Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.
In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

To relieve the worst forms of Rheumatism, take a teaspoonful of the following mixture after each meal and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

These harmless ingredients can be obtained from our home druggists, and are easily mixed by shaking them well in a bottle. Relief is generally felt from the first few doses.

This prescription, states a well-known authority in a Cleveland morning paper, forces the clogged-up, inactive kidneys to filter and strain from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, which causes Rheumatism.

As Rheumatism is not only the most painful and torturous disease, but dangerous to life this simple recipe will no doubt be greatly valued by many sufferers here at home, who should at once prepare the mixture to get this relief.

It is said that a person who would take this prescription regularly, a dose or two daily, or even a few times a week, would never have serious Kidney or Urinary disorders or Rheumatism.

Cut this out and preserve it. Good Rheumatism prescriptions which really relieve are scarce, indeed, and when you need it, you want it badly. Our druggists here say they will either supply these ingredients or make the mixture ready to take, if any of our readers so prefer.

Strangely Unpolite.

An Ohio young woman read at her graduation from high school an essay on the subject of 'Hawthorne.' An exchange thus relates an incident in connection therewith:

In her essay the young woman said: 'At the age of thirty-nine Hawthorne married and took his wife to the old manse.'

The day after the commencement one of the village maidens called on Miss E. and in talking the affair over, remarked: 'Wasn't it mean that Maud should say such a thing in her essay?'

'To what do you refer?'

'Why, she said at the age of thirty-nine Hawthorne married and took his wife to the old manse. Why didn't she say to his father-in-law's?—Youth's Companion.'

A Plaster's Rage.
(By Edwin Tarrisse.)

Handel was much given to flying into eccentric rages, though he was not a wholly unkind man. He knew his power, says a biographer, as every genius knows his power, and it is not surprising that he was thought to be over-proud and egotistical. He would deal out torrents of abuse when "t'ings vos mixed," to understand which one required an intimate acquaintance with at least four languages,—English, French, German, and Italian. Yet these rages, it has been said, were the healthy outbursts of a great mind, not morbid, jealous feelings.

Such fits of wrath led to amusing scenes. Handel thundered and roared at Cuzzoni when she refused to sing an air he had written for her, and she did so only from fear lest he should give effect to his threat to throw her out of the window.

Again, he administered a thorough rating to a chorister named Jansen, who had assured Handel that he could sing at sight.

"You scoundrel!" yelled Handel, shaking his first underneath the nose of the frightened chorister. "Vat do you mean by deling me dot you could sing at sight?"

"So I can, sir," stammered Jansen, completely unnerved; "but not at first sight, sir."

In 1753, in the Lenten season, a minor cannon from the cathedral of Gloucester offered his services to Handel. His offer was accepted, and he was employed in the choruses. Not satisfied with this department, the canon requested leave to sing a solo, that his voice might appear to move advantage. This request was also granted; but he executed his solo so little to the satisfaction of the audience that, to his great mortification, he was violently hissed.

When the performance was over, Handel, who for once was not in a rage, came to the unfortunate and said, "I am very, very sorry for you, my dear sir, but go back to your church in de country. God will forgif you for your bad sinning; dese wicked baoples in London, dey will not forgif you."

A ticking cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation even to very young babies. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lunghealing mountain shrub, furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the Doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. Sold by all dealers.

Some Curious Problems.

Some persons openly manifest an aversion to mathematics. Can they be censured, when such problems as these are presented to view?

One little statement that set many people to thinking about their limitations first appeared in a publication some twenty-five years ago. It simply stated, "You cannot count a trillion." Many tried it, but all gave up before counting very long. Suppose you counted without stopping at the rate of two hundred every minute of the day and night how long would it take? You could count 12,000 an hour; 288,000 in a day; 105,120,000 in a year of 365 1-4 days. Since a billion is a thousand million, it is a simple matter to see that it would take nearly ten years to reach that sum; and since a trillion is a thousand billion, it does not require a great stretch of the imagination to see that we could never reach that amount unless we had in the neighborhood of ten thousand years to devote to the task.

A woman of social ambitions once remarked to an acquaintance that she had eighteen intimate friends whom she wished to have to dinner, but as her table seated only eight she could have only six guests at a time. It was suggested that she invite them in rotation, changing the guests until each had been to dinner with all of the others. At the first dinner she announced her plan, and one of the guests asked if she had counted the number of dinners she would have to give before she had made the complete rotation. When he learned that she thought twenty or thirty dinners would answer, he laughed, took a pencil from his pocket, and after figuring a few minutes told her that it would require 18,564 dinner parties to finish her plan. At the rate of three hundred each year this would require nearly sixty-two years. The plan was abandoned. He then suggested that she see how many ways she could seat the eight people round the table, and she was ready to try that as well until told that it was possible to arrange 40,320 seatings without having any two alike.

"Do It Now."

One of the very business mottoes before the public to-day is the short, significant one, "Do it now." It would be impossible to compress more sound commercial philosophy into three short words. Do it, and not merely talk it—and if you intend to do it at all do it now. If it is a duty it should be done now, and to postpone it is criminal. It is theft—it is taking a duty or obligation from its proper place, its appointed place, and that is as much a crime as taking money, or wearing apparel from the place where it belongs. "Now" has a significance this first Sunday of the year that it will not have later on. The season is favorable to reform and amendment of life. Let us make use of it.

If we owe a man a debt—a debt of money or kindness or apology, let us pay the debt now.

If we have contracted a bad habit that we know to be wrong and offensive to others, let us break it off now. To defer is criminal as well as dangerous.

If we intend to do a man a good turn if we purpose putting a little joy and sunshine into the life of some one less fortunate, do it now. We never will have a better time to show our goodwill and sympathy to our "neighbor." He may be dead to-morrow. It is a trite old saying and one that is often spoken in jest, but it is true all the same that "delays are dangerous." It is dangerous to put off till to-morrow what should be done to-day. And not only dangerous but foolish in the extreme. I noticed a sign in a barber's window in Paris once which read: "A free shave to-morrow"—but to-morrow never came. No one got the free shave. And so no one will get the benefit of our generosity and goodwill if we postpone it till to-morrow. "Do it now."
