Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation.

The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Silypery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Fruits, etc., this same Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A toothsome Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr. Shoop Laboratories, from this ingenious and most effective prescription. Its effect on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying. No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful lithographed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box.

Some Strange Letters.

(National Magazine.)

The Division of Dead Letters is one of the show places of the national capital and is visited annually by thousands of sight-seers. There is much that appeals to human interest and emotion in the immense stack of letters and parcels received at the rate of 40,000 a day, and containing articles of every description, some of them bearing addresses which cannot be deciphered even by the experts. In the 13,000,000 pieces of mail matter received by the division last year there were 6,000 books, 1,000 pair of eye-glasses, 900 fountain pens, 800 razors, false teeth, marriage certificates, rings, shoes, snakes—in fact, everything from valuable diamonds to penny souvenirs. There was also more than $65,000 in actual money, and commercial paper, including checks, drafts, money orders, etc., representing a face value of $2,203,992.

Don't Rub the Eyes.

Rubbing the eyes on awakening in the morning, or when sleepy and when bathing is earnestly deprecated, as all pressure or harsh movements tend to flatten the eyeball and hasten the time when the sight will dim and require the aid of glasses. They should always be touched with utmost gentleness. A lotion for week, tired or inflamed eyes given in the Chicago Record-Herald is as follows: One teaspoonful of powdered boric acid, fifteen drops of spirits of camphor, two-thirds of a cup of boiling water. Cool, strain through muslin and apply with an eye cup.

Pain can be easily and quickly stopped. Pink Pain Tablets—Dr. Shoop's—stop Headache, womanly pains, any pain, anywhere, in 20 minutes sure. Formula on the 25c. box. Ask your druggist or doctor about this formula—it's fine. Sold by All Dealers.

Over-Feeding Horses On Hay.

It is no doubt true that Americans feed their horses too much hay. It is common among horse-owners to let horses stand to full mangers when not at work. But in London, the cab horses, for example, are given hay for but two hours a day, in the evening. At the end of two hours the mangers are cleared. Careful testing in decreasing the timothy hay ration one-half has not shown that the horses required any more grain than equally good condition. Horses do not need heavy ration of alfalfa hay. Fed with grain probably ten or fifteen pounds of it is equal to a manger full of other hay. As they become accustomed to the alfalfa it may be increased a little, and the grain decreased. It is a rich food and should not be used as freely as hays with less protein.—From Coburn's "The Book of Alfalfa."

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

A Prisoner of State.

(New York World.)

Wherever the Czar goes he carries his prison with him. Even during his visit to England he is allowed no more liberty than in Russia. The government, while receiving him with all honors due the guest of the nation, is so apprehensive lest something happen to him that it keeps him under close confinement. Warships are stationed in an unbroken circle around the imperial yacht. When they meet, King Edward, who is accustomed to going where he pleases in and out of England and meeting all kinds of people, is compelled to share the Czar's captivity.

Germany is not Great Britain's ally, but when the Kaiser goes to England he has a good time, like any other illustrious visitor. He loves ceremony and parade, but he appears in public and dines and motors and shoots and gets some fun out of existence. A trip to England is a lark for young Alfonso of Spain who even to-day in the troubled condition of his kingdom walks about the streets of Madrid. President Fallieres crosses the Channel and the crowds cheer him, but they are not even permitted to catch a glimpse of Nicholas II. at Cowes. The Czar must get terribly bored at times by all the precautions taken for his safety. But somehow none of his hosts have ever induced him to try his hand at golf, or to take up a gun and tramp the moors, or run out to Longchamps for the races, or attend the regatta at Kiel. He has chosen Terror for his jailer, and the ordinary amusements of rulers are forbidden him.

The Peril of the Iceberg.

(Harper's Weekly.)

The fear of icebergs has been partly removed in recent years by wireless telegraphy, but their presence on the seas is still menacing enough to cause anxiety to many a captain.

There is the unparalleled case of the steamer Portia in Notre Dame Bay. In clear daylight an iceberg was sighted, and passengers and crew begged the captain to approach nearer in order that they might inspect and photograph it. The Portia, therefore, was steered close to the towering sides of the mighty berg, whose highest pinnacles glistened several hundred feet above the sea. Then the unexpected happened. There was an explosion like the shock of volcanic eruption, and the mighty berg was riven in sunder. One of the pieces split apart, grew top-heavy, and toppled over, its base far underwater catching the Portia and lifting her high and dry some ten or twelve feet above the sea. The mighty overturning of the berg created enormous swells, and these huge waves were the only thing that saved the ship from destruction. The weight of the ship, caught on its shelf of ice kept the berg from turning a complete somersault, and a huge swell picked up the vessel and launched her again, stern first, in the sea.

Shirtwaist Economy.

One thrifty little woman hit upon a capital plan for making her discarded shirtwaists do duty as charming negligee sacques. The sheer blouse usually wears away first over the shoulders and around the collar, and, no matter how daintily the mending is done, it spoils the blouse for anything but home wear. The worn portion this woman cut away, making her negligee X-shaped at the neck. The blouse which, like most of last season's styles, buttoned down the back, was slashed open down the front and the back was joined together by a panel of embroidery or lace insertion. Lace frilling or fine embroidery flouncing then made a ruffle all around the little sacque, and the sleeves cut off to elbow length, or shorter were finished by a similar frill. With gay ribbon bows fastening the front and fluttering on the short, frilly sleeve, this shirt waist sacque became a very captivating little garment indeed.

The Modern Way.

(From The Cleaveland Plain Dealer.)

"Will your daughter and her husband live with you when they return from their wedding journey?"

"I'm not quite sure about it. From the way Sadie talked it seems likely that she and her husband will at once take possession of our home and let us stay with them as long as they can find it convenient."

A Scottish laird overheard some lowland cattle dealers discussing the use of "England" instead of "Britain" in Nelson's famous signal. "England expects that every man will do his duty." According to one patriotic Scot, there was no question of the admiral's forgetfulness, and when a companion expressed surprise at the "injustice" the patriot reassured him. "Nelson, he explained 'only expects' of the English; he said nothing of Scotland, for he kent the Scotch would do theirs!"—London Globe.

A First Class School for Girls.

A STANDARD.—"To prepare us for COMPLETE LIVING is the function which education has to discharge, and the only rational mode of judging of any educational course is to judge in what degree it discharges such a function." Herbert Spencer.

AN OPINION.—"What impressed the writer (in the Educational Review) was the admirable system that prevails in the management and in every department of work; that kindly personality and tact, the influence of which is so grateful to young people; the genial sympathy in the relations between teacher and pupil, and the interest which each one seemed to feel in the work of the day. AN EDUCATION UNDER SUCH CONDITIONS IS INDEED A GREAT ASSET."

INFORMATION.—The new catalogue of ACADEMIA SEMINARY has just been issued. Polynesian Tattooed Giant and One of His Many Give A Remarkable Exhibition with The Norris & Rowe Circus.

One of the oldest and most interesting of the many, curious people ever brought to this country by American circuses is the importation of the Polynesian Giant Tattooed Warrior—Chieftain, Beno, and one of his many wives. Beno was secured for the Greater Norris & Rowe circus by Chas. Sasse, the special European agent of Norris & Rowe. These people have a number of accomplishments that will prove intensely interesting to the patrons of the circus. They sing in the Gilbert Island language, and play upon varied and peculiar instruments. They carry clubs in their arms. They are made of one piece of hardwood. The curve is used to break the necks of their enemy by placing it under their chins.

Decorations around their necks are sharks teeth, which they claim they killed themselves almost at the very door of their Palace hut. In the big tent, Beno and Beno give a weird and realistic representation of warriors in battle; the slaying of their enemies; the odd religious rites of the natives; the preparation of the Cannibal feast, and the dance of the final worship, until they fall from sheer exhaustion.

They are but one of the many special features that Norris & Rowe have brought to this country this season with which to thrill and interest their circus patrons. Beno and Beno will be exhibited here Aug 26th.
