

A Boston schoolboy was tall,
weak and sickly.

His arms were soft and flabby.
He didn't have a strong muscle in his entire body.

ALL DRUGGISTS; 50c. AND $1.00.

The principle of exclusionism has found a cruel illustration in the refusal of the United States Government to allow a Toronto printer to go to Colorado Springs. It is of no interest one way or the other that the International Typographical Union has a home there for consumptives, and that this man has a right to its privileges. The United States Government has nothing to do with that. But it is a well-known fact that Colorado is the refuge of consumptives from all over the world, and that it is commonly believed that many of them can live there who are doomed to death anywhere else. Whether this is true or not is little to the point. If people believe, if experts insist on it, that is the great fact. Moreover, faith is a very large element in cure, perhaps the greatest of all. To say to a victim fleeing from the white plague, 'Yes, we have the place where your life may be saved; our own people flock there; but because you are a foreigner you must stay at home and die,' differs very little from the act of the wrecker who, when he sees the shipwrecked man climbing up the rocks of his coast, throws him back into the sea. We are not ourselves under the belief that Colorado is the only place where consumptives can have the best chances of life. There is no country more wholesome for them than our own. We think districts of it should be set apart as sanatoria for their cure—districts large enough to afford them scope for living, and in which they might under proper instructions as to habits, have no fear of being looked on as intrusive or unwelcome. We hope that when we do this it may never be said that we refused to any human being, no matter whence, the privilege of asylum.

PUT NEW BLOOD
Into the Arteries

AND THE FEELING OF WEAKNESS
AND FATIGUE WILL GIVE WAY TO HEALTH AND VIGOR.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

At this time of year nothing is of such great value to the human system as new, rich blood. Feelings of languor and depression, headaches, sleeplessness, irritability, impaired digestion, nervousness—these all tell of thin, watery blood and a run-down system.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is, above all else, a blood-building restorative, which puts new blood into the arteries, and by so doing lays the foundation for health and vigor.

It sharpens up the appetite, strengthens the nerves which control the flow of digestive fluids, forms new, firm flesh and tissues, and gives vigor to the vital organs of the body.

Mr. Fred H. Gould, Parry, Hastings Co., Ont., writes: "I was troubled with nervous headache, which at times was very painful and caused much suffering. It has been thoroughly cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I can recommend this treatment most highly and believe that as a general system builder it has no equal."

Mrs. W. Chappel, Barrie, Ont., writes, "I have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a means of building up the nervous system and improving the health generally and have also found it a good remedy for female troubles."

"We have used Dr. Chase's Ointment as a household remedy for all kinds of sores and cuts and think it is a splendid ointment."

You can be sure that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is doing you good because each dose goes to the formation of a certain amount of pure, rich, red blood. It cures by the building-up process, and its cures are therefore thorough and lasting; 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers, or Elmsman, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Cleaning Cut Glass.

A small paint brush with long, strong, supple bristles is the very best thing with which to keep cut glass free from dust.

It is really the only means of reaching the dust which lodges in small carvings.

To wash cut glass use borax in the water, and the result will be sparkling, shining glass that glistens as brilliantly as it did when new.

If a cut glass cruet has become stained with vinegar sediment, or a vase with sediment from flowers, or any piece of glass where it is hard to reach into to wash, chop up a peeled raw potato and put into bottle with sufficient water or suds to just cover the potato.

Leave it for several hours, giving an occasional shaking, empty and rinse well.

If necessary, repeat. The results will be found most satisfactory.

LINGERING COLD

Withstood Other Treatment But Quickly
Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"Last winter I caught a very severe cold which lingered for weeks," says J. Urquhart, of Zephyr, Ontario. "My cough was very dry and harsh. The local dealer recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and guaranteed it, so I gave it a trial. One small bottle of it cured me. I believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be the best I have ever used." This remedy is for sale by all dealers.

American Influence in Japanese Education.

(K. K. Kawakami in Putnam's Monthly for October.)

The signal change wrought in the status of the Japanese woman is, to a measure, an outcome of an advanced educational system. The feminine attendants of public schools today equal, if not outnumber, their male attendants; girls' schools for higher education have been increased year after year, and the present tendency is toward elevating the grade of female education still higher. I may be well to note in passing that the American influence is largely responsible for this forward movement in the field of female education in Japan. Many Japanese graduates from Bryn Mawr or Wellesley, whose typical representative is found in the Marchioness Oyama, wife of the famous Field Marshal Oyama, have carried back with them the spirit and ideals of American colleges for girls and championed the cause of higher education for their sisters at home. Mr. Naruse, founder and president of the Japan Woman's University, was educated in the United States and derived his inspiration from American institutions exclusively devoted to the education of the gentler sex. These pioneers of American education, while rejecting the system of co-education, are nevertheless striving to develop an unique institution aimed at the training of the fair sex as women, as citizens, and as members of society.

From childhood the Japanese women, however, were taught to defend their honor even with death, and their discipline in the arts of self-defense was as thorough as that of their samurai brothers. The samurai woman must be as brave, as self-controlled, as calmly self-sacrificing as her father or her husband.

An Interesting Personality.

Mrs. Falconer, wife of the president of Toronto University, has, during her short sojourn among college folks, present and "ex," made many friends and given the impression of a decided personality and bent of mind quite distinct from, though perfectly in harmony with, that of her husband.

After all, a woman does not stand before the footlights of life as a man does, and her point of view is something more personal and difficult to discover than his. Yet no one can talk to Mrs. Falconer for many minutes before becoming aware of the fact that decision is one of her characteristics and tact another.

She is the very opposite to the shy or hesitating creature which has sometimes been represented as the ideal woman, to the permanent delusion of the credulous. On the contrary the president's wife has a frank, free and calm way of expressing her opinion whenever based on facts which is nowise contradicted by the fact that she refused to express herself on anything which she has not thoroughly been informed upon.

Addressing the women of University College for the first time in a few well-chosen words at the autumn tea, her remarks were couched in remarkable ready language, considering the fact that they were impromptu and their matter was most interesting.

Mrs. Falconer held up the university ideal in its truest sense to our girls, and her wish for them expressed earnestly and with eloquence, was that they should become ideal women, free from the pitfall of self-assertion so dangerous to the college woman, and dispising all but the very highest aims, not seeking the mean and vulgar end of attracting attention to themselves or winning admiration, but bent upon the noble one of building character.

The women of University College may well feel that they have found a true friend in the new president's wife, and her popularity among them is already assured, for the girls all vote her "sensible and sweet," which is the feminine way of characterizing sweet reasonableness.

His Brother's Forethought.

A Tammany man tells a story in connection with a caucus held in Troy some years ago as illustrating how fully alive the Celts of that city were to the opportunities of American citizenship.

During the caucus in one of the lower wards of the city, a certain Michael Mulcahy was nominated for a minor position on the ward ticket to be voted for at the charter election. Some inquiries were made of Thomas Mulcahy as to who this person bearing the same name might be, as no one in the neighborhood could call him to mind.

"He's me brother," explained Tom, with cheerful alacrity. "He's not arrived in the country yet, but he tuk ship av a Wednesday, an' 'll be here in toime for the election."

An Honest Opinion.

Mrs. Ruggles, of South Pittsburg, had been to the Carnegie Institute one Saturday afternoon and had been much interested in the statuary on exhibition there.

On giving an account of the trip to a neighbor, she said, "I have seen that fellow what they call Adonis, and I've seen Ruggles, and of the two, give me Ruggles."
