A Baby Boy Born to Woodstock Girl.

The Woodstock friends of Mrs. Edward Bulkley, formerly Miss Margaret Stewart of this town, will read with interest the following Newport despatch from the New York American:

Newport society has been making a pilgrimage today to the Dennen cottage on Red Cross avenue, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Bulkley and her son, born late Sunday.

It is little more than a year ago that Ned Bulkley caused society to sit up and take notice by marrying Miss Margaret Stewart, of the Newport Hospital. She was the nurse assigned to him two years before when he became ill with heart trouble. She was from Woodstock, New Brunswick, and was considered the prettiest nurse in the hospital. Night and day she attended her patient. His first outings when well enough to drive out were taken with her. She was voted charming, a girl of education, beauty, culture—only lacking the hall mark of Newport society.

On November 28, 1906, the couple were married. There were a few intimate friends present. Mr. Bulkley is a brother of Mrs. Reginald Rives and of Mrs. Prescott Lawrence. They did not take kindly to the marriage, but society did. It found the beautiful young bride to be charming and a devoted wife and helpmate to Bulkley. The Bulkley's took the Dennen Cottage and decided to live in Newport the year round.

For the past few months Mr. Bulkley has been confined to the house with an attack of his old trouble.

The cottage was a floral bower today as the result of the popularity of the couple and the interest in the Bulkley baby. Mrs. Louise Lorillard and other late stayers at Newport were callers, anxious to see the baby and congratulate Mr. Bulkley, who was of course the only one to see.

So far as is known, however, Mrs. Prescott Lawrence, who is in Europe, has not telegraphed congratulations.

The boy is heir to a large estate.

New Year's Eve.

The Outlook.

Into the merriment of New Year's Eve as in all hours of the surrender to the impulse for pleasure and diversion, there come unbidden those sober second thoughts which wait on the gayest moments and are guests at every festival. There is a natural reluctance to counting up the years when the apex has been reached; a little sadness in the afternoon even when it holds the deepest beauty of day. Time enriches us with one hand and depleats us with the other; brings those choice gifts which gain their value from ripeness, and the care of fruitful hours; and takes from us those possessions into which the fullness of our own years has gone. The inward ripening is constantly attended by the outward loss of things dear with sweet association and ancient use. To borrow a figure from the classic writing, while the spirit grows in grace and strength, the house in which it is guarded and nourished falls into

The "Beer License" Judgment.

In the matter of the beer license case which was argued in last Michaelmas term, which has come to hand, the full judgment of the court, as delivered by Mr. Justice McLeod, will be of interest.

The defendant was convicted before Police Magistrate Dibblee, in the town of Woodstock, for the violation of a by-law regulating the sale of non-intoxicating liquor. By Cap 92 of the Acts of 1907 the Town of Woodstock had the power to impose a license on those wishing to sell non-intoxicating liquors and to pass a by-law regulating the sale and fixing the account to be paid. The by-law was passed and it provided for a license. The objection taken was that the magistrate had no jurisdiction; that is, that the by-law was ultra vires. The by-law, I may say, in its terms possibly went further than the provisions of the Act authorized. The Act did give the municipality power to prevent the sale of non-intoxicating liquors unless the parties selling the same had a license, and a by-law was passed to that effect; but it went possibly a little further in another provision than the Act provided. I think the by-law may be held good in so far as they had power to enact it. If they did, in this by-law, make some provision that they did not have the power to make, that part would be ultra vires. In this case the question does not arise. This was simply a case of selling non-intoxicating liquors without a license. The party did not apply for it. He simply sold in violation of the law. The Legislature had power to pass the Act it did; that is, it had the power to give the municipality authority to enact a license for the sale of non-intoxicating liquors, and that would carry with it a right to impose a penalty on anyone who sold without a license. The defendant in this case did sell without having obtained a license and therefore the conviction is good and this rule must be discharged. I do not wish to say anything, as far as I myself am concerned, as to what could be the effect if he applied for a license and they refused it. In other words, whether they could discriminate and allow certain parties to sell non-intoxicating liquors, and prohibit others; but in this case he applied for no license, had no license and simply sold in violation of the by-law. Therefore I think the rule must be discharged.

CHRONIC CATARRH NOSE AND THROAT

"At the Advice of Friends I Tried Peruna and the Results Have Been Highly Satisfactory."—So Writes Mr. Pilon.

MR. RAOUL PILON, 116 Rue Notre Dame, Lachine, P.Q., Can., writes: "I write you a few words to express to you my satisfaction at being cured. I was afflicted with catarrh of the throat and nose and suffered much. I was greatly discouraged. I had a bad breath and bad taste in my mouth in the morning. "I took treatment for some time without obtaining relief. At the advice of friends I tried Peruna and the results have been highly satisfactory. At the end of four months I was completely cured." Neglected catarrh becomes chronic. Having developed into the chronic stage, a longer and more persistent treatment will be required to cure it than if the disease were treated at the onset. However, Peruna will bring relief, whether the catarrh is acute or chronic. If you are wise you will keep Peruna on hand and take a few doses at the first appearance of a cold or cough, and thus save yourself both suffering and expense. Patients have the privilege of writing to Dr. Hartman for free advice. A book on "Chronic Catarrh" will be sent upon request.

decay, and sinks slowly and silently into dust.

The fire that smoulders on the hearth at midnight when the bells are ringing in the New Year knows many lonely figures, brooding over the ravages time has made in the fair estate of life, and counting all that has vanished as lost. If it were true that time waits anxiously on happiness, and when it approaches its consummate hour, snatches it away with remorseless hand, men might well feel, as some of their remote ancestors felt, that the gods are jealous of human joy, and and that a deep and terrible irony underlies life and makes us the sport of the higher powers.

There is but one refuge against the sadness which the years inevitably bring, and that is the deep and abiding consciousness that all life is one, and that in the invisible mansions in which the spirits of men have their home there is greater safety than in the fortress of stone they have often built to protect their bodies. Those whom we love go from room to room, and we remain before the dying fire and mourn as if they had gone out of the house instead of passing into another of its many chambers. We miss not only dear faces and family voices, but things to which we have grown used during happy years, and are burdened with a sense of impoverishment because changes are wrought in our surroundings; and we forget that immortality is in us, not in the things about us, and that when they have served their purpose of sustaining, nourishing, helping us, that which was enduring in them has already become ours beyond the touch of time or change.
