On the two former occasions his addresses were mainly to the boys. Last evening he spoke about the boy, and by very clear and forceful arguments he showed how parents and teachers must understand the boy, appreciate his ideals and enter into his life, thus winning his confidence if we would instil into his mind and heart principles of Temperance and Christian character. Mr. Squires was listened to by a large and attentive audience who showed their appreciation by a liberal collection which Mr. Squires donated to the Union. The Union had hung in the church for the first time a banner with their motto, "For God and Home and Every Land" printed on it in large black letters. It made a very fine appearance.
