Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

It Was His Dog.

An automobile dashed along the country road. Turning a curve, it came suddenly upon a man with a gun on his shoulder and a weak, sick-looking old dog beside him. The dog was directly in the path of the motor-car. The chauffeur sounded his horn, but the dog did not move—until he was struck. After that he did not move.

The automobile stopped and one of the men got out and came forward. He had once paid a farmer ten dollars for killing a calf that belonged to another farmer. This time he was wary.

"Was that your dog?"
"Yes."
"You own him?"
"Yes."
"Looks as if we'd killed him."
"Certainly looks so."
"Very valuable dog?"
"Well, not so very."
"Will five dollars satisfy you?"
"Yes."
"Well, then, here you are." He handed a five-dollar bill to the man with the gun, and added, pleasantly, "I'm sorry to have broken up your hunt."

"I wasn't going hunting," replied the other, as he pocketed the bill.
"Not going hunting? Then what were you doing with the dog and the gun?"
"Going down to the woods to shoot the dog."

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and may Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart, or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the RESULT of your ailment, and not the CAUSE. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for samples and free book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all Dealers.

Provocation Enough.

A deaf old gentleman dined with a family where grace was always said. When the guests were seated the host bowed his head and began to repeat the accustomed verse in a subdued, reverent tone.

"Eh? What's that?" demanded the deaf old gentleman, who sat beside him.

The host smiled patiently and began again, in a louder, more deprecatory voice.

"Speak a little louder. I don't catch what you say," the old gentleman persisted.

A low ripple of laughter went round the table. The host, his face crimson with embarrassment, raised his voice and repeated the verse. The deaf gentleman did his best to hear, but failed. He placed one hand upon his host's arm.

"What did you say?" he demanded irascibly.

The host cast him an angry glance.

"D—n it, I'm saying grace," he snapped.

Benedictines to Revise the Vulgate.

In a despatch from Rome the correspondent of the Times says he learns the Pope has issued a decree entrusting the entire revision of the Vulgate to the Benedictine order. This is the most important decision yet announced, the correspondent continues, as an outcome of the Biblical Commission appointed toward the end of the pontificate of Leo. XIII.

In an editorial article the Times says it is difficult to overestimate the importance of this step. "No book," the paper declares, "has exercised a wider and more powerful influence in moulding the faith, morals, thought and traditions of the literature of the European world than the Latin version of the Scriptures, which we know as the Vulgate."

A Plan of the Farm.

Prof. Hunt of Cornell University believes that every farmer should have a plan of his farm committed to paper in such a permanent form that it is not likely to be destroyed; the main divisions, that is the fields, should be named lettered or numbered, and be known by those names, letters or numbers at all times. A record should be kept of the rotation of crops, of the production, manuring, and other important transactions in connection with each of these divisions or fields. Each field will soon acquire a separate and distinct individuality and will be treated accordingly. The historical record of the fields on a farm mapped out according to such a plan will prove a matter of increasing interest from year to year and will assist the farmer in so treating his soil that he will get the maximum crop production at the minimum cost. This, together with increased fertility, is the object of modern farm practise. It may also be added that each farm should have its appropriate name and become known socially and commercially by its name. It seems a simple thing to name a farm, and yet it adds so much to the interest and dignity of rural life that its importance soon becomes apparent and far-reaching.

Good Cooking.

"Good cooking is one of the most effective means of stifling the craving for drink, which is the root of so much evil. Bad cooking is one of the most effective causes of an unequal thirst, and the demand thus created leads very naturally to a supply in the shape of alcoholics. . . . There is probably a mental effect produced by a pleasant well cooked meal, which effects the brain and nervous system in an appreciable manner, but one at the same time difficult to explain.

Be this as it may there seems no reason to doubt that good cookery and temperance are sworn allies; carelessness in preparing food, and, it may be added, in feeding at large, is the equally staunch ally of intemperance and excess."—Dr. Brunton.

Tetter Cured.

A lady customer of ours had suffered with tetter for two or three years. It got so bad on her hands that she could not attend to her household duties. One box of Chamberlain's Salve cured her. Chamberlain's medicines give splendid satisfaction in this community. —M. H. RODNEY & Co., Almond, Ala. Chamberlain's medicines are for sale by All Dealers.

About Leprosy.

The following assertion regarding leprosy may be accepted as accurate. The cause is a bacillus, which was demonstrated by Dr. Hansen, a Norwegian physician, in 1874, and diagnosis is no longer a matter of inference or guess. The disease is not inherited, and is rarely found in children before the fifth year. It is contagious, but the exact mode of transmission has not been determined. Direct contacts, which permit the bacillus to enter the system of a healthy person through some scratch or abrasion, is the most likely avenue of infection. Leprous women are usually sterile. No cure has been discovered for it, and the use of X-rays, which was prematurely announced as a cure, was deceptive, inasmuch as all patients relapsed. At present the only known method of preventing the spread of leprosy is to avoid contact with it, and to keep the health of the community in good condition by cleanliness, good food, and general sanitation.

How the Pendulum Was Found.
Like many of the commonest mechanical instruments in daily use, the invention of the pendulum is due entirely to chance. Galileo, when under twenty years of age, was standing one day in the metropolitan church of Pisa, while some painters were at work on the ceiling of the church. A suspended lamp which was hanging before the altar was disturbed in some manner, and the scientist was struck with the almost perfect regularity with which it swung back and forth. The idea of measuring time by such an instrument found instant generation in his brain, and he completed the system in use to this day.
