W S Harkins Co.

W. S. Harkins with his excellent company returned to Woodstock on Monday for a three nights stand. "Pierre of the Plains," a drama constructed out of some of the stories in Gilbert Parker's famous collection, "Pierre and His People," was put on Monday to a small but appreciative audience. Harry English, took the part of Pierre, the principal character, in a way that brought forth much applause. There was only one lady in the cast, Jean Gairbraith, who is Miss Laura Downin, Mr. Harkins' new leading lady. She has a clear, musical voice, and acted a most difficult part in a charming manner.

The society play "After Midnight" will be put on this evening. Some elegant costumes will be worn by the ladies of the company in this melodrama which had such a phenomenal run in New York.

If the people of this town hope for a return at some future time of Mr. Harkins and his company, it is up to them to give him a bumper house tonight, to show a just appreciation of his efforts to give this community high class entertainment.

The new orchestra composed of Gen. S. McLaughlin, James A. Deak, John Diblee and Herbert Lockwood, made its first appearance and rendered some very catchy music.
