Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.
It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.
For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and salivary complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.

ALL DEALERS
Take It Yourself

There is so much Rheumatism here in our neighborhood now that the following advice by an eminent authority, who writes for readers of a large Eastern daily paper, will be highly appreciated by those who suffer:
Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.
It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturing disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after awhile.
Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

What He Meant.

A young man of Boston who had failed to pay his laundry bill endeavored to turn his Chinaman aside from inquiry by an attack upon the Celestial's manner of speech.
"Why do you say 'Fliday,' John?" he asked.
"Say Fliday because I mean Friday," replied John, stoutly. "No say Fliday and mean maybe week after nex', like Mexican man."

Quinsy, Sprains and Swellings Cured.

"In November, 1903, I caught cold and had the quinsy. My throat was swollen so I could hardly breathe. I applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it gave me relief in a short time. In two days I was all right," says Mrs. L. Cousins, Otterburn, Mich. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is a liniment and is especially valuable for sprains and swellings. For sale by All Dealers.

A Fable.

In days of yore, when the world was young a Bee that had stored her combs with a bountiful harvest, flew up to heaven to present as a sacrifice an offering of honey. Jupiter was so delighted with the gift, that he promised to give her whatsoever she should ask for. She therefore besought him, saying: "O glorious Jove, maker and master of me, poor Bee, give thy servant a sting, that when any one approaches may hive to take the honey. I may kill him on the spot." Jupiter, out of love to man, was angry at her request, and thus answered her:
"Your prayer shall not be granted in the way you wish, but the sting which you ask for you shall have; and when anyone comes to take away your honey and you attack him, the wound shall be fatal not to him but to you, for your life shall go with your sting."
He that prays harm for his neighbor, begs a curse upon himself.

Trial Catarrh treatments are being mailed out free, on request, by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. These tests are proving to the people—without a penny's cost—the great value of this scientific prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy. Sold by all druggists.

The gray squirrels hide their nuts, one in a place, guided to them probably by the sense of smell, and they are considered as the champton tree-planters. The red squirrel carries his treasures one by one. These latter, the flying squirrels and many mice store their provisions in various groups in holes or under trees. If accident befalls the little owner, there is possibility of the hidden stores sprouting and the fulfilment by the seed of its natural mission.

The chipmunk has his underground tunneled chambers in which he spends the winter season and keeps the supply of his larder. One of these retreats was once opened and the following stores found: A quart of beaked hazelnuts, about a peck of acorns, some grains of Indian corn, about two quarts of buckwheat and a quantity of grass seed.

Hartland Chinaman in Court.

One day last week Sam Fong, the Chinese laundryman at Hartland, was summoned to appear before Marvin L. Hayward, J. P., to answer the demand of the Rev. S. W. Bennison for the sum of $1.50 to cover the cost of a shirt and two collars which Mr. Bennison said were missing from the lot of clothes he had left to be laundered.

Albert Orser, Esq., appeared in behalf of the defendant and the plaintiff pleaded his own case. He alleged that he had left two shirts and three collars. The next day (Sunday) after getting his clothes back and while fixing himself up for preaching at Carlisle, he opened the package and found it to contain only one shirt and one collar. He produced the laundry slip which the court received as evidence. He also said he went to the laundryman about the matter but got little satisfaction. "Now," concluded the reverend gentleman, "in the shuffle I got a misdeal, and I want redress."

The Chinaman said he received the garments enumerated and also delivered them; said the bill was in his handwriting and was correct; the bundle delivered had contained the full complement.

The jury, after being left alone for half an hour, returned a verdict for the plaintiff, allowing him seventy-five cents, the probable value of the garments at the time of their loss. The jury were of the opinion that both men testified to what they believed to be the truth but that one of them was mistaken and that as all laundrymen, white or yellow, frequently "queer the deal" in the matter of delivering work, it was held probable that Sam had fallen into the common error.

The Chinaman paid all costs without demur. But afterwards so he was exceedingly voluble in his wrath. He stated that while for years he had been a strict-living member of the Presbyterian church, he would then and there renounce Christianity, and would "lie and swear and drink like hell."

The plaintiff, an elder in the Primitive Baptist church, is an old man, well known in the county. He had little to say, having won, and sat complacently filling his pipe when the Chinaman eyed him with infinite scorn. "Smoke that you, smoke," hissed Sam, as he closed the door after his retreat.

It may be said that Mr. Fong is a well-behaved citizen, has the respect and confidence of the community, does his work well, regularly attends church, and that neither his social or business standing is impaired by the litigation he was brought into.

Stomach troubles, Heart and Kidney ailments, can be quickly corrected with a prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The prompt and surprising relief which this remedy immediately brings is entirely due to its Restorative action upon the controlling nerves of the Stomach, etc.

The Moral Purpose of John Gertz.

The story of the illness and death of John Gertz, habitual drunkard, in Chicago, has elements of tragedy most impressive and strength of will most exceptional in the circumstances. He had been thrice arrested for drunkenness. On the last occasion, he gave the judge his word that he would never again touch a drop of liquor. He was released, went home and kept his word until August, when he was taken ill, and, for an entire month, raved on his bed, conscious of only two things—that he craved for whiskey and that he had promised not to touch it. Finally his wife, pitying his sufferings, brought him some whiskey. He raised himself in bed to take it, but just as he put it to his lips, he remembered his pledge, and dashed the glass across the room. He lapsed into semi-delirium and Mrs. Gertz offered some more whiskey, but again he threw it away, just as he was seized by the final stroke of heart failure ending in death. Anyone who has ever seen a man suffering from delirium tremens will admit that this unhappy man gave proof of remarkable strength in keeping his word, rejecting the liquor which professed relief and accepting the dread alternative of an agonizing death. A more terrible object lesson could hardly be presented. John Gertz had so saturated his physical system with drink that he had become alcoholized. Every organ, every cell in his body craved the stimulant and seemingly refused to carry on their functions without it. Yet the will of the victim to this horrible disease, the evident innate strength of his moral fibre, was such that he died rather than surrender to it. Pity such strength of mind and purpose were not exerted earlier.

Corrected.

It was at a reunion of a gallant Irish regiment, and in due course a member rose to express his carefully rehearsed sentiment.
"Here's to th' ould Fifty-ninth," he began, hostily, "th' last in th' field an' th' first to lave ut!"
"Ye muddler!" shouted a compatriot, springing to his feet. "Here's to th' ould Fifty-ninth, equal to none!"

Low Minded Blackguards.

When you hear a man impugning the honor of all the rest of his fellows, shift your pocketbook to a safe place. When you find a man claiming that chastity is a name only, and that virtue is an unknown quantity in women, give the leprous creature a wide berth. "Honi soit qui mal y pense"; "as a man thinketh in his heart so is he," is the scripture translation of this old French proverb. It is the scoundrel always who desires to see everything brought to his own dead level, that cynically sneers at good and sniffs at purity. It is the polluted, rotten heart that scents carrion in every other life. The pure hearted and true find everywhere wholesomeness and truth; the honorable and just find plenty of probity and righteousness even in this world. My friend, condemn not thine own self by the estimate thou puttest upon the worth of thy fellows.
