Retained Health by Going to Bed.

Count Bertrand, an eccentric Parisian who died recently, ascribed his longevity to one of the most marked of his many eccentricities. Once a year he would go to bed and remain there for three months. On these occasions he would see nobody but his servant who brought him his meals, and even him he forbade to speak a word.

Just before the Germans laid siege to Paris the Count went to bed for his three months rest. The servant, faithful to his orders, said nothing of the events going on outside. One day the bread was so bad that the Count demanded an explanation. He then learned that Paris was surrounded by the enemy.

Springing out of bed the Count paced the floor, exclaiming "What should a Bertrand do in such circumstances?" Suddenly he stopped and cried "He should go to bed!" To bed he went and stayed there till the siege was over.

Source of Misery PROTRUDING PILES

Read the evidence that this distressing ailment is cured by DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Some people find it hard to believe that anything short of a surgical operation will cure protruding piles. The doctors have brought about this belief. There is any amount of proof that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a positive cure for this as well as all other forms of piles.

Captain Wm. Smith, Revelstoke, B. C., writes:—

"It is with much pleasure I state that I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for itching, protruding piles of many years standing and it has completely cured me. I had previously tried many other remedies but they did me no good. I most strongly recommend this ointment to those suffering from this complaint for it is a good and genuine cure."

Mrs. Captain Clithersmith, Salvation Army, Essex, Ont., writes:—

"It is with pleasure that I write to you in praise of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Two years ago I was taken with a severe attack of protruding piles and became so weak that I had to keep my bed and could lie in no position except on my stomach. Doctors could give me no help and the various oils and ointments used proved of no avail."

"One Saturday night when I was suffering untold agony my husband went to the drug store for a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment which I had heard of as a cure for piles. Although I had almost given up hope, to the wonder of those around me, I was able to be up on Monday and have had no difficulty from piles since. As a treatment for all kinds of sores and burns, Dr. Chase's Ointment works like magic."

Skirt Topics.

The new hip yoke gives the skirt a chance to cling above, while the inserted pleats let it swing in graceful fullness below.

The princess skirt with the bib continues to be about the most prominent thing in its class.

The bib effect is difficult to carry off well, but where it is becoming it sets off the lines of the wearer to advantage.

Some of the skirts are actually shirred up on the skirtband.

With these are waists that come to the natural waistline, and even point below it.

On the other hand, gowns equally smart are being turned out with the straightest of straight lines, from bust to knees.

The scanty skirt is certainly fighting bravely for its life.

Some of the spring suits are every bit as plain and clinging as those seen during the winter.

Esquimaux Still Kill Their Infirm.

That the custom among the Esquimaux of making away with helpless invalids and the aged to whom life has become a burden, is not yet altogether abandoned is proved by at least two instances during the present year. The last case has just been reported from the Colvill River country. An old man by the name of Tillemut was the willing victim of this custom which runs through centuries of the dim, legendary history of those people.

Tillemut was a very old man. He lay on his bunk and coughed miserably. He knew that he would never be well again, so he called his children around him and said that he wanted to die. He reached for the old Hudson Bay gun that he had carried since boyhood. He cocked it and handed it to his eldest son, telling him to put him out of pain; but the boy had been told by the whites somewhere that it was a sin to kill in this way, and he refused to grant his father's last request. Then the aged Tillemut took the weapon, placed the muzzle in his mouth and touched the trigger with his toe. On the Russian Diomede, an island in Bering Strait, another old man met death in a somewhat similar manner. In this Diomed case, however, the sons obeyed the father implicitly. It was the regular old Esquimaux death. There was no shooting. It was in a large igloo, the roof of which is supported in the middle by a stout beam. To this beam the boys fastened a strip of walrus skin, at the end of which dangled a noose. They helped their father to the edge of their bunk, fastened the noose about his neck, and let him swing off his high bed and strangle to death. These people are not cruel. No more affectionate people can be found in the world than the Esquimaux. Blows are seldom struck; harsh words are seldom used. Until recently, however, the ending of hopeless suffering by suicide or by killing the patient was the rule all over the Arctic world.

Even Leprosy is Losing Its Terrors.

The terror of leprosy seems, says Youth's Companion, to be lessening with the years. Ten persons who had been residents of the leper colony on Molokai were recently taken to Honolulu and reexamined, at the suggestion of a legislative committee. Of those examined, only one was found to have traces of the disease. The others were discharged as cured, although some had suffered more than twenty years. There have been cures at the leper hospital and colony in Louisiana and patients discharged. Physicians also are now generally agreed that leprosy is much less contagious than was formerly supposed, and some go so far as to say that in temperate climates like that of the northern part of the United States it is hardly contagious at all.

"Rapid-Transit Lager Beer Saloon."

Such are the words which were placed above a down-town saloon in New York. What a terrible significance they have! "Rapid Transit," indeed, from respectability to ruin; from health and happiness, to disease and death; from what might be a heaven here to a hell hereafter. Easy travel, it is along the downward road, with a swift, pleasant, gliding motion,—but what a terminus! Could the end be seen, how few would be the passengers along its sin-tainted way.

One is reminded of the vision of the dreamer who saw a bridge stretching over a broad, dark stream, with here and there a trap door through which ever and anon, an unheeding passenger fell,—fell from the bridge of life into the rapidly rolling river of death, and not of death alone, but eternity. Surely there is one of the largest traps. Never are its hinges still, but one man after another falls through, struggling hopelessly with the roaring torrents, and is swept to thousands of unwary ones who have preceded him.—Herald of Light.

Notice.

At a meeting of the Provincial Government held on Wednesday, July 7th, the question of opening up and developing the Cuba and West India market for the Farmers of New Brunswick, particularly the market for Hay and Potatoes, was taken up and considered.

A committee of the Council, consisting of the Provincial Secretary and the Commissioner for Agriculture, was appointed to confer with the Dealers and ascertain what steps might be taken to promote the interests of this very necessary project, it was further provided, if thought advisable by the shippers, that a conference would be had with the transportation interests with a view of securing better transportation, without which there would be very little development.

The Dealers have looked upon the idea with favor and after consultation a meeting has been called at Woodstock for Thursday, July, 22nd, at 1 o'clock. All Dealers who are interested in the opening up of this market for the Farmers of the Province are requested to be present. It is expected that a meeting will be held later in the city of St. John where Dealers from every section of the Province could be heard and the question gone into more fully.
