A Policeman in Church.

At a certain church an aged usher, to save the exertion of continually marching up and down the aisle to conduct persons to their seats, used to take a stand in the centre of the church and when any incomers appeared, beckon to them and conduct them to a seat.

The urchins of the neighborhood, knowing his peculiarity, used to pop their heads inside the church door and mimic his action by beckoning to him. Many times he tried to catch them, and one Sunday morning nearly did so. But the boy rushed away from the church and ran into the arms of a policeman.

"What have you been up to?" demanded the policeman.

Thought the boy, "I'm caught," but he said: "Oh, sir, there's a disturbance at that church, and they have sent me to fetch a policeman."

"Very good," said the officer; "I'll step in and see about it."

So he opened the door at the west end of the church, and taking off his helmet, entered.

The moment the aged usher saw him he beckoned to him, and motioned him to a seat next an old gentleman.

Immediately he was seated he touched the old gentleman and said, "Come quiet."

The old gentleman replied, "What do you mean?"

Officer: "You know what I mean, and I don't want no chat. Come quiet, or I shall have to take yer by force."

Old gentleman: "I really don't understand you."

Officer: "Look here, we don't want no more disturbance; you have been kicking up quite enough, and I'm going to have you out quick."

By this time the congregation were looking at the pair and wondering what was the matter, so the old gentleman said, "Very well; I have not made any disturbance, but to save any I will go with you."

So together (to the wonderment of the congregation) they marched up the aisle.

When they had passed out of the church the usher followed them, and the policeman turning to him, said:

"Now, then, you have to make your charge."

"Charge?" said the usher. There ain't any charge; all the seats are free!"—[Detroit News-Tribune.]

A Human Cork.
(Travel Magazine.)

Bathing in Great Salt Lake is a unique experience.

Flights of steps lead down into the water from the interminable platform along which the bath houses are situated. The water is quite shallow at first and you find a rare enjoyment for a time in wriggling your toes about in the salt that forms the bottom in place of accustomed sand. You are obliged to wade out some distance before you experience the peculiar buoyancy of the lake. First you feel your feet trying to swim out from under you. You find it more and more difficult to walk.

You begin to float in spite of your self. Then you realize that you are non-sinkable. You can't sink if you want to. Throw yourself on your back or sit down or try to swim and you bob like a rocking chair in a freshet. You feel as if you had been turned to cork. You can't help looking at the phenomenon subjectively. You don't see that there is anything peculiar about the water. It looks and feels like any other bathing water—until you get some of it in your eyes or in your mouth. Then you wish you hadn't come. Ocean water is sweet in comparison. In fact, the chemists tell us that it is eight times less salty.

You can't drown in the lake by sinking, but you can be suffocated to death, which is just about as uncomfortable and undesirable. We found signs every where warning us against being too talkative or too frolicsome in the water.

When we came out we brought with us large deposits of salt on our skin. As the water evaporated we found ourselves covered with white crystals. Only a strong shower bath of fresh water or a good clothes can put you into fit condition to dress.

Concrete For Oil Tank.

Experiments have been made to determine the availability of concrete for oil storage tanks and it was found that the material was entirely suited for the purpose. Accordingly a number of them have been built at El Paso, Texas, by one of the railroad companies of that section which is engaged in extensively handling oil from the fields of that State. Up to this time it was generally agreed that the presence of oil had some serious effect on the concrete, but if this is true it was not shown by the experiments.

Tells How to Mix It.

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the readers of a large New York daily paper the following valuable, yet simple and harmless prescription, which anyone can easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and, being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to cure almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. There are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

Trial Catarrh treatments are being mailed out free, on request, by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. These tests are proving to the people—without a penny's cost—the great value of this scientific prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy. Sold by all druggists.

Mark Twain's Discounts.

"Mark Twain is the most interesting character in American literature to have made more money out of his pen as an author," said A. S. S. of one of the great publishers just round the and so we see him very often. He is never so happy as when telling a story, and is often seen doing so in a group of congenial spirits. He was telling me that recently he went into the sales department of our house, and being attracted by a particular book asked the price.

"Four dollars," said the clerk.
"Well, now," said Mr. Clemens, "I am a newspaper writer. Don't I get a discount for that?"

"Yes," said the clerk, "you get a discount for that?"
"I'm also an author. Don't I come in on author's discount?"

"Yes, sir, you get the author's discount."
"In addition," said Mr. Clemens, "I am a stockholder in this house. Does that entitle me to something off?"

"Yes, sir," the clerk returned.
"Now," continued Mr. Clemens, "I would like to state that I am Samuel Clemens. Does that fact entitle me to another rake-off?"

"It does," said the clerk, after a moment's hesitation.

"That's good," replied the author, "now how much do I owe you?"

"We owe you 8 cents," said the clerk."

When to Go Home.

From the Bluffton, Ind., Banner: "When tired out, go home. When you want consolation, go home. When you want fun, go home. When you want to show others that you have reformed, go home and let your family get acquainted with the fact. When you want to show yourself at your best, go home and let the act there. When you feel like being extra liberal go home and practice on your wife and children first. When you want to shine with extra brilliancy go home and light up the whole household." To which we would add, when you have a bad cold go home and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and a quick cure is certain. For sale by all dealers.

Popular Dish.

One of the popular luncheon dishes at a restaurant patronized by shoppers combines green peppers and clams in a rich cream sauce. To make it chop the hard part of the clams and cook them with shredded green peppers in a tablespoonful of butter for five minutes without browning. Cook the soft part of the clams in a cupful of milk for three minutes. Then strain them out and make a sauce, allowing tablespoonful of flour and two tablespoonfuls of butter to the cupful of milk. Add the clam and pepper mixture and the soft part of the clams, season with salt and paprika and serve. A cupful of sauce is enough for a pint of clams and two green peppers.

Colds

A cold is always the result of undue exposure to low temperatures. The rapid cooling of the surface, when not balanced by proper reaction, produces the congestion and inflammation of the nasal and bronchial membranes, commonly called a cold. As the slightest cold predisposes the individual to attacks of the most severe and dangerous character, the necessity for its quick cure need not be emphasized. Take as soon as the first indication of the cold appears and all dangerous results will be avoided. It not only cures a cold quickly but counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia. This fact has been fully proved during the epidemics of colds and grip of the past few years. No case of either of these diseases having resulted in pneumonia when this remedy was used, has ever been reported to the manufacturers or come to their notice, which shows conclusively that it is not only the best and quickest cure for a cold, but a certain preventive of that dangerous disease—pneumonia.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

There is no danger in giving this remedy to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug. It is pleasant to take.
