

Foot And Mouth Disease.

The filthy and loathsome disease which is known as the foot and mouth disease, and which is at the present time existent in several localities in the United States, as well as in Germany, has been described as a most acute and contagious specific fever, affecting pigs, sheep, swine, and, it is said, horses, and even mankind. While not, under ordinary circumstances, of a very fatal character, in itself, it is still a source of great loss, animals becoming very thin and emaciated and, in cases of exposure, the animal becomes very sick and dies. Animals which are being handled roughly or carelessly will die quickly, as well as those subjected to exposure. A great source of loss is from mortality of young calves, pigs, lambs, etc., suckling their affected mothers, or drinking their milk, which is full of poison, and in the case of herds of milch cows, which will go off their milk.

The first symptom of the disease is a constant smacking of the lips, followed by a profuse flow of saliva, and, in a few days, small vesicles form, which spread and run together, forming large blisters. The nostrils and tongue become similarly affected. The disease also affects the feet, causing swelling and tenderness around the coronet of the foot and in the cleft between the digits, and the swelling is hot, red, and painful. The animal walks tenderly, limps, and may kick. The temperature frequently rises to 105 degrees Fahr.

Affected animals should be left as far as possible alone, and the danger from contamination is great. Feeding in the usual way in which livestock is rested, with laxative mash, and a wash of the mouth and feet where affected, with a wash composed of some antiseptic, such as listerine, by means of a sprayer, would be palliative. A formula composed of one ounce each of electroly of troscle, borax, and potassium chlorate, is recommended.

Business Reasoning.

A little chap in Philadelphia, whose father is a prominent merchant, and, as such, never loses an opportunity to decant upon the virtues of advertising, one day asked his mother:

"May Lucy and I play at keeping store in the front room?"

"Yes," asserted the mother, "but you must be very, very quiet."

"All right," said the youngster; "we'll pretend we don't advertise."—[Lippincott's.]

To Regulate The Bowels

Keep the bowels regular. This is the first and most important rule of health.

You can depend on Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to help you carry out this rule.

They effect prompt and thorough movement of the bowels and as they do not lose their effect the dose does not have to be increased.

By their enlivening action on the liver they positively cure biliousness and constipation.

"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for constipation with most satisfactory results. They have also cured a young man here of backache, from which he suffered a great deal."—Mr. Peter McIntosh, postmaster, Pleasant Bay, N. S.

There is no question as to the efficiency of this well-known family medicine. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. At all dealers and Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Question of Precedence.

Recently a dispute was raised as to whether a certain lawyer or a certain doctor was to have precedence at a function at which both were to play prominent parts. It was impolitic to allow either of these men to be offended. While the discussion was under way as to which was to be seated next the speaker, an old physician in the room, said the discussion was one which he thought he could settle by giving them the words of the great Diogenes who had said upon an ancient occasion, "Let the thief go before; let the executioner follow after." The politician said he thought that meant the lawyer should have first place and the doctor come next.—[Milwaukee Free Press.]

SING, MISTER WIND!

Sing, Mister Wind,
In de chimbley place,
Whar de fire th'ow de light
On de ill' chile face;
You is de one
Fer de runnin' of a race—
Sing, Mister Wind, in de chimbley!
Sing, Mister Wind,
Ef you lak' de music so;
It's well dat you kin whistle
Wid so long a ways ter go!
But sing ter all de ill' folks
De sweets' songs you know—
Sing, Mister Wind, in de chimbley!

REPEAT it:—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

"My youngest boy, 3 years old, was sick with fever last June, and when he got better the doctor prescribed Scott's Emulsion, and he liked it so well that he drank it out of the bottle, and is now just as plump and strong as any child of his age anywhere . . . two bottles fixed him O.K."—MR. JOHN F. TEDDER, Box 263, Teague-Freestone Co., Texas.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

is the greatest help for babies and young children there is. It just fits their need; it just suits their delicate, sensitive natures; they thrive on it. Just a little does them so much good and saves you so much worry. You owe it to them and yourself to make them as strong and healthy as possible. SCOTT'S EMULSION will help you better than anything else; but be sure to get SCOTT'S. It's the best, and there are so many worthless imitations.

Saint Brought Heir to Czar

When three children had been born to the Czar of Russia, and still there was no heir, the Czarina is said, by a writer in the Woman's Home Companion to have turned an open ear to various men who claimed supernatural power and control. Before the birth of Anastase, the aid of eminent medical and scientific men had been sought to influence the sex of the child, but all to no avail. And so when science failed; religion was appealed to.

"The example of their trust in miracle working which history has been called upon to remember," the writer continues, "is that of the dead and buried priest who was supposed to have finally brought them a son, and who was canonized by the emperor. The day of St. Seraphim is now one of the holiest of days in Russia, and is celebrated throughout the empire.

"Seraphim was an old priest of Saroff, in the interior of Russia, who, according to local tradition, was a kind of sooth-sayer and local medicine man. His particular power is said to have been in endowing barren women with children.

"Seraphim has been dead seventy years, but the Czar was now anxious to leave no stone unturned to procure a son, and encouraged by the Czarina, Seraphim was canonized.

"When the remains of the old priest were unearthed it was found that the body was badly decomposed, and to canonize a man whose body yields to the influence of decomposition is contrary to the traditions and customs of the Church. The orthodox Bishop Dmitry of Tambof ventured to call attention to this, and protest the canonization to the Czar, but for his temerity he was deprived of his see and exiled to Viatka. Nicholas held that the preservation of bones, hair and teeth qualified for sainthood.

"So Seraphim was canonized with great pomp and ritualistic solemnity, and the next child born to the Czarina was a son. If anything were needed to fasten the belief of the Czar and Czarina in these extreme forms of religion it was an answer to their prayers at this time. The boy was called Alexis, and he was born on July 30th 1904, according to the Russian calendar, but ever since the Czar and Czarina have been given more and more to the pursuit of spiritualistic religion."

Value of Old Friends.

Some time ago Mrs. George Carleton, a prominent Waukeska clubwoman, read a paper before the Woman's Club of that city, which was so good that the local paper decided to print it in full.

At one point Mrs. Carleton said that "old friends like old coins grow dearer with age." When the printed report was read those who had listened to Mrs. Carleton were surprised to note that the compositor had made what he doubtless considered an improvement on Mrs. Carleton's remark, because of its undeniable originality. He sent it out to readers of the paper, "Old friends like old cows grow dearer with age."—Milwaukee Free Press.

The Miser's Wooing.

(Denis A. McCarthy in the New York Sun.)

Lifting the latch he came,
Making the match he came,
Smirking and smiling and looking so queer,
Counting the cows he had,
Praising the sows he had—
This to my father, but all for my ear.

Wasn't I sick of him?
Devil a pick of him—
Ugly and scawny and old as the hills!
Bald was the poll of him
Small was the soul of him,
Mumbling and mutt'ring of balk notes and bills!

Father was pleased with him,
Mother was teased with him—
Asking so anxiously after her health—
Ah, the old flatterer!
Sure he could scatter her
Wits to the wind when he spoke of his wealth

So he came coaxing them,
So he came coaxing them,
Dazzling their eyes at the size of their catch,
Meeting and greeting them,
Hailing and treating them,
Till the whole parish was sure of the match.

Pat, when he heard of it—
Aye, when the word of it
Came to that boy who had loved me so long—
Deeming that he had failed,
Over the sea he sailed,
Wild with the feeling of falsehood and wrong.

Well, there's an end to it,
I would not bend to it—
Selling my soul to a miser like that!
For ere the day came round
Surely my way I found
Over the ocean to freedom—and Pat!

TRAVELLER'S VALUABLE FIND.

Travelling on the I. C. R., Mr. Harry Towers, St. Paul Street, St. John, N. B., found a box of Zam-Buk, the great skin-healer. He was suffering from badly chapped hands at the time so applied the balm. He says:—"Zam-Buk eased the pain and smarting, healed the cracks, and made my hands quite smooth. Finding it so good, I kept a supply handy, and have since proved it a really wonderful healer. It cures cuts, sores, or burns equally well, and I would not like now to be without a supply."

Mr. Towers is only one of thousands who are glad they heard of Zam-Buk. There is no skin disease it will not relieve and cure. Its fame is spreading everywhere, and it is now regarded as Nature's great "first-aid" in workshops, on the farm, or in the home. No traveller should be without it. Every home should have its box always ready for use. A little Zam-Buk rubbed regularly on the hands and face before retiring each night will keep the skin soft and free from chaps, cold-sores, or disease.

If you have a cut, a bruise, or some irritating skin disease, which has defied all ordinary remedies, apply Zam-Buk. It first cleanses a wound by killing off all harmful bacteria. Then it builds up new tissue cell by cell—just as a bricklayer lays row after row of bricks. Then it covers the wound with new healthy skin, and the cure is effected!

Zam-Buk is also a cure for piles. It gives speedy relief and ends the throbbing, burning pains. Skin-diseases, such as eczema, itch, ulcers, barber's rash, rashes due to blood-poison, etc., cannot resist its powerful healing virtues. Purely vegetable, it is an ideal combination of power and purity. 50c. a box of all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Reject cheap, harmful and dangerous substitutes.

Roots for Fowls.

If roots and ensilage improve the health of animals, and cheapen the cost of the food, they will do the same thing for fowls. It is too expensive to feed grain exclusively, when the winters are long and severe, and as the hens prefer a variety of food, they should have it. All grains this year are especially high in price, and their use should be curtailed as much as possible. It is the mixed food, the combination of various elements, that enables the hen to provide the different substances that make up the combination called an egg. Lime, phosphates, nitrogen, magnesia, and water, are elements that are absolutely essential, and many foods contain an excess of some kinds and a deficiency of others. When a mixed food is given, there is a partial balancing of the needed elements, and the several varieties assist in digesting each other, thereby avoiding waste of undigested food. A quart of cornmeal, added to half a peck of cooked turnips, will provide a better meal than can be procured from either the cornmeal or turnips if fed alone. Finely chopped ensilage, or clover, or alfalfa, small potatoes, turnips, beets, carrots, or any succulent, bulky food, served with an admixture of a variety of ground grain will provide the hens with a larger supply of eggs elements and entail less cost for food then when the hens are fed entirely on grain.
