Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.
Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.
Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.
The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr.
Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.
The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

Three Ways.

Aunt Jennie was propped up in bed in the east chamber. As she glanced over the morning paper her sister-in-law's heavy voice preceded its owner into the room:

"Well, Jane, how are you this morning?
I'm all used up myself, and I've so much to attend to; but I knew tomorrow would be just as bad, and I felt I must make the effort to come."

Aunt Jennie was nothing if not gracious.
She smiled, but answered gently:
"You're very good, Sarah, but you mustn't have me on your mind."

"Well, I felt I ought to speak about your doctor. I don't want to say anything against him, but you don't look as well, and he's so young!"

"I don't know how I look, but I feel better; and as for his being young—I don't like him any the less for that," replied Aunt Jennie, with a smile.

"Well, he seems dreadfully inexperienced to me," insisted her visitor, gloomily.

As she heard her sister heavily descending the stairs a few moments later, Aunt Jennie sighed to herself, "No wonder poor George looks depressed sometimes?"

A few moments more and a carriage stopped. Madge hurried in breathlessly.

"Good morning aunty! I can't stay but a minute, but I thought you might want something from down-town. John can bring anything back."

"Thank you, dear; that's thoughtful of you.
Did you have a good time at the musicale?"

"Yes, lovely; but I can't stop to tell you about it or I'll be late for my French lesson.
So you don't think of anything you want?
Your fire's smoking drearily. Shall I tell Amelia?" and she whisked away, calling back, "Good-by! I hope you're better."

"There, I might have sent for that yarn and the book I wanted!" exclaimed Aunt Jennie as she heard the carriage door click "But Madge fairly takes my breath away."

She dropped her paper quickly half an hour later at the sound of a trill, then of a light step on the stairway and a merry voice demanding:

"How's this angel this morning?" and Kate stooped to kiss the face under the puffs of white hair.

"Oh, as useless as ever."
"Well, it's got to be stopped," Kate declared, tossing a bundle on the bed. "Here's some yarn which mother said you wanted, and I wish you'd knit a muffler for the Sailors' Haven."

"Oh, just what I did want! Of course I'll knit a muffler, child. I'm thankful I can do something."

Kate gave a gay account of the musicale as she coaxed the fire into a blaze, rearranged the table, drew a window-shade, and moved a bowl of flowers into the light.

"How pretty you look, aunty, in that lavender sack," she exclaimed, "and you look better, too! That young doctor is doing you good. Here," she went on, "is that book you were asking about. Father's finished it."

"Well, I don't believe you have!" exclaimed Aunt Jennie.

Kate blushed guiltily. She hated to be caught in her kindnesses.

"No, I haven't, but I was going to be so busy I thought you might as well have it."

"Oh, I see through you, bless your heart!
You do me more good in ten minutes than all the rest of the town in a week."

Charles M. Schwab of Pittsburg is credited with being of the opinion that the steel rail now in use is not of the right material or shape to support the fast and heavy trains of the present day. He says the only solution he sees is a nickel steel rail, which it is estimated will cost three times as much as Bessemer. Some nickel rails have been used on the Pennsylvania road, and while the results were not entirely satisfactory, they showed that a nickel rail could be produced that would surpass all others. An official of the Carnegie Steel Company has declared that on a recent run of the Pennsylvania eighteen-hour flyer from New York to Chicago twenty rails were broken by the train.

A Profitable Interview.

(John Kendrick Bangs, in Harper's Weekly).
"What do you think of Panama?" said I to Mr. Bryce.
"I think," he answered cordially, and quickly in a trice,
"The skating in the Arctic Sea must be so very nice."
"A speaking of the fisheries 'way up in Newfoundland, What think you of that question?" and he answered, very bland,
"The oysters down in Tennessee are fat, I understand."
"What is your notion, Mr. Bryce," said I,
"of old Japan,
And San Francisco trying hard to put her
'neath the ban?"
"I think," he said, "that Carnegie's a very pleasant man."

"Then there is Cuba," I went on. "Pray tell me what you think; Shall we take suffering Cuba in, or leave her on the brink?"
"Oh, as to that," he quickly said, "I very seldom drink."

"What do you think of Swettenham and all his funny jokes?
Do they compare," said I, "with those of Punch's witty folks?"
"I always call for Hollandaise," said he,
"with artichokes."

"What think you of the President," said I,
"his verve and vim—
And is it really true that he has dubbed you Sunny Jim?"
"I'm fond of Wagner," he replied, "but few can whistle him."

The kitchen should never be without concentrated lye and washing soda. The lye ought to be used once a week to clear away the grease collected on the inside of the waste pipe of the sink. Dissolve the lye in boiling water and pour down the pipe while it is very hot. Washing soda may also be used for the same purpose, as well as for cleaning pots and kettles. Fill your utensils with hot water, and set over the fire with a tablespoonful of soda. It is well to boil out the coffee-pot occasionally with this same solution.

The burglar's wife was in the witness box and the prosecuting attorney was conducting a vigorous cross-examination. "Madam you are the wife of this man?" "Yes." "You knew he was a burglar when you married him?" "Yes." "How did you come to contract a matrimonial alliance with such a man?"
"Well," the witness said sarcastically, "I was getting old and had to choose between a lawyer and a burglar." The cross-examination ended there.

No Pangs in Starving.

Novelists write a lot of nonsense about the pangs of hunger and the extreme suffering that accompanies starvation. It is all poppycock. Any healthy person, with a moral appetite, after missing two or three meals is as hungry as he ever gets. After awhile there is a sense of weakness that grows on one, and this increases with the days. Then there comes a desire for a great deal of sleep, a sort of lassitude that is not unpleasant, and this desire becomes more pronounced as the weakness grows. The end is always in sleep.
There is no keeping awake until the hour of death.—From "The Long Labrador Trail," by Dillon Wallace.
