

Grippe or Influenza, whichever you like to call it, is one of the most weakening diseases known.

Scott's Emulsion, which is Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites in easily digested form, is the greatest strength-builder known to medical science.

It is so easily digested that it sinks into the system, making new blood and new fat, and strengthening nerves and muscles.

Use Scott's Emulsion after Influenza.

Invaluable for Coughs and Colds.

BE SQUARE.

We may name a hundred drawbacks
That a man must meet in life,
We may say it's all a "battle"
And a never-ending "strife."
Then resolve to meet it bravely—
Stand the test—to do and dare—
But the secret of true Victory
Lies in one word, just be "square."

There is something in the twinkle
Of an honest fellow's eye
That can never be mistaken
And can never be passed by.
Be his station high or lowly,
There's that dauntless, upright air,
That convinces all beholders
That the man they see is "square."

Appendicitis

Prevented

IN SEVEN OUT OF TEN CASES BY AVOIDING CONSTIPATION WITH AN OCCASIONAL DOSE OF DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Appendicitis is one of the most prevalent ailments with which humanity is being afflicted. Every newspaper contains the sad news of some person's death, or reports the condition of someone who has undergone an operation. Therefore, we desire to sound the note of warning, "Prevention is better than cure." Appendicitis is the direct result of constipation, or a cold settling in the abdomen, starting inflammation of the appendix. Of these 75 per cent. are the result of constipation. Besides abdominal soreness, and the colicky pains which finally centralize in a persistent localized pain in the right abdomen, the patient may be subject to vomiting, stomach upset, and occasionally chilly sensation.

Operations are dangerous and expensive, so naturally it is important to avoid these symptoms. Banish constipation and you are safe. There is no preparation that holds the confidence of the people for a constipation cure as does Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Mr. Solomon Poirier, Caplin River, Bonaventure Co., Que., praises this preparation as a cure for constipation in the following testimonial: "For two years I suffered a great deal from pains in the back and kidney disease. I tried many remedies, but with little benefit. Last fall I was so bad with back-ache and kidney pains that I could not lace my own boots."

"Reading about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I sent for five boxes and had only used three of these boxes when I was completely cured. My wife has also used these pills for constipation and has found them perfectly satisfactory. I am glad of this opportunity of making known to the public the great benefit I have obtained from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Besides loosening the bowels, they put the liver and kidneys in a healthy condition. It is the combined action of this medicine on the liver and kidneys that makes these filtering organs effective in eliminating poisons from the system.

Ask your neighbor about them. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers; or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto, Ont. Write for Dr. Chase's 1908 Calendar Almanac.

What a Good Man Means.

The answer received by the editor of a well-known magazine of the United States in reply to the question, "What Constitutes a Good Man?" are both varied and interesting.

It might seem at first glance that an answer would be very easy to give. After reading the views of eminent men we are not so sure and are inclined to wonder not a little at the various standard by which the goodness of men is judged.

Archbishop Ireland seemed to believe that love for God and man was the greatest virtue—the supreme test; while the prime minister of Japan believed that "he is of the highest type of good men who subordinates himself to the good of society, and, never departing from the principle, spends his life in constant and ceaseless exertion for the attainment of his ideal."

The prime minister spoke learnedly, but there seems to be no clearness to his statement. He is not definite enough.

H. G. Wells, famous English novelist, avoided the theological ground altogether on which Archbishop Ireland stands so firmly and would make a man's conduct the test of his moral worth. "He will be a very different creature from that indifferent, well-behaved business man who passes for a good citizen today," wrote Mr. Wells. "He is to be a clean, able-bodied person, who does not tell lies, temperate, honest, law-abiding, respectful to custom and usage, aloof from the tumult of politics, brave but not adventurous, punctual in some form of religious exercise, devoted to wife and children and kind without extravagance to all men."

Mr. Wells has much else to say in addition to this, and in a more terse, epigrammatic style. Thomas W. Lawson practically agrees with Mr. Wells as to the ideal citizen, with the exception that he believes in the fighting spirit as a virtue, and says that "a rattling good man counters the command, 'Turn the other cheek,' with 'An eye for an eye.'"

Prof. Edward A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin was quite radical, and maintained that "your saint, without an enemy in the world, is of less worth than the stalwart knight of conscience," and asserts that "the beginning of goodness is to stand on one's own feet."

This discussion is particularly interesting, as one observes in reading these various replies to the question asked, in that the personality of each writer enters into his estimate of a good man. The idea which each strives to attain is reflected in his answer, and this idea varies according to his mental attitude and his temperament.

As will be seen, an ideal man has something of our own dominant characteristics, and thus, very few persons will hold the same views regarding the virtues that constitute the good man. Perhaps this is a wise provision of Providence after all, as variety is the spice of life, and should all men reach a similar standard of excellence, possessing the same wishes, the same ideas, the same passions, the same ideals in every respect, they would become afflicted with mental rust and life would lose its interest.

Invents Cure for Deafness.

Many men and women, some of them absolutely deaf and all with hearing more or less defective, yesterday climbed the narrow, dark stairs that lead to the apartment of Eugene Meyer, on the third floor of 222 East 76th-street, says The New York Herald.

Meyer is a fireman who drives engine No. 68, attached to the house at 1080 Ogden-avenue, the Bronx. He is a good mechanic, good electrician, has painted some fair landscapes and has the reputation of knowing a little something about everything, except, as he says, the science of making money.

After ten years of hard work and study Meyer has perfected and patented a singular little machine which he calls the "Auricular Pressure and Suctional Vibrator." It involves an odd combination of electricity and compressed air in its functions.

Meyer says his machine will cure any ordinary case of deafness, and at least a score of persons who have tested it declare they have been benefited greatly.

"When nature creates a human organism," he said, "it is usually perfect, and whenever anything gets out of place there is a way of correcting the trouble if we only know how to apply the forces nature has provided. That is particularly true of disorders of the ear. Physicians realize that the ear, because of its peculiar construction, is the most difficult part of the human anatomy to treat successfully, and after suffering with partial deafness for several years I realized that too. So I went to work to find a way of curing myself. I succeeded, and now I want to help as many others as I can."

He explained he discovered his invention when experimenting with a sound box to do away with the scratching noise in the phonograph. Step by step he proceeded, all the time studying the anatomy of the ear, until finally the machine was put together and patented. While the reporter was talking with Meyer and his patients recently two physicians, one of them an ear specialist, called, having heard of him through persons treated.

One of these physicians told the reporter that his brother had been almost entirely cured of deafness by Meyer's machine and that he regarded it as an interesting invention. He said the principles involved were simple, but that it produced effects upon the ear drum which physicians had never been able to do.

The apparatus consists of small electric batteries, a delicate diaphragm that corresponds to an ear drum, small rubber tubes and other mechanism, with two little tubes that fit into the ears like the ear tubes of a phonograph. When these are applied to the ears the machine is set in motion and its functions are varied according to condition of the patient.

When asked to describe just what the machines does Meyer said:

"It draws the ear drum out in position and holds it there, and while holding it massages, exercises and vibrates the drum, at the same time sending an electric current through the auricles and auditory nerves of the ear."

Recently in England the mind of the public has been much exercised as to the correct pronunciation of the word "BOVRIL" the name of the well known preparation of beef. A concensus of opinion has been obtained by the proprietors of the preparation. As many many as 90640 voted for "BOV-RIL" and that seems to have been the favorite pronunciation. A Mrs. Brain of Shirehampton near Bristol secured a prize of £100, by giving the exact number of the majority of persons voting for "BOV-RIL."

Whether pronounced "BO VRIL" or "BOV-RIL" the preparation is very acceptable at this time of year.

Be kind to the Old.

Edward King, Bishop of London, who is nearly 80, was once taking an airing at the seaside when he found some difficulty in rising from his low chair. Seeing his predicament a young fishgirl hastened to his assistance and helped his lordship to his feet. Dr. King was profuse in his thanks, but the girl, who had no idea of his identity, begged him not to mention it. "That's all right, sir," said she with a laugh, "I'm used to it. I've often had to take rather home a good deal drunker than you!"

The Famous Pedestrian

Gentlemen:—

"I was a martyr to catarrh of the head, throat and stomach. I was so bad the doctors feared consumption. I tried many physicians and medicines. A friend suggested Psychine. I tried it and it was the only thing ever did me any good. I am now perfectly well. It is the greatest remedy the world has ever known. I do not need it for my health now but I use it as a strengthener for my walking matches. I owe much of my physical endurance to Psychine."

JAMES REYNOLDS, Port Hope, Ont.

No Honing— No Grinding

You know from daily experience, at home or in the barber shop, that the question is—"Why doesn't a razor hold its edge uniformly from heel to head without honing and grinding?" Whether it is a safety, with the certain tax of new blades, or the ordinary open-bladed razor does not alter the question. You want the comfort and satisfaction of a clean, smooth shave every morning with the confident knowledge that your razor will be ready for instant use the next time needed.

The Carbo Magnetic razor is the only razor unconditionally guaranteed to do this. Thirty years of study on the razor situation has perfected a new secret process of ELECTRIC TEMPERING that positively merges every particle of carbon (the life of steel) into the metal—giving a diamond-like hardness uniformly throughout the blade—something absolutely impossible with fire tempered steel—used in making all other razors.

But test this razor in your own home—or if you prefer, have your barber use it on you. Give us your name—or call and see the "Carbo Magnetic" razor, and we will state our proposition for testing these razors without obligation on your part to purchase, together with our free booklet "Hints on Shaving." This book illustrates the correct razor position for shaving every part of the face.
