Rev. D. Burrows preached his farewell sermon on Sunday a. m. at Greenfield. His text was from John 3:16. In his prefatory remarks he showed how more than one sermon can be preached from one text, illustrating from the text, "I knew whom I have believed." His first sermon dealt with the origin of salvation, the matter of the soul's loss, the degree of the love that saves. The sermon of the 29th treated of the good will of the Giver, the greatness of the Gift, the undeservingness of those to whom the gift was offered. Also the two things in reference to the Gift. It was offered for and to. The sermon was serious and searching. The manner of the preacher specially earnest. His steady searching gaze as he drove home eternal truths will linger long in the memory. The influence of that sincere yearning look into the souls of his hearers was seemingly more powerful than the words of the speaker. No one can say that the messenger was not faithful in his message giving. The audience was specially large. The Dr. goes from here to Fort Kent. At the close of the meeting his appreciative words relative to the beauty of the scenery and the kindness of the people were pleasing.

Rev. W. W. T. Duncan delivered a powerful sermon Sunday evening on "Friendship." Text "I have called you friends." "Greater love hath no man than this, than a man lay down his life for his friends." Mr. Duncan showed Friendship to be the bond that unites individuals like David and Jonathan, members of families, marriages in which the friendship bond did not exist were mere brute unions, employer and employed, the elements of a nation and also the bond that united nations.
