Stevens--Bourne.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Luke's church at half past three last Wednesday afternoon when Miss Ethel Bourne was united in marriage to Roy Oswald Stevens of St. John. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. Goring Alder the rector.

The only attendants were the mother and sister of the bride. The bridal gown was most dainty, being of white embroidered chiffon over taffeta, with which a tulle veil was worn. The church was prettily decorated in shades of heliotrope. The travelling dress was ciel blue with hat to match.

Willard--Jewett.

The house of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Jewett of Florenceville, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Tuesday afternoon, the 10th of September, when their daughter Jenny Edna was united in marriage to J. H. Willard of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Pierce. The bride was becomingly dressed in white silk with chiffon and applique trimmings and carried a bouquet of white roses, asters and ferns. The bride and groom were unattended, but the bride's two little cousins, Edith and Gertrude Weller, prettily dressed, scattered flowers in the bride's path.

The parlor and dining room were beautifully decorated with evergreens and cut flowers and presented a very inviting appearance. After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served, after which the bride and groom left on the express for their home in Toronto. The bride was the recipient of many presents in cut glass and silver and over $50 in cash. The evening before the wedding some of her friends gave her a bountiful shower party.

Easy to Fix This.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, as formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of backache or kidney or bladder derangement, in the following simple prescription, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here at home, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic afflictions with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

The Lax Use of Words.

(Canadian Courier.)

Mr. F. Talbot Price, writing to the San Francisco "Argonaut" on "The Lax Use of Words," protests against the expression "would better," used instead of "had better" showing that the correct phrasing is either "had better" or "would have better" but not simply "would better." The writer draws attention to the use of such incorrect forms as "preventative" and "per capita." He also refers to the transposing of accent in the words "address," and "harass," which should be on the second and first syllable, respectively.

For the last few years Canadians have been industriously imitating certain inaccurate fashions which originated in the United States. Perhaps the most absurd of these is the form, "some one's else," adopted by some Canadian school-teachers who seem to think that such a combination is painstakingly correct. But they continue to use the form "one another's," apparently not realizing that the phrases are under similar laws. No classic in English literature uses the form "some one's else," but a half-educated New England pedagogue set the fashion and a few Canadians unquestionably adopted it. "Would better" is in common use in the United States but we have been wise enough to adhere to "had better." One of the most noticeable errors of today is "gotten" as past participle. It is an archaic form of the same class as "stricken" and "wasen." But a few enterprising Yankees have dragged it forth and now the modern girl exultingly declares: "I have gotten a new gown."

Will Be Wedded Today.

The wedding of Miss Alice Vera Connell, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Connell, to Dr. David St. John, of Hackensack, N. J., will be solemnized in St. Luke's Church this afternoon at 3 o'clock, by the Rev. H. Goring Alder, rector.

Among the outside guests in town to attend the wedding are the following: Dr. S. M. Payne, New York; the Rev. E. Graham, Schenectady, N. Y.; Miss St. John, Miss F. A. St. John, Fordy B. A. St. John and H. A. B. St. John, Hackensack, N. J.; Mrs. G. R. Anderson and Miss Nellie Hunt, Halifax; W. Shives Fisher and Miss Fisher, St. John.

The bridegroom, Dr. St. John, is the promoter and president of Hackensack Hospital, and a leading physician of that city.

Hotel Changes. in Hartland.

After having conducted the Commercial Hotel since Jan. 1st, 1896, A. W. Rideout has decided to retire. The long-continued ill health of Mrs. Rideout has made this necessary. It is understood that George Britton of Windsor, will take over the management at once. Mr. Rideout has been very successful as a hotel man, having worked up a large trade. He always has had a large part of the commercial trade besides a houseful of permanent boarders. During the eleven years the house has been open nearly two hundred people have been accommodated there as regular boarders, and it will not be without a feeling of regret among the scores of old boarders that the passing of the old management takes place. The "steady boarders" of the past years entertain the kindest recollections of Mr. and Mrs. Rideout.

W. F. Thornton has bought from his father the Exchange Hotel property. The present manager Dudley T. Day will continue to run the establishment. This hotel building was erected about the year 1857, and is consequently possessed of some historic value. T. J. Boyer was the first proprietor and in the days of steam and tow-boating did a very profitable business. In 1881 Mr. Boyer sold out to B. N. Shaw and went to Woodstock. Mr. Shaw ran the house until the fall of 1887 when he sold out to Alfred Thornton.

Chester Carpenter.

Chester Carpenter died at his home in Richmond corner on Monday last, of nervous prostration, in the 46th year of his age, leaving a widow, two sons and three daughters to mourn their loss. The funeral took place on Tuesday, the services being conducted by the Rev. A. W. Teed. The interment was made in the church of England burying ground at Richmond Corner.

Will Go To Michigan.

Rev. W. O. Raymond, jr., of McAdam, has accepted the position of assistant to Rev. Dr. Tatlock, of Ann Arbor, Michigan, and leaves this week for his new field of labor. Ann Arbor is the seat of the University of Michigan and Dr. Tatlock's congregation includes about thirty college professors and some 500 students. Its situation and other advantages render it a delightful place of residence and Mr. Raymond's many friends will unite in wishing him every happiness and success in the new relation upon which he is about to enter.—Globe.

Tomorrow in St. Matthias church, Montreal, Mr. Raymond will lead to the altar Miss Florence Josephine Gillespie, of Toronto. After a short visit to Ottawa, Niagara and other places in Ontario the young people will proceed to Ann Arbor.

Notes on the Cobbler-Sexton Mine.

About the first of the month Cobbler-Sexton will jump to 20 cents a share.

The company is more than rushing things, all the men that can be used in the tunnel are employed at the present time. We understand that the company intends putting on a night shift soon.

H. V. Dalling has just received the assay of some Cobbler-Sexton ore sent to his brother, W. G. Dalling, in Butte, Montana. The sample showed a copper value of $68 to the ton.

MR. STACKPOLE, a Baigor man has been granted by the government a miners right to search for minerals from a point on the Meduxnakeag up to and including Iron Ore Hill.

A FARMER told me yesterday that out of eight acres of potatoes he would not get enough good ones for next year's seed. "And" he added "I have a big phosphate bill to pay. The potato market in Houlton is down, the buyers not being anxious to take any chances. One dealer said he saw a carload of Aroostook potatoes sold in Boston for $17.00 and he thought purchaser took a chance on getting his money's worth of sound potatoes out of the car which appeared to contain nothing but rotten stock.

The Potato Market.

The potato crop is practically a total failure, since in most cases the farmers will not save enough good ones from the rotten mess to pay the expense they have gone to. This is a disaster of greater magnitude than has ever fallen upon the farmers in this part of the country. But there is no use fretting over it, and no good getting discouraged, for it is not likely that such a year of wet weather will come this way again in a century.

One thing the farmers should take good-naturedly—if they can—is that the dealers throw out what are apparently sound potatoes. This is really in the farmers' interest as well as that of the dealer for it is known that even the slightest blemish on the stock will develop so rapidly that the whole lot will be condemned in the city markets. Every dealer in this county has already had carloads rejected and has suffered heavy loss. If any more bad stock reaches Montreal and Toronto from Carleton county it will mean good-bye to high prices. The reputation of our goods is now being weighed in the balance, and the wise farmer will readily agree that it is better to have the potatoes rot on his own hands than to ship them away to spoil the chance of his getting a decent price for any he may have that are perfect stock. The price of potatoes on Monday was 80 cents a barrel.

When Opportunity Knocked.

A story which shows amid rough surroundings the kind of character which makes new civilization and new enterprise comes from a man whom consumption drove twenty years ago to Colorado. He had been a drug clerk. His wife was a strong young German girl. They found themselves stranded in a little Colorado town.

Our first Saturday night was one long to be remembered. A few Cowboys rode in about dusk and began to liven things up. One of them, who had been discussing world-politics, suddenly discovered that the existence of Chinese laundries in Silverton was a great menace to society in general, and should not be tolerated.

In less time than it takes to tell it, four sleepy eyed Chinamen were hitting the high places for anywhere but Silverton, and a new era had dawned.

We were sorry for the Chinamen, but their departure meant our opportunity.

Monday morning I rented the vacated laundry and opened for business. I stood behind the counter all day long and took in bundle after bundle. The news of our succeeding the Chinamen spread, and people brought us work just to see if what they had heard was really so.

About six o'clock I locked the front door and then the work began in earnest. While I had been taking in the bundles my wife had been getting the work ready. We pitched in at six and washed till long after midnight.

That was our start. Later business became normal, and we could just comfortably do all the work with the help of two women we hired.

We stayed there all winter. In the spring we decided to move farther south, and sold out for enough to buy us a good outfit of furniture, a waggon and team. After we had moved and settled we still had enough for a cow and some chickens.

THE Delineator for October contains a very entertaining article entitled "Before You Buy Your Piano." It is an account of the many frauds practised by the unscrupulous upon unsophisticated purchasers. One feels sorry for the unfortunate people who get deceived and wonders at the ingenuity of the deceiver. The whole article is a warning against buying from the travelling fakir and a strong argument in favour of buying a piano only from the dealer you know, the reliable man who has done business on the spot for years and will be here in the years to come to make good all he has told you about the instrument. In this connection if you want a first class piano, call on C. R. Watson, Woodstock.

The commercial treaty between France and Canada was signed at Paris last Thursday. The new treaty is much more comprehensive than the old, and provides tariff concessions on both sides, covering a large list of articles.

'Government by commission vs. mayor that by and council' was the theme of a discussion last Thursday at the eleventh annual convention of the American League of Municipalities, at Norfolk, Va. Rear Admiral Chadwick, U. S. N., was against the commission idea, while Mayor Coatsworth of Toronto, was strongly in favor of it.
