Here.

The North wind blows from the land of snows,
The South from the home of the budding rose;
The West wind blows from the day that's done,
The East from the land of the rising sun.

Here is the spot where the roses sigh
And the cooling breath of the Arctic sky
Together meet in a glad some cry,
To join tomorrow with yesterday.

And here is Heaven, and woes surcease,
And here is joy and a perfect peace—
The future fair and the past so sweet,
In the land where the joyous four winds meet.

Children Had Eczema

SUFFERED ACONY UNTOLD

Treatment prescribed had no effect
--DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT made thorough cure.

Many a mother's heart has been torn by the sufferings of her little one who has fallen a victim of eczema. Only such mothers appreciate, to the full, the value of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for this horrible ailment.

Mrs. Oscar Vancott, St. Antoine, Sask., writes:—

"I have found Dr. Chase's Ointment to be a permanent cure of Eczema and other skin diseases. One son, while nursing, broke out with running watery sores all over his head and around the ears. Many salves were prescribed to no effect. The child's head became a mass of scabs and he suffered agony untold. He became weak and frail and would not eat and we thought we would lose him.

"Providentially we heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment and it soon thoroughly cured him. He is seven years old now and strong and well. An older boy was also cured of eczema by this Ointment and we hope more people will learn about it so that their poor little ones may be saved from suffering."

Chafing and irritation of the skin, from which nearly all babies suffer more or less, is a frequent source of eczema. There is no treatment for chafing so satisfactory as Dr. Chase's Ointment. Pure-clogging, unsanitary powders are being discarded by all who have once learned the value of this great ointment in keeping baby's skin soft, smooth and healthy.

In scores of ways Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in every home in the treatment of pimples, barber's itch, scalds and burns, poisoned skin, sore feet and every form of itching skin disease. 60c a box, at all dealers. or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

More Money In Live Stock Than Grain.

The value of farm animals is increasing rapidly, suggesting that farmers of the west are going more and more into general farming, not depending so much on raising grain for market. The statement is made by the American Cultivator. The value of farm animals is placed about $5,000,000,000, or one-fifth of the entire value of farm property. The value of receipts at leading market entire value of farm property. The of receipts at leading market centers for about 50,000,000 head of cattle, horses, hogs and mules will total well over a billion dollars, this sum of the leading markets only, and probably nearly as much more live stock is sold at the smaller markets as it figured that about two-fifths of the farm live stock goes to market during one year. Of the annual income from live stock, cattle make up about five-eighths, hogs one-fourth and the balance sheep, horses and mules. The great iron and steel industry is surpassed in value of exports by the shipments of meats and dairy products. The tendency of all lines of animal products is toward increase, while the country is becoming less and less an exporter of grain. The farmers are wisely securing a double profit by turning their grain into the home market and selling it as a finished product in the form of meat, butter and cheese. The United States has more dairy cows (22,244,446) than any other country in the world, more horses, 23,000,532; more mules, 4,056,399; more swine, 57,976,361, and (except British India) more cattle, 73,246,573.

One Thing Lacking.

(Washington Star.)

When dad goes fishin' we prepare
To listen with the closest care
To all his efforts to describe
The marvels of the funny tribe.
We'll hear with wonder and dismay
Of big ones that all got away,
We're always complimentin' dad
About the fish he almost had.

Like some great chieftain of his race
Who has been following the chase,
When he comes home, by one and all,
He's met with many a welcome call;
And soon upon the board is spread
The meal—potatoes, meat and bread;
We have all things that taste could wish
Excepting one—there is no fish.

High Ideas For Rockefeller's Grandchildren.

Mrs. Harold McCormick, the daughter of John D. Rockefeller, tells "What My Children Mean to Me" in The Delineator for September and a beautiful ideal of motherhood is revealed by her.

"When we waken to the realization that the baby in our arms is our own, that we have the right, the privilege, the honor, to be called mother, we find that something new is within us, a love so different than any that we have experienced before—a pride, a jealous care, a great overwhelming joy," says Mrs. McCormick. "All this we could not know before, and how wonderful it is! A little soul loaned to us to love and to care for. What great confidence God has put in our love and our wisdom to make us such a gift! Life now has a new aspect. No, it is not more beautiful than it was before, but it is more rounded—our horizon is broader—so much is open to us. The child who today lies in our arms entirely helpless and dependent is going to grow and to develop. We must then bestir ourselves. Are we going to be prepared to meet each phase of development wisely and capably? Is the unfolding of this spirit going to be met by an intelligent, loving mind ready to grasp, to guide, to advise? And if this is so, how wonderful each moment of every day is! Is this not the fullness of living?"

The Pianist's Vacation.

(From the London News.)

An interesting holiday story has got into circulation concerning a famous pianist. Unable to tear himself altogether away from his art while enjoying a rest in Switzerland, he had a piano taken to a secluded chalet in a wood, and every day went there alone to solace himself. By chance one day some one strayed into the wood and, hearing the music, spent a pleasant hour drinking in the sounds from the closely shuttered chalet. Next day he went again with some friends. At the end of a week the virtuoso discovered that a big crowd was enjoying his performance. At first he felt inclined to blame this intrusion on his solitude, but better thoughts prevailed, and during the remainder of his stay he threw open the shutters and played his very best.

Must Have Been Hot Stuff

Elbert Hubbard's Philistine: A young woman goes into a suburban street car and, taking a copy of The Philistine out of her Boston bag, began to read. She evidently had not read more than a couple of pages, when she carefully and slowly took off her shoes and stockings. She turned the stockings wrong side out, put them on again, and replace her shoes. The passengers looked on first amused and then perplexed. An old gentleman, who could contain himself no longer, finally reached over and said: "You will pardon my seeming rudeness, lady, but why did you just now indulge in this strange procedure? 'Why, kind sir, I was reading The Philistine Magazine, and I found the text such hot stuff that I felt compelled to turn the hose on myself.' And over the meadow a lark sang to its mate, and the white clouds scurried across the blue.

A Pleasing Publication

Busy Man's Magazine for September is unusually attractive. It has half a dozen bright, entertaining stories that are sure to be appreciated and a number of strong articles on home and business interests that will be read with particular pleasure. Contributions telling of the methods and means by which men of eminence have climbed are full of inspiration and encouragement. The Special Canadian articles are both racy and edifying. Among them are "How the Governor-General Earns His Salary," "Country Homes of Notable Canadians" and "A Farmer Who Produces Books," all of which are splendidly illustrated. The various departments for September will be found above the average and the edition is one that will both please and satisfy.

"Now, boys," said the teacher, "can any of you tell me how iron was first discovered?" A hand shot up. "Yes, sir!" cried Thompson major. "Well, Thompson, just tell the class what your information is on that point." "Please, sir," replied the scholar, "I heard father say yesterday they smelt it!" (One hundred lines of Virgil for Thompson major.)

Stop That Boy

That boy with a cigarette in his mouth, a swagger in his walk, imprudence in his face, a care-for-nothingness in his manner. Judging from his demeanor, he thinks he is older than his father, wiser than his teacher, more honored than the Mayor of the town, higher than the President. Stop him! He is going too fast, he does not know his speed. Stop him before tobacco shatters his nerves; before pride ruins his character; before the loafer masters the man; before ambition and youthful strength give way to low pursuits and brutish aims. Stop all such boys! They are legion, the shame of their families, the disgrace of their towns, the sad and solemn reproaches of themselves.

Parents stop the boy before he begins. Fortify against this insidious foe by instruction, warning and wholesome command. Prevention is the part of wisdom.—Vanguard.

Both Hurt.

(London Daily News.)

A sentry while on duty was bitten by a valuable retriever, and drove his bayonet into the dog. Its owner sued him in the county court for its value, and the evidence given showed that the soldier had not been badly bitten after all. "Why did you not knock the dog with the butt end of your rifle?" asked the judge. The court rocked with laughter when the sentry replied: "Why didn't he bite me with his tail?"

Placing It Right.

After waiting for several weeks without hearing from her story, the amateur author wrote the magazine editor, requesting an early decision, saying that she had "other irons in the fire."

Promptly came the editor's response: "Dear Madam,—I have read your story, and after giving it careful consideration I should advise you to put it with the other irons."—Success Magazine.
