ALL DRUGGISTS: 50c. AND $1.00

A Group, by an Old Master.

Already the crop of tourist tales ripens toward harvest, and already it is evident that as always, the ignorant newly rich will figure largely in them. The Mrs. Struckle of a decade ago, whose daughter, because she had successfully decorated handkerchief-boxes for the charity bazaar, was taken abroad to "study under Raphael," finds a parallel in the pretentious woman of wealth whose de ck chair conversation with her neighbor on her first trip abroad was recently reported.

"Yes," said Mrs. Haggerty, with an effect of haughty carelessness, "me and the girls are running across for a few months.

"No, it ain't scenery—there's enough of that on our side o' the pond; and it ain't society—the girls are all used up a'ready with society keeping 'em on the go, day in, day out, and I want they should rest.

"What we're going for this time is to have their pictures took—I should say painted. Haggerty wants 'em done, all three together, in a family group, by an old master.

"He'd ha' paid his passage over, too, instead of us having to go—there's no halfway about Haggerty—if only the man would have come; but Estanella's drawing-teacher seemed to think he wouldn't. He didn't seem to say any of 'em would; he seemed quite amused at the idea. Well, I don't see why I must say; Haggerty would ha' made it worth their while.

"No, I don't know which old master; fashions change so, I thought we'd better wait till we got across, and find out on the spot who's most popular.

"Seems odd, don't it, it always stays the old masters? You'd think the young men would catch up and pass 'em; but they never seem to.

"Well, whoever it is does my girls, they're good-looking girls, and ought to make a real nice picture; but I must say it would seem more kinder natural he should do his best, and notice their good points, and take a real interest, if he was a young fellow with a paint-brush, and not an old master at all."

The Sufferings
of the Dyspeptic

DUE TO NEGLECTING TO KEEP THE
LIVER RIGHT, THE DIGESTION
GOOD, THE BOWELS HEALTHY
BY USING

DR. CHASE'S
KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

You may shudder to think of yourself as a dyspeptic—as one who, through stomach troubles, has come to look on the dark side of things, and to be illtempered and grouchy—but if you neglect treatment for repeated attacks of indigestion you will most assuredly become a chronic dyspeptic.

The great mistake is to put the blame on the stomach, and strive in vain for lasting benefit from tablets and so-called digestives. The real cause of trouble in nine cases out of ten is with the liver.

Thousands of persons are being cured of complicated cases of indigestion by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, because of their direct action on the liver, thus ensuring a good flow of bile—good digestion and healthful action of the bowels.

Mr. C. D. Bennett, Maple Grove, Meganatic Co., Que., writes:—"I had dyspepsia very bad. The food would sour, my stomach would swell up, I suffered a great deal and could not sleep. As the result of using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I am now entirely cured, and can eat any kind of food without feeling any bad effects. They have made a new man and a younger man of me, and I cannot say too much in their praise.

"Dr. Chase's Ointment cured a friend of mine of piles when he was so bad he could not work or even stand up."

Mr. Wm. G. Purdy, Bridgetown, N. S., writes:—"When I wrote to you for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I was a great sufferer from kidney disease, stomach troubles, and liver and bowel disorders. By using one pill at bedtime every night my health has gradually improved until I can say that I am in better health than I have been for twenty years. All other medicines failed, but Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have cured me."

This treatment is thorough, far-reaching and of lasting benefit, and cures the most severe cases of chronic and intestinal indigestion, as well as biliousness and constipation; 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Be on the Watch.

As a rule, an expert hunter will tell within a few days of when the black frost will make things solid, by the times the different varieties of ducks begin their annual fall migration. That means a forecast of a good month and a half before the event happens.

That little brother of the beaver, as he is sometimes termed, the muskrat, furnishes much information to the woodsman. Most commonly the muskrats build conical heaps of rushes and flags, from two to five feet high, amid the reeds at the edges of lakes. Unusually large heaps presage a hard and long winter. But it must be borne in mind that the rat builds large stacks against winter, when the snow is light and there are many thaws to raise the waters. And he has to be on his guard against a sudden and occasional frost, which would spoil his provender if not previously harvested.

There are regular stated places in good hunting countries, known as stamping grounds, where the stags meet to settle their differences. If these meetings take place early in the autumn, the next spring is going to be early also.

Experienced men are also accustomed to estimate the length of the winter by the supplies laid up by the chipmunks. Indian lore makes a great deal of this test, and credits the merry little striped thing with a great deal of wisdom. If supplies are large the winter is likely to be long, according to squirrel foresight.

Fur trappers have their code of signs, derived from the adhesion of the pelt to the body, the thickness of hides, the brightness of skins on the reversed side, and the coloring of variable furs speaking the best, that is the darkest fur, is obtained at the beginning of the hard winters. The skins are most easily removed when nature has provided much fall feeding material and fattened the owners against severe weather. Pelts come to full maturity late according to some authorities, when the winter is going to be prolonged.

Some hunters say that brain is never mistaken about the amount of bedclothing he will require for the winter. In some mild seasons he will squeeze himself into a hollow tree and snore away there, wrapped merely in his own fur coat. At other times he will make a deep comfortable nest in the midst of several feet of dry leaves, carefully covering very vestige of his body. He is generally careful when the winter is about to be very cold to have a good back log, or the sheer side of an upturned root, to shelter him on the windy side. And he goes to bed early, before the hard weather deprives him of food and reduces fat, when he fears an exceptionally trying season.

Weasels, ermines, and hares, which assume white coats for winter have not much judgment about season. The generally change color about the same time every year, whether the snow comes early or late. No woodsman pretends to divine from such creatures as change their color for the seasons.—New York 'Sun'.

It is none to early to have a sharp eye on the wearers of fur and feathers if you want to be wise about the coming winter. Already the muskrats ar busy building their winter homes, and you may be sure this is not only that they have been tricked by the cold turn the weather has taken. As for the birds, they are more easily watched, and are seldom caught napping by the weather. Just see how much they can tell you.

A Week's Requests of Helen Gould.

Miss Helen Gould was recently requested to subscribe to the permanent installation in New York of Franz Kaltenborn's orchestra. After encouraging Mr. Kaltenborn she gave him an itemized list of a week's requests that she had received. The petitions, if satisfied, would require $100,000,000 annually, or about $2,000,000 a week: they range from a modest plea for some false teeth at $15 a set to an imperious demand for $1,000,000 to start a Cuban colony. We read in The New York Times:

In the week referred to, Miss Gould received two hundred and thirty-one requests for money outright: of these, one hundred and forty left the amount to her good-will and discretion. They weren't particular. More than ninety wanted cash loans. Sixteen didn't specify any specific amount; they just wanted to borrow.

Miss Gould was asked in that week for $5,000 to help form an anti-saloon league in Idaho. She received forty-three requests for aid for churches, twenty-seven for educational institutions, and twenty-six for libraries. More than thirty were for help for charitable institutions.

One man proposed to sell Miss Gould his farm for $2,600, which he said he thought was a pretty good bargain—for her. Four persons, presumably young women, wanted

Miss Gould to help them to buy trousseaus. Only one named the sum she expected. The others left that to Miss Gould.

Eleven persons wanted pianos, and twelve wanted Miss Gould to buy their inventions. One person wrote a long letter offering to give her the last chance to buy a ring for $1,200 which was worth four times that much, if a cent. A girl wanted to sell her a lovely Sevres vase which Miss Gould, "bein' it was her," might have for $500. A son filled with filial love wanted to erect a monument to his father. He suggested that Miss Gould contribute $500 toward that worthy end.

In the long list there was only one request for a musical instrument. Somebody wanted an organ, but another person wanted money with which to print 2,000 hymnals. Following are some of the other wants: Bibles, bicycles, a farm and three cows, one invalid's chair, enough air pillows to supply a regiment of soldiers, one set of teeth, five sewing machines and fifteen railway tickets.

Five persons wanted Miss Gould either to buy their manuscript or help to sell them; one wanted assistance in getting out an opera and another help for an oratorio. Thirty-four were frank in asking for old clothes and three wanted watches. Seventeen only wanted to see Miss Gould to get her advice. One asked for a house, so that he might marry his sweetheart. Another simply asked for the concession to sell Miss Gould's picture for his own profit. One wanted a tip on railway stock. Seven simply wrote that they had named children after Miss Gould, evidently on the assumption that a word to the wise ought to be enough.

As to the other wants, these were silk with which to do some quilting, five sewing machines, help to become a medical missionary, money to enter an old folks' home, to help get a prisoner out of jail, assistance in selling lace and embroidery, and a donation toward a patriotic league.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surface of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Take Hall's Family Pill for constipation.

In addressing a meeting in Prince Edward Island, Mr. A. McNeill, chief of the Fruit Division of the Department of Agriculture, gave the fruit growers some facts to encourage them. He gave the following as the prices paid for the fruit grown in four orchards in Northumberland county: Eight acres, $1,675; ten acres, $1,800; twelve acres, $2,000; ten acres, $2,000. This was the price paid for the apples as they hung on the trees, the purchaser to pick and pack the fruit. Of course, these were good orchards, but the figures show that there is money in growing good fruit.
