

NEWS FROM THE COUNTY.

WOODSTOCK, N. B., SEPT. 11, 1907.

Centreville.

John Page, of Tracy Mills, died last Friday morning. Mr. Page had been sick but a short time and the message that he was dead came like a shock to his many friends. He was a consistent member of the Free Baptist church at Tracy Mills where he had lived many years. The funeral was held on Sunday and was largely attended.

Agriculture prize lists in neat pamphlet form are being distributed. A number of the business men of Centreville, Woodstock and Florenceville have advertisements inserted which no doubt will help to increase their business. The show will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, the 1st and 2nd of October. A commodious dining room has been added to the Exhibition buildings which will be a great convenience, and if the weather is favorable the committee are expecting this year to surpass all others in both show and attendance.

The election of municipal councillors will take place on the 8th of October, but as yet very little talk is being made in regard to who will be candidates. It is said that Mr. Carvell will retire from municipal honors at the expiration of his present term, and will not again be a candidate. If such is the case it will be necessary to find some other man who can be persuaded to sacrifice himself for the benefit of his constituents.

The report that a citizen of Williamstown was held up near the Boundary Line one dark night last week has greatly increased the sale of firearms in this locality, and the thug who attempts anything again in that direction will no doubt get something unexpected from another direction.

Children and Milk.

In a general consideration of the rearing of children one of the most important points is the food question. It cannot be contested that the physical condition of adult life may be made or marred as this matter is properly understood or not.

A good heredity is the first great gift that parents can bequeath to their offspring, and here it is difficult not to repeat the oft-quoted remark of that wise physician, Oliver Wendell Holmes, that a child's training must be begun on his grandparents. This is true in a physical as well as a moral sense, and it is fortunate for generations yet unborn that we of today should be more and more interested in the establishment and care of physical well-being. At the same time, so all-important is this question of right feeding at the outset of life, that, given two children, one of irreproachable physical ancestry, but fed wrong from the start, and the other of a poor heredity, but fed with scientific knowledge of the needs of the case, the latter would stand the better chance of overcoming the dangers of infancy and growing up into healthy adult life.

The great secret for the first year is, of course, the proper milk supply; first, last, and all the time, pure, clean, correctly handled milk. Breast-fed babies are the luckiest, but where they must be bottle-fed, then this whole matter of milk supply, from the cow to the baby, should be of paramount interest to the mother.

Do you know where the milk comes from? Is it a properly inspected dairy? Are the cows free from tuberculosis? Is the milk taken care of after it leaves the dairy? No amount of white tiling and glittering nickel and fuss and feathers will help if the milk is carelessly looked after behind the scenes by some irresponsible ignoramus after it reaches the city; and the utmost care on the part of all concerned may be undone by your own carelessness or that of your servants if, when the milk reaches you, it is allowed to stand uncovered in hot kitchens, collecting dust or buzzed over by flies.

This question of the milk supply is of the greatest importance, not only to the bottle babies, but all throughout infancy.

It is a wise plan to heat all milk for children's use—to bring it just to the boiling-point, but not to boil it; it may afterwards be cooled to an agreeable temperature. With its second year a child should be gradually accustomed to undiluted milk, and although its diet may be gradually increased, milk still remains the staple.

A frequent mistake is giving children a drink of milk at odd hours, when thirst is complained of. Milk is distinctly a food, and not a beverage, and should be given at regular meal-times. Thirst between meals is better quenched with pure water.

An English Magazine.

The Treasury, an English illustrated magazine that is seeking a circulation in Canada, is particularly interesting this month on account of a picture it contains of the bishops London and Lincoln. As the bishop of London is in Canada at present many people here must wish to see a good portrait of the man and this is an excellent one. The tone of The Treasury is decidedly religious and its conduct is in the interest of the church of England.

However, it contains articles of a secular nature, among which are "Natures Flying Machines" and "On the meaning of words." The magazine also contains a number of short stories. The advertising is not by any means to be overlooked. A firm in London advertises that it will pay the highest price for old artificial teeth. For people who like this kind of Magazine The Treasury will be found interesting and worthy.

Food Value of a Quart of Milk.

Much attention is now being paid to the selection of feeds for our farm animals and but little heed is given to the comparative value of foods for the human family. We quote the following paragraph from Prof. Atwater:

A quart of milk, three-quarters of a pound of moderately fat beef, sirloin steak for instance, and five ounces of wheat flour, all contain about the same amount of nutriment. The milk comes the nearest to being a perfect food. It contains all of the necessary ingredients for nourishment, but in the proportions best for ordinary use.

The steamer Aberdeen added another to the list of its misfortunes on Monday afternoon. As she was laying to after her down river trip she crashed into the Champlain broadside and had her side partly smashed in. Several stanchions were broken. Usually the Aberdeen lies next to the Hampton, but her berth was occupied and she did not navigate to the new one successfully.

SUFFERED 15 YEARS

MR. OZIAL ROUNDS.

A Resident of Welland Finds Relief in Pe-ru-na.

Mr. Ozial Rounds, Welland, Ont., a retired lumberman and a resident of Welland for half a century, writes:

"For fifteen years prior to 1900 I was a sufferer from hay asthma and chronic diarrhoea. I grew weak and emaciated and was tortured with insomnia.

"I was treated by eminent physicians but, if anything, was worse than ever. In fact, I was in as miserable a condition as a man could be.

"However, I chanced to try Peruna and noticed an improvement. Thus encouraged, I continued, and after taking several bottles of your precious Peruna, I was entirely well and a wonder to myself and friends.

"If, at my advanced age, 63 years, I have obtained such good results from Peruna, after so many years of needless suffering, there can be no doubt of its efficacy in the treatment of younger persons."
