in Prussia the heads of prisoners are struck off with the sword. The guillotine is used in Bavaria and Belgium; and Russia destroys her criminals by shooting, hanging, and with the executioner's sword. The gallows is the official means of administering death in Great Britain; Austria has adopted the same means; but Chinese criminals are killed by the sword.

Tetter Cured.

A lady customer of ours had suffered with tetter for two or three years. It got so bad on her hands that she could not attend to her household duties. One box of Chamberlain's Salve cured her. Chamberlain's medicines give splendid satisfaction in this community.—M. H. RODNEY & Co., Almond, Ala. Chamberlain's medicines are for sale by All Dealers.

How Marbles Are Made.

Most of the stone marbles used by boys are made in Germany. The refuse only of the marble and agate quarries is employed, and this is treated in such a way that there is practically no waste.

Men and boys are employed to break the refuse stone into small cubes, and with their hammers they acquire a marvellous dexterity. The little cubes are then thrown into a mill consisting of a grooved bedstone and a revolving runner. Water is fed to the mill, and the runner is rapidly revolved, while the friction does the rest.

In half an hour the mill is stopped and a bushel or so of perfectly-rounded marbles are taken out. The whole process costs the merest trifle.—Philadelphia Record.

Stomach Troubles of Long Standing.

WHEN DOCTORS' TREATMENT FAILED THIS SEVERE CASE WAS ENTIRELY CURED BY

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Doctors failed to cure Mr. De Courcey because they were satisfied to treat the stomach instead of getting at the cause of trouble in the liver and bowels.

The most complicated and deep-seated digestive troubles yield to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, because of their direct and combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels. We are continually receiving such letters as the following in regard to the failure of mere stomach treatment:—

Mr. Patrick De Courcey, Midgell, lot 40, P. E. I. writes:—"For some time I had stomach trouble, and was scarcely able to do anything at all. I was treated by doctors, but they did not seem to do me any good. A friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I did so, to very great advantage, for my old trouble has disappeared, and, though past middle age, I feel young and hearty again. I have great confidence in Dr. Chase's medicine."

Another interesting case of liver derangements and stomach troubles is that described in this letter:—

Mrs. James Monteith, Saurin, Simcoe county, Ont., writes:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for liver complaint, biliousness and terrible sick headaches and have found that they are more effective than any treatment I ever tried. They cleanse the system thoroughly, remove the cause of pains and aches and make you feel fresh and strong again. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are also excellent for stomach troubles."

By means of their direct and specific action on the liver—causing a healthful flow of bile—they regulate and enliven the action of the bowels and ensure good digestion in the intestines. At the same time they stimulate the kidneys in their work of filtering poisons from the blood.

With no particular grievance except that they were "just tired of work," every negro trained nurse in the Lamar Hospital, a large institution for negroes, says an Augusta, Ga., despatch, walked out Tuesday, leaving no one but the white superintendent and three internes to care for forty patients, some of whom are in a critical condition. The Lamar Hospital has heretofore employed negro nurses exclusively, under the direction of a white superintendent. The managers say that the places of the strikers will be filled with whites, and the negroes about the institution will be dispensed with.

Do Not Neglect the Children.

At this season of the year the first unnatural looseness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention. The best thing that can be given is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by castor oil as directed with each bottle of the remedy. For sale by All Dealers.

The Unholy League.

Cold blooded inhumanity never expressed itself in more heartless terms than in the announcement that the leading distillers of Canada are combining their great wealth to establish a distilling plant at Winnipeg, to occupy sixty acres, for the purpose of transforming the bounteous harvests with which God is blessing our new provinces into death for the people of those provinces. When some Tartar savage, accounting himself the scourge of God, planned a raid over a thousand miles of Europe, burning and slaying as he went, he at least did not do it in cold blood for dividends. The calculation is that practically all the whiskey made in this enormous plant will be drunk on the prairies. Are these distillers never troubled with a dream as to what that means? Have they never a thought but for dividends? Are they human? Poor distraught Carrie Nation, whose extravagances with her hatchet have afforded so much mirth to the liquor selling world, knew something of it. When the lone monotony of the prairie home, almost sufficient in itself, like solitary confinement, to dethrone the reason, is varied only by the fearful looking for the return of a demented husband, the only human being in miles, except perhaps some helpless children, we have a life of horror compared with which the raids of an Attila or a Timur, once in a lifetime, would be as nothing, and yet to keep this fearful river of death flowing, that would need to be the history of every third or fourth home on the prairies. Will Manitoba stand this? Will Saskatchewan and Alberta permit their new settlers to become the prey of such inhuman greed? It may be asked; what can they do, when even the Ross government of Ontario succumbed to the whiskey ring, and they have a much larger proportion of untutored foreigners than Ontario had? We can only say, it is time for them to rebel before they become the slaves of bar room politics. This raid on the welfare and happiness on one-half of our country, and that the half in which all our hopes are at present centred, is deliberately planned in the full light of day in this twentieth century. We in Canada used to lead the van in our war against liquor. Our consumption was the smallest in Christendom. Here are rich Canadians who would have it otherwise. They are jealous lest the new provinces should give a majority for prohibition and are determined to corrupt them first. This announcement comes just when the churches are all in session planning what they can do for the North-west. It is like a great Satanic grin at their puny efforts. It says while you are planting a church or two, we are going to plant temptation within reach of every home. It is about time, not that each church or denomination should protest separately, but that all should meet together on common ground and declare, this shall not be.—Witness.
