Florenceville.

C. L. Mortimer, Church of England student, preached very acceptably at East Florenceville on Sunday p. m. from Ps. 29:2. There was a simplicity naturalness, wholesome suggestions, aptness of illustration and impressive spirituality about the sermon. Not to hear a good sermon, fine music, or to spend a pleasant hour did people properly go to church; but to give unto God the glory due unto His name, and to worship Him in the beauty of holiness. Not undue familiarity with God; but reverence, resulting from intelligent study of His greatness and character, was required. There is announcement for service again on the 25th at Lower Greenfield Presbyterian church at 11 a m at Upper Brighton at 3 p m and at Bristol at 7.30 p m.

A failing tiny nerve—no larger than the finest silken thread—takes from the heart its pulse, its power, its regularity. The stomach also has its hidden, or inside nerve. It was Dr. Shoop who first told us it was wrong to drug a weak or failing stomach, heart or kidneys. His prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed straight for the cause of these ailments—these weak and faltering inside nerves. This, no doubt clearly explains why the Restorative has of late grown so rapidly in popularity. Druggists say that those who test the Restorative even for a few days soon become fully convinced of its wonderful merit. Anyway, don't drug the organ. Treating the cause of sickness is the only sensible and successful way. Sold by All Dealers.

Committees were also appointed to decide upon plans for combatting tuberculosis and also for the prevention of the disease. These committees are to report at the next meeting of the commission.—St. John Sun.

No Help For Dr. Cook.

(Brooklyn Eagle.)

The departure for the Arctic of a Penny relief expedition is preceded by the announcement that no special effort will be made to find Dr Cook, the Brooklyn explorer, who, if he be still alive, is self-marooned somewhere in the remote north. Of course, should the expedition encounter Dr. Cook he will be brought home, but as the journey is to be made in Commander Peary's interest it will not be possible to institute a direct search for the doctor.

The want of popular enthusiasm in Arctic endeavor is evident from the meager response made to Dillion Wallace's efforts to organize an expedition for Dr. Cook's rescue. Only a small, insignificant fraction of the amount required has been obtained. For the present the plan is inabeyance and the safety of Dr Cook must depend upon his own physical resources or upon the hospitality of the Eskimos among whom he may have found a shelter.

Dr. Cook has been in the Arctic about two years. When last heard from he was some distance out on the ice beyond Cape Thomas Hubbard. His plight about which the public apparently cares so little, is the direct consequence of his own temerity in venturing so far north without being assured of an avenue of retreat. He put himself liberally into the predicament of the soldier who invades a strongly fortified country without taking care to maintain a line of communication with his base. Most Arctic explorers leave behind them friends and supporters able and willing to make provision for their relief. Dr. Cook is the exception to the rule. Yet common humanity dictates that he should not be left to pay the extreme penalty of his rashness. The project for his relief should be revived and hastened to execution, for geographical science is under a considerable debt to him for his work in Alaska.

Self-Respect.

Inward respectability. A sense of deserved respect. This is the product of inward conscious sense of cleanness. They who will in the secret place of their heart to do little mean things lose out the greatest asset in right character. Conscious integrity of motive and practice of purity in secret is the foundation of courage and trust.

"Speaketh the truth in his heart," "Sweareth to his own hurt, and changeth not," "Hath not lifted up his soul to vanity, nor sworn deceitfully." This is the Psalmist's definition of a pure heart.

Blackstone lays it down as an axiom in jurisprudence: "A man that is no better than the law would make him a dangerous man in civil government." Good citizenship begins in inward purity of disposition.

A profession of religion that does not effect this is the false type that John brands. "If we say that we have fellowship with him and walk in darkness (obliquity) we lie and do not the truth."

Break down at the bar of conscience and inner consciousness and the assumption of independence is but the stage play of an actor. Genuine courage begins in self-respect.

True manliness, true womanliness begins at the fountain of life. Even children can detect the shame, only to despise it. "Skin deep" morally is phariseeism, "whited sepulcher, full of dead men's bones," said the Master.

Christ's religion differs from all other systems. It begins with the heart. No substitute of outward conduct can atone for inward crookedness.

Amaziah the king did that which was right, but not with a perfect heart."

Amaziah's record was, he died an apostate.

"Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are all the issues of life,—Church Standard.
