

A Nervous Wreck Now in Robust Health.

Mrs. M. E. Harron, of Newton, Ont., writes: "I must say our son would have been in a consumptive's grave long ago had it not been for PSYCHINE. He was taken down with La Grippe and a severe cold. His whole system was weak, including his lungs, which were seriously affected, as is always the case after La Grippe.

"After taking several remedies and treatments we procured PSYCHINE, and tongue cannot tell the marvellous results brought about in two months. He gained over twenty pounds in weight, and strength and appetite returned."

Mr. Harron himself is most emphatic as to the beneficial result of using PSYCHINE. He declares, "To-day I am in splendid health and have never been sick a day since I took PSYCHINE."

PSYCHINE is the greatest tonic known to medical science. It builds up the system and tones up every organ of the body, enabling it to resist and throw off disease. Weak nerves cannot exist where PSYCHINE is used consistently. Send for a trial bottle and prove the truth of these statements.

PSYCHINE is sold by all druggists and dealers, 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle.

The Beauty Secrets of Queens.

Some time ago it was asserted that Queen Alexandra had discovered the elixir of youth in a certain enamel with which her face was covered every day, thus hiding the wrinkles which tell the story of advancing years. Anyone, however, who has been close to Her Majesty on the occasion of a public appearance must have had their doubts as to the truth of this report. As a matter of fact, the Queen relies for her youthful complexion solely on facial massage and a certain kind of cream, the recipe for which was given to her by Queen Victoria, who obtained it from a popular prima donna of the 'sixties.

This cream makes wrinkles almost impossible, and imparts to the complexion that youthful freshness for which Her Majesty is so famed. The secret of its manufacture has never been divulged, except to two or three of the Queen's most intimate acquaintances.

SCENTS AND SOAPS.

Queen Alexandra does not care much for perfumes, although at times she uses a little eau de Cologne and violet. On the other hand, the Czarina is passionately fond of the strongest scents. Her favorite essence, too, is violet, and for several weeks in early spring hundreds of women and girls may be seen at Grasse gathering the blooms from which the Czarina's perfume is made. In addition, however, to using perfume for her wearing apparel, the Czarina causes her rooms to be sprinkled hourly with rare perfume, creating an atmosphere which the average healthy Englishwoman would probably find intolerable.

Of late years the Czarina has been obliged to "make-up" very considerably. Ill-health and worry have ruined her complexion and figure, and when making public appearances rouge powder has to be resorted to. She derives great benefit, however, from a certain soap made by a Paris firm from a recipe which they dare not divulge or employ on behalf of any other customer.

BEAUTIFUL SHOULDERS.

This reminds one that the German Empress, justly famed for her beautiful shoulders, gives the credit to a certain spermaceti soap. The preparation used by her has a deliciously refreshing odor, relaxes the tiny muscles and at the same time acts as a marvellous tonic upon the tender cuticle of the face and neck. Peppermint, a solvent so cheap that no one would dream of adulterating it, Her Majesty employs as a dentifrice. New mown hay is her favorite handkerchief perfume, and the Royal suite receives frequent atomizations of eau de Cologne. The Empress powders freely with poudre de riz, a fashion her august consort does not object to, although her strictures upon dyed hair compel her to refrain from attempting to darken her prematurely white coiffure by artificial means.

The most-talked-of Queen in Europe of late—Her Majesty of Holland—possesses one of the loveliest and most delicate complexions in Europe. This she attributes not so much to "makeup" as to simple diet and open-air life. At the same time she makes a daily practice of using in her bath a pint of the finest essence of Cologne, the purity of which Queen Wilhemina tests herself over the lamp upon which her morning chocolate has been prepared. She is a great believer, too, in the merits of glycerine and rose water, with which she treats not only her face, but also her arms and shoulders.

A BEAUTY BATH.

Carmen Sylvia, Queen of Romantics, places great faith in a special daily bath prepared by herself. Into the water she introduces an extract made from forest herbs, which she has yet discovered, and, judging by the beautiful complexion which Carmen Sylvia, in spite of her sixty-six years still retains, her praise of the merits of this extract is by no way exaggerated.

The Secret of Youthfulness

Ella Wheeler Wilcox, a well-known American writer, has said "that city women are afforded better advantages for growing old beautifully because of their ability and opportunity to patronize the skill and science of beauty specialists. And," she continues, "these women, the youthful, well-preserved, charming women we meet socially and in the world of art, do take advantage of all these methods of preservation."

The women of Toronto are perhaps more fortunate in this respect than their sisters elsewhere in Canada. But the cultivation of beauty has advanced so greatly that it is not always necessary to visit the "beauty doctor," as the soothing cremes and emollients used by them in treating the complexion, etc., can be sent anywhere by mail or express with all necessary instructions. The Hiscott Dermatological Institute, which is located in the Hiscott Building, 61 College St., Toronto, has long been recognized as the leading establishment of its kind in this country, and the only one on whose staff are qualified dermatologists who make a specialty of the treatment of skin, scalp, hair and complexion troubles, permanently removing superfluous hair, moles, ruptured veins, etc., the giving of face massage with the necessary accompaniments for preservation of the skin and removal of wrinkles. Skillful chiropodists treat all foot troubles and clever manicurists look after the want of the hands.

At the Institute are manufactured the Princess Toilet Preparations, which are fully described in a handsome book, entitled, "A Study of Your Face and Figure," and containing a mint of hints on the care of the hair complexion, etc. It is sent on request.

A failing tiny nerve—no larger than the finest silken thread—takes from the Heart its pulse, its power, its regularity. The Stomach also has its hidden, or inside nerve. It was Dr. Shoop who first told us it was wrong to drug a weak or failing Stomach, Heart or Kidneys. His prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed straight for the cause of these ailments—these weak and faltering inside nerves. This, no doubt clearly explains why the Restorative has of late grown so rapidly in popularity. Druggists say that those who test the Restorative even for a few days soon become fully convinced of its wonderful merit. Anyway, don't drug the organ. Treating the cause of sickness is the only sensible and successful way. Sold by All Dealers.

Stabling Cows in Hot Weather

Given a large, cool stable, well ventilated, how much more comfortable would the herd of milch cows be, if tied in their stalls in the morning, fed liberally with a mixture of green corn and alfalfa, or peas and oats cut green, with windows covered with cloth and darkened, and then after a liberal feeding again in the evening, milked and turned out in the pasture for the night? This plan involves some labor and care, but it provides for the cows a comfort that has its reward in increased returns are valuable. It carries the cows through the worst portion of the summer without that falling off which means not only decreased present profits, but also a decrease in the flow which will be very hard to raise again during the entire season. Not only will it do this, but it gives excellent facilities for keeping the cows under the conditions which mean the production of good milk. All bad odors can be controlled, while the cows are in the stable. The cows can be salted, watered with good, clean, wholesome water, can be fed liberally without waste on green, succulent food. They can be milked in a nice clean way, and the milk cared for effectively.

Brain and Muscle.

The superintendent of a factory went into the storehouse one day and saw the storekeeper tugging away at a big case of goods. His face was red and the muscles of his neck were bulging out.

"Hold on, there, Jack," cried the superintendent; "allow me to demonstrate to you the power of brain over muscle." He then grabbed a hook that was on a shelf and stuck it into the case, and, giving it a quick jerk, he fell backward into a pile of rubbish. He arose as gracefully as he could, saying to the storekeeper, "Blame it, the handle was loose!"

"Yes, sir," replied Jack; "that's why I didn't use it."

Maxim Gun Silencer.

The gun silencer invented by Sir Hiram Maxim, is a small and unpretentious piece of mechanism about 6 1/2 in. in length, 1 1/2 in. in diameter, and weighing 12 z., says Public Opinion. It is attached to the rifle by a screw arrangement. Inside the silencer are a series of discs, which when exposed in section suggest a turbine wheel. They are so placed and shaped as to cause the gases to rotate. In practise the silencer yields the most astonishing results. A British service rifle fired under ordinary conditions makes a deafening noise, especially in a confined place. With the silencer attached there is just a "phit" and no flame. The most effective experiment made was when Mr. Maxim held his visiting card in front of the muzzle. The bullet passed through without scorching it. Without the silencer the explosion from an Army rifle tore a large piece of cardboard in pieces and partially burnt it.

Clever Thought.

When a certain country storekeeper, who was also the postmaster of the borough, began the transaction of business one morning about a year ago he found that the safe in which were kept the postage stamps had been robbed during the night and promptly reported the matter to the proper authorities. The latter decided, after an investigation, that restitution should be made for the stolen stamps, but that the expense of repairing the damage to the safe would have to be born by the storekeeper, which was accordingly done.

Some time later a second robbery was committed and reported, as before, as the result of which there was another investigation, which disclosed the fact that the stamps had been abstracted on this occasion without any violence to the safe.

"But how was it done?" asked the inspector, somewhat puzzled. "The safe does not seem to be injured at all."

"I made up my mind I would not be caught again," replied the postmaster slyly. "I left it open."

Oldest British Army Officer.

Colonel John Bower, of Droxford, Hampshire, who has just celebrated his 100th birthday, is, says the Standard of Empire, the oldest officer in the British Army list. Colonel Bower was born at Kincaldrum on July 15, 1809. Originally intended for the bar, he chose a military career, and obtaining a cadetship in the Indian Army, sailed in December, 1825, reaching Madras in the following June. He served for six years with his regiment, the 28th Madras Native Infantry, and was then appointed to the staff. In 1835 he made the first of three visits to the Cape in connection with the supply of remounts for the Indian cavalry, and came home to retire on his pension in 1859.

There are probably few better raconteurs alive than is the duke of Argyll, and in his memoirs he has told some inimitable stories. One of the best concern a showman's ape which paid a visit with its master to Inverary. During its stay there it escaped from its cage, but came to grief through want of food, and died by the roadside. Two Scotch farmers came across it, and were much puzzled what to make of it.

"Dear me, what no beast's you?" asked one.

"It's no a beast, it's a man," said the other.

After examining it one of them said; It's a man, but did you ever see such a hairy man! It canna be a highlander—no, no, it canna be a highlander; do ye think it's a lowlander, Donald?"

"I think not; I don't think a lowlander is quite ever, ever so hairy as you."

"Dear me," said the first speaker, "I think it canna be a highlander, I think it canna be a lowlander. 'I'll tell you what we'll do, we'll just go to the castle and see if any of the English visitors are missing since yesterday."

The Stars

Marie Hemstreet, in N. Y. Outlook.

Softly the trembling tapers of the night
Glow from the altars of their wonderland.
Each seems the candle of an acolyte
Lit in the darkness by a priestly hand.
Lo, these be worlds, and our world to their sight
Is but a candle burning in the night!
